RIGGER DIES, BRINGING DEATH TOLL UP TO 47

FRENCH RITES TODAY; NATION IN MOURNING

Officials No Nearer Solution of Crash; Structural Defects Denied.

Beauvais, France, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Five bodies, all crew members of the R-101, were identified today by the investigating commission of the British and French governments into the disaster that overtook the British titan of the air Sunday morning.

The members of the commission believed it unlikely that identities could ever be assigned to the rest of the charred and maimed human remains salvaged from the twisted steel framework of the dirigible.

A further attempt at identification, however, will be made in England. The families of the dead men will be asked to view the bodies of their loved ones.

Death Toll Placed at 47.

With this end in view, the miscellaneous articles found close beside the different bodies have been sealed up in small boxes, on each of which has been stamped a number corresponding to that on one of the coffins.

The identified dead were: Assistant Coxswain W. A. Potter, Rigger E. G. Rudd and Engineers R. Blake, W. B. King and S. E. Scott.

Official announcement was made late tonight that 46 bodies, instead of 47, as previously calculated, had been removed from the wreckage of the R-101, setting the total of known dead in the diaster at 47.

One Body in Two Coffins.

The death list of 47 includes that of Rigger W. G. Radcliffe, one of the original eight survivors, who died

Common Grave Asked For Dirigible Victims

London, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Burial of the bodies of all those lost aboard the R-101 will probably be in a common grave and at a single ceremony.

The air ministry tonight mailed letters to relatives saying that because of the impossibility of identifying the majority of the bodies with any certainty a general burial service would be dignified and appropriate.

The ministry pointed out that a single memorial could be erected over the grave at or near Cardington, home port of the R-101 and of the R-100. The dead men's relatives were asked to signify their assent as soon as possible.

Who Stole the Mogul? Help Uncle Bim Out

Sidney Smith, cartoonist and creator of "The Gumps," is calling for aid to solve the disappearance of the "Great Mogul" diamond from Uncle Bim's bedroom, as shown on the comic page of The Post.

All the gumshoed sleuths have been called out to explain how the thief stole the diamond out of Uncle Bim's room when every door was locked from inside and barricaded. The window was locked by pegs, not a thing was disturbed in the room. The cobwebs were still o nthe window.

The only clew is the print of a peg-legged individual with a right foot which was underneath Uncle Bim's window. The diamond was in a safe on the table near. in a safe on the table near Bim's window. Poor Andy Gump and Tilda are in jail on suspicion.

To the one who presents the neatest and the correct solution of the mystery Mr. Smith will present a baby carirage and a pair of roller skates. Other prizes will be: A box of cigars (not the kind Scooge hands out), a croquet set, tennis racket, lady's purse, man's billfold, pipe, punching bag, football, boxing gloves and an atlarm clock.

Calvin Coolidge

Says: There has just been dedicated in the City of Pittsburgh a stately memorial to George Westinghouse. More than fifty thousand of his former workmen and professional associates testified to the respect and affection in which they held him by contributing to the cost of this great monument.

The ceremony of unveiling was attended by a great throng of prominent business men representing both the Old and the New World.

George Westinghouse had that combination which is so rare of both inventive and business genius. His air brake and signal system made possible the speed and safety of the modern railroad. Without the contribution that he made to transportation it would not be possible with the present roadbed and equipment to serve the business of this country. Between 1870 and his death in 1914 he had built up industries in many countries which employed about two hundred thousand people. He was the first to establish a Saturday half-holiday in a great industry. He was one of the pioneers in electrical engineering. Because he lived industrial life is more human, more safe and more productive. He ranks as one of the great benefactors of mankind.

CAPITAL OF BRAZIL MENACED BY 80,000

RULE BY JUNTA STARTED

Montevideo, Uruguay, Oct. 6 (A.P.). Leaders of the Brazilian revolt asserted in dispatches reaching here tonight that the triumph of the revolution was only a few days away. An army of 80,000 men is marching on Rio de Janeiro and nine states, in both north and south, rebelling against the government of President Washington Luis..

The states in arms against the federal administration are Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Caterina and Parana, in southern Brazil; Minas Geraes, in central section, and Piahuy, Ceara, Rio Grande do Norte, Parahyba and Pernambuco, in the north.

Gen. Francisco Flores da Cunha, federal deputy and leader of the revolutionary troops, said he could not make definite statement as to the states of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, where the government is strongest, but intimated the situation there was grave for the administration. In addition, some reports say revolutionary outbreaks have occurred in the great northern state of Para.

Gen. da Cunha asserted that in case Sao Paulo and the capital resisted, the revolutionary troops now moving toward Sao Paulo were ready to attack them. This powerful body, numbering 80,000, comprises infantry, cavalry, and artillery from Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Caterina, and Parana.

He said that when the revolution triumphed, a provisional civil government would take charge, with elections for a president and Congress to be called later.

Advices from Rio Grande do Sul today indicated the state government had set up a sort of provisional rule already. This state, which is dominated by Getulio Vargas, defeated by Julio Prestes in the elections last March, today nominated Lindolf Collor as its diplomatic representative to Argentina. He left for Buenos Aires by plane.

CONDITION HELD SERIOUS

Louis Bush, 60 years old, president and owner of the Gray Line Motor Tours, was shot three times and seriously wounded about 10 o'clock last night during a scuffle with a robber in the rear of his home at 3534 Fulton street northwest.

Accosted by the holdup man just after he had driven his car into his garage, Mr. Bush knocked the gun from the other's hands and struggled with him several minutes before being overcome. The robber, upon recovering the revolver, hit his victim on the left temple, dazing him, and then fired three times, each shot reaching its mark.

He fled after this attack, and Mr. Bush, who was bleeding profusely from his several wounds, staggered to his front door and rang his door bell before collapsing.

His horrified family hastily called their physician, Dr. L. Newman, and later Emergency Hospital. After being given first-aid treatment Mr. Bush was taken to the hospital in a W. W. Chambers ambulance. His condition was reported as serious.

Police were seeking to piece together the details of the attack late last night, as there were no witnesses of the struggle and Mr. Bush was scarcely able to talk.

The holdup man was described as being about 5 feet 8 inches tall, fairly young, and white. He was dressed in a dark suit and wore a gray cap. Mr. Bush said that he paid little attention to him as he left the garage until the intruder spoke.

So far as could be learned, the man fled without effecting the robbery.

Mr. Bush was taken to the operating room of the hospital shortly after 11 o'clock in an effort to save his life. His wife and family were prostrate.

The attack occurred in an exclusive

HOOVER URGES NATION TO WAR ON DEPRESSION

EXECUTIVE PRAISES SCARCITY OF STRIKES

COOLIDGE IS CHEERED BY VETERANS OF WAR

President Shares Honor With Predecessor at Arena Convention.

Boston, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Cheered in two addresses before the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor, President Hoover today called for Nation-wide team work to end the business depression and denied the existence of imperialistic ambitions by the people of America.

Immediately after the conclusion of his labor speech, expressing confidence that the Nation would build steadily and mitigate the destructiveness of business storms, the Chief eExecutive left on his special train for a 21-hour run to Kings Mountain, S. C., where tomorrow he is to speak at the sesquicentennial of the Revolutionary War battle.

"The demonstration of Nation-wide cooperation and team play and the absence of conflict during this depression have increased the stability and wholesomeness of our industrial and social structure," Mr. Hoover said at the fiftieth annual convention of labor federation, held in the auditorium of the Hotel Statler.

Freedom From Strikes Emphasized.

He asserted expansion of construction and freedom from strikes and lockouts had contributed greatly to lessening unemployment. Turning to the bituminous coal industry for specific remarks, he said that it was suffering most from readjustment made by new discoveries and labor-saving devices and added that "destructive competition and breakdown in wages" had severely handicapped it.

Six thousand independent mine owners, he said, were operating 7,000 mines, and he urged elimination of this "destructive competition" as "one key" to the solution.

Earlier in the day, a few hours after his arrival from the Capital, the Chief Executive received an enthusiastic demonstration from the American Legion.

He spoke in the Boston arena where, two years ago to the day, he spoke during his preselection campaign. Thousands of legionnaires, with their State banners held aloft in a manner suggesting political conventions, interrupted the President repeatedly as he asserted that the "peace of our country has never stood more assured than at this moment," and warned that a belief by some leaders in other countries that "they were in the presence of the birth of a new imperial power, intent upon dominating the destinies and the freedom of other peoples," was an "utter misconception."

Coolidge Sits as Chairman.

The former President was cheered as Mr. Hoover diverted from his prepared manuscript to pay tribute to

WOULD IGNORE POLITICS

A representative of American big business came to Washington yesterday with a new plan for smashing the apparent "buyers' strike" in this country.

He is Harvey Campbell, secretary and vice president of the Detroit Board of Commerce, who came here with the backing of that powerful trade group.

Mr. Campbell thinks that the time has come when American business men should themselves attempt to restore the confidence of the American buying public and thus reestablish prosperity, without depending further on the efforts of President Hoover.

He proposes that American business men lay all their cards on the table and, in a publicity campaign, discuss frankly all the facts bearing on the economic situation.

He would establish a statistical committee, made up of representative American business men, a committee in which the public would have confidence. This committee would collect and disseminate information on actual economic conditions, without regard to the administration or partisan politics.

Not more than 25 per cent of Americans have really been hard hit by the economic slump, Mr. Campbell says. Yet, he adds, such is the growing lack of confidence in the country's condition that the other 75 per cent are virtually on a buyers' strike.

The task of the proposed statistical committee would be to restore the confidence of this 75 per cent, or 90,000,000 citizens. It would do this by debunking all the current prosperity talk, and by basing its publicity upon actual facts regarding the economic situation.

Mr. Campbell suggests as the chairman of the proposed committee Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., who was director of the War Industries Board, and in that role guided the preparedness propaganda campaign.

"Woodrow Wilson," Mr. Campbell said, "was reelected for a second term largely as a result of the Democratic campaign slogan: 'He kept us out of war.' Within a short time it became inevitable that Amreica would have to enter the war. Consequently, it became necessary to change the American psychology with regard to preparedness for war.

"This was done through a well-organized publicity campaign, which was directed by Mr. Gifford and How-

Leland O. Wright, 55 years old, an employe of the Soldiers Home, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday morning from injuries received Sunday night while walking west on Rock Creek Church road near Harewood road, when he was struck by an automobile driven by Raymond Liezear, of Silver Spring, Md.

The injured man was taken first to Walter Reed Hospital, where he was foun dto be suffering from a compound fracture of the skull and removed later to Emergency Hospital. Dr. J. Ramsay Nevitt, coroner, scheduled an inquest for 11 o'clock this morning at the District morgue.

FORMER ORPHANAGE TREASURER INDICTED

$37,000 TAKEN, CLAIM

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Six indictments, on charging grand larceny and five charging embezzlement, were returned today against James P. Jones, former treasurer of the Virginia Methodist Orphanage, by the Richmond Hustings Court grand jury.

The grand larceny indictment charges Jones with the theft of $37,976.40 of the orphanage's funds over a five-year period. The five embezzlement bills charge the former treasurer with 30 instances of converting orphanage funds to his own use.

Witnesses who appeared on the case before the grand jury included F. L. Worcester, certified public accountant; G. I. McAllen, superintendent of the orphanage, and I. N. Vaughan, of the orphanage board of trustees.

Jones withdrew from the orphanage treasurer's office in June, and severals weeks later orphanage trustees announced there was a discrepancy in his accounts. The trustees said later that a complete settlement of the discrepancy had been made, but Commonwealth's Attorney Dave E. Satterfield asked the board for a statement on the case.

Following a review of the record Satterfield ordered Jones' arrest. He is now at liberty on bond.

GULF STREAM TUBE HAILED AS SUCCESS

TRIAL QUIETS SKEPTICS

Matanzas, Cuba, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Prof. Georges Claude, before a gathering of engineers and scientific men in his laboratory, today produced sufficient electrical energy through utilizing variations in temperature of Gulf tStream water to light 40 500-watt bulbs, and keep them burning. The demonstration was viewed by those present as the forerunner of a great revolution in industrial power methods.

The French scientist, after five years' experimentation with a theory pronounced impracticable by some leaders in the field of hydraulics, kept the bulbs burning for more than half an hour.

Confident of success, he stood in front of a huge control board where were placed many levers, buttons and gauges. When the group of government officials, engineers and members of the Havana Academy of Science, and newspapermen had assembled in his homely laboratory, he pressed a switch starting the pumps that bring up cold sea water from the depths of Matanzas Bay a mile from shore.

Slowly at first, then with increasing volume, the cold draughts of water began to flow from the tube, more than 4,000 feet long, which the scientist had laid a month ago on the bottom of the bay.

At the same time warm water from the surface of the Gulf Stream began to flow into the huge vacuum tanks. It was there converted into steam.

Within a few moments the steam reached such a presscre that the adjacent turbines began to revolve. The speed picked until several thousand revolutions per minute were recorded on the turbines.

The cold water flowed about the vacuum tanks, condensing steam in one while the other was filling. The condensation produced a fresh vacuum, so that by the time the full tank was exhausted the other was ready to begin functioning.

Everything was running smoothly, but Prof. Claude did not hurry with the power-producing demonstration.

GRIMES DEFEAT DUE TO OVER CONFIDENCE

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH
Sports Editor of The Post.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—A low ceiling of heavy mist hung over Sportsman's Park and faded into a vaporous nothing only a few blocks away as the Athletics and Cardinals stood locked in the grimness of a superb pitching duel, a world series twirling epic with all the old-fashioned trimmings, when the bat of Jimmy Foxx rang out in the ninth inning.

It was a home run, a caveman clout, to be mistaken for nothing else from the time it left the bat of the apple-cheeked farm boy from Maryland's Eastern Shore and it floated high over the infield, traversed the outfield with heightening trajectory, carried the ramparts in left center field and came to rest finally in the laps of the saddened bleacherites, high up in the uncovered stands. And the upturned faces of Left Fielder Hafey and Center Fielder Douthit registered resignation.

Cochrane Also Scores on Blow.

Mickey Cochrane scored ahead of Foxx as the only two runs of the ball game clattered over the plate and the fifth game of the 1930 world series passed into the permanent keeping of the Athletics by the score of 2 to 0 in a dramatic climax that gained the American League champions a lead of 3 to 2 in the series count thus far.

Disillusioned were the 40,000 St. Louisans in the stands. So was Burleigh Grimes. St. Louis fandom and Grimes were strong on the scent of another world serias victory after the triumphs of Saturday and Sunday; and until one was out in the ninth, the possibilities loomed great even in the face of the masterful performance of Long George Earnshaw and later Lefty Grove, who, in point of hits, were outpitching the spitball veteran of the Cardinals.

Cardinals Get Only Three Hits.

For eight and one-third innings Philadelphia and St. Louis were clenched in this inspiring pitching spectacle which at the time had yielded only three hits to the Cardinals and four to the Athletics. Then came the ninth This brought Cochrane to the plate against Grimes as the first batter. Here was a situation. Bad blood was evident between the veteran Cardinal pitcher and the Philadelphia catcher in the first world series clash at Philadelphia, occasioned first by a bean ball pitched by Grimes and intensified when Cochrane directed some of the choicest uncomplimentary remarks in his extensive vocabulary at his pitching opponent. But Grimes knew of Cochrane's weakness and sensitiveness to his unusually prominent aurical extremities and, abedding his glove for the moment, brought both hands to his head in donkey-eared fashion in emulation of the Athletic's catcher.

Harding Memorial Group Refuses to Beg Dedication

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Adopting a resolution which stated, "It would cheapen the memory of a man, most deserving, to importune anybody to do his memory a simple justice," the Harding Memorial Association today postponed "for the present," dedication of the imposing memorial built here in memory of the late President Warren G. Harding.

The resolution opposed the action of the Ohio Republican party convention in naming a committee to arrange for dedication of the Harding tomb, which was built in 1926. Formation of the committee made "further steps inadvisable if the ceremonies are to be free of political intercession," it added.

The resolution, presented by Harry M. Daugherty, Attorney General in the Harding Cabinet, said: "A belated dedication is not necessarily a reflection upon the dead, but a dedication grudgingly giveh is a compliment neither to the dead nor to those who participate in the ceremonies.

"Now the American people, as a people, have never been swayed by the lip of libel or the tongue of slander and their devotion to his memory and their judgement of his virtue and merit is the final answer and appropriate reward of his labors.

"More than half a million people made their contributions to this beautiful monument to his enduring memory * * * And when more than 75,000 persons each month stop at this monument to partake of the story of the lives of those who rest there, the foam of falsehood will soon cease to scare the timid or ambitious and all will be well in the future."

The association reelected its officers, including: Calvin Coolidge, honorary president; J. S. Frelinghuysen, president; Hoke Donithen, secretary, and A. W. Mellon, treasurer.

Trade Board Lauds Post For Loan Shark Expose

Resolutions commending The Washington Post's recent expose of loan shark activities in the District of Columbia were unanimously adopted yesterday at the first fall directors' meeting of the Washington Board of Trade.

The resolution was introduced by Claude Owens, and a motion to adopt it was made by E. C. Brandenburg, a past president. The text follows:

"The directors of the Washington Board of Trade desire to commend the action of The Washington Post in exposing the situation regarding usurious loans in the District of Columbia.

"The directors do so particularly because they regard the action of The Post in gathering these data and then turning them over to the proper authorities for prosecution as a high type of journalism, as distinguished from any effort to place the press in the position of public prosecutor.

"This is a splendid example of how the press can cooperate with honest local government officials and encourage the morale and efficiency of the various municipal departments entrusted with the public welfare."

Grimes Pokes Fun, But Foxx Pokes Ball Into Bleachers

By H. I. PHILLIPS.

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 6.—With both teams going into the ninth inning today without a score, the situation called for a try for a field goal. When Jimmy Foxx came to the plate, the game closed under the head of baseball and opened under the head of football.

Jimmy put one over the goal posts for a home run, driving in Mickey Cochrane ahead of him and winning a contest that looked more like a Congressional filibuster.

It is now three games to two in favor of the Philadelphia Athletics, but with the supporters of each team tied 50-50 in the matter of heart palpitations.

It was one of those old time thrillers that had the fans clutching for restoratives every inning.

Mr. Grimes, the Cardinal ace, was pitching sweet baseball and appeared to have the situation well in hand until overconfidence got the best of him and he started dividing his time between pitching and wisecracking. Grimes is a great pitcher but only a mediocre wisecracker.

Calling Mickey Cochrane "Mule Ears" and making derogatory motions in the direction of Mr. Cochrane stirred Mr. Cochrane into making a homer, which cost Mr. Grimes the game in Philadelphia last week. Today Mickey didn't show any ire, but Mr. Fox seemed to resent it very deeply.

Grimes was so busy taunting Mickey that he gave him a base on balls. Whereupon Jimmy Foxx stepped up

NEW WIRE-TAPPING CHARGES ARE DENIED

SENATOR SCOUTS LETTER

(Associated Press.)

New wire tapping charges were filed against the Senate campaign funds committee yesterday and brought an immediate countercharge from Chairman Nye of an attempt "to drag a red herring" across the committee's trail.

Charles E. Matson, of Lincoln, Nebr., sent a letter to Vice President Curtis and to the press complaining that the Senate committee had refused to investigate a charge he made that alleged Federal officers were tapping the wires in Nebraska of those leaders supposed to be unfriendly to Senator Norris in his campaign for renomination as a Republican.

Seantor Nye (Republican), North Dakota, as chairman of the campaign funds committee, replied with the statement that he had called Matson when the committee was in Lincoln recently and that he failed to respond. He added that Matson would be subpenaed the next time the committee went to Nebraska.

The committee is planning to return to that State to resume its inquiry into the filing of the second George W. Norris, a Broken Bow grocer, against Senator George W. Norris for the Republican nomination.

"There is a persistence in dragging a red herring across the trail and to conceal the worthwhile things resulting from the committee's investigation," Senator Nye said in response to the Matson letter. "In the case of Mr. Matson, I had communicated with him as he says and we wanted to hear from Mr. Matson at Lincoln. During the first two or three days of our hearing there it was our understanding that he was in the courtroom, but when his name was called on the last day, he failed to respond.

"Mr. Matson was one of those accused by Miss Alton of being a frequent visitor at the political headquarters presided over by Victor Seymour, and when the committee resumes Mr. Matson will be subpenaed to testify regarding his connection with the Seymour campaign and afforded his opportunity to lay his charges of wire tapping before the committee."

Senator Nye in a previous exchange of correspondence with Matson vigorously denied the charge of wire tapping, as he did a similar complaint made against the committee by Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Matson said in his letter he had informed Senators Nye and Dale, of Vermont, that W. L. Nelson, a night clerk at the Lincoln Hotel, and a Mr. Parsons, of the Lincoln Telephone & Telegraph Co., would testify that a man representing himself as a Federal officer, had asked permission to tap the telephone wires leading into the rooms of guests of the hotel.

Despite the fact that additional hearings were held in Nebraska, Matson said, the witnesses were not called "nor did they subpena me to give such information as I had on the subject."

Leaving notes for friends in which he indicated that he did not think it worth while to live the life he had prolonged for others, he shot himself. Recently he had been overworked and a vacation had failed to bring him back to health.

Dr. Schmidt had worked on Steinach's principles for the pas ten years, performing hundreds of Steinach's operations to stay the effects of age on men. Much of his work had been with Dr. Harry Benjamin, of New York, who recently sojourned in Berlin.

11 Face Indictments On Drug Law Charges

Eleven indictments charging violation of the Harrison narcotic law were returned yesterday by the District grand jury, four involving four persons alleged to have been implicated in a gigantic dope ring which was broken up here, New York City, and other places several weeks ago, when agents made a simultaneous swoop.

Peter D. Agistono and Joseph Anzolone were jointly named in one bill, while Robert Janney and his mother, Josephina Harris Graham, also were jointly named. Separate indictments also were returned against Janney and his mother. All four are alleged to have been arrested in a drive on a house on New York avenue northwest near Ninth street.

Text of Hoover's Speech Before Labor Federation

The address of President Hoover before the convention of the American Federation of Labor in Boston yesterday was as follows:

Members of the American Federation of Labor:

In his invitation that I should address you on this occasion President Green spoke in terms of high praise of the benefits to labor from the Nation-wide cooperation initiated at the White House last November for mitigation of the effects of the present depression.

At those White House conferences the leaders of business and industry undertook to do their utmost to maintain the rate of wages. They also undertook in case of shortened employment to distribute work as evenly as possible over their regular body of employes. The leaders of labor undertook to urge effort in production and to prevent conflict and dispute. The public officials and the managers of industry and utilities undertook to expand construction work to mitigate unemployment.

We have now had nearly a year in which to observe the working of these arrangements. These, the first undertakings of this character in our history, have been carried out in astonishing degree. There are, of course, exceptions, but in the large sense our great manufacturing companies, the railways, utilities and business houses have been able to maintain the established wages. Employers have spread their employment systematically. For the first time in more than a century of these recurring depressions we have been practically free of bitter industrial conflict.

Cooperation Is Cited.

The fine cooperation in the providing organized emergency employment through Federal, State and municipal public works and utility construction has been an important contribution in taking up the slack of unemployment. The measure of success is easily demonstrated. The Department of Commerce reports to me that public works and the construction work by the railways and utilities in the last eight months amount to about $4,500,000,000, as compared with about $4,000,000,000 in the same period of the boom year of 1929, or an increase of about $500,000,000. In all previous depressions these works decreased, so that the gain is more than even the apparent figures.

We have thus had nation-wide cooperation and team play which have greatly ameliorated the hardship of this depression. These measures have served as a practical system of unemployment insurance. There are some unexpected by-products. Through distribution of employment, large numbers of workers have been saved from being forced into competition for new jobs; the sense of security that the job is theirs by part-time employment has contributed to relieve much of the fear, despondency, and discouragement that come to men and women in search for new jobs in hard times.

I would indeed be remiss if I did not express an appreciation, in which I know you share, to the thousands of men in leadership of business and labor who have served in bringing about these results. In the face of decreasing prices it has required great courage, resolution, and devotion to the interest of their employes and the public on the part of our great manufacturers, our railways, utilities, business houses, and public officials.

Labor Efficiency Never Higher.

The leaders of labor have likewise contributed their part. Our freedom from strike and lockout is well evidenced by the statement of the Department of Labor that in the last depression there were more than 2,000 labor disputes, many of them of major character and accompanied by great public disorder, as compared with less than 300 disputes in this period, and these mostly of minor character. And the great body of labor itself deserves much praise, for never was its individual efficiency higher than today.

The undertakings made at that time represent a growing sense of mutual responsibility and a willingness to bend private interests to the general good.

We still have a burden of unemployment. Although it is far less than one-half in proportion to our workers than in either England or Germany, no one can contemplate its effect in hardship and discouragement without new resolves to continued exertion and to further effort in solution of our greatest economic problem—stability in employment.

Your chairman has spoken of my interest in the development of an American basis of wage. Both the directors of industry and your leaders have made great progress toward a new and common ground in economic conceptions, which, I am confident, has had a profound effect upon our economic progress during the last few years. That is the conception that industry must be constantly renovated by scientific research and invention; that labor welcomes these labor-saving devices; that labor gives its full and unrestricted effort to reduce costs by the use of these machines and methods; that the savings from these reduced costs be shared between labor, employer and the consumer. It is a philosophy of mutual interest. It is a practice of cooperation for an advantage that is not only mutual but universal. Labor gains either through increase of wage or reduction of cost of living or shortened hours. Employers gain through enlarged consumption, and a wider spread distribution of their products, and more stable business. Consumers gain through lower cost of what they buy. Indeed, mass production must be accompanied by mass consumption through increased standards of living.

New in Economic Life.

A conception of this sort does not at once find universal application. We ought not forget that it is something new in the world's economic life. And there are, of course, those who do not yet believe. It is as far apart as the two poles from the teachings of the economists of 100 years ago, who took it for granted that the well-being of the worker could be purchased only at the expense of the well-being of the employer or some other group in the community, and further that wages could never rise above subsistence or the number of workers would so increase as to pull the weaker back into the cesspool of poverty.

If we survey the Nation broadly we shall find that the diffusion of cost economies between wages, profits and prices has worked out fairly well. In fact, due to competition and the necessity to average profits over the losses of lean years, industry in the national sense is probably today getting the least of the three.

Inventions Intensify Problems.

From the acceptance of this basis of industrial relations I believe America is making more progress toward security, better living, and more hours of leisure than those countries which are seeking to continue doles of various kinds which limit the independence of men. Any comparison of the situation of our labor with the labor of those other countries, whether in times of high prosperity or today in times of temporary depression, should carry conviction that we are on the right track.

No system is or can be free of difficulties or problems. The rapidity of our inventions and discoveries has intensified many problems in adjusting what we nowadays call technological unemployment. I am cooperating with President Green and representatives of employers' associations in an exhaustive inquiry into its various phases. If we stretch our vision over the last ten years, we shall find much to convince us that the problem is not at all insurmountable in the long run. It is estimated by some of our statisticians that in this period over 2,000,000 workers have been displaced from older industry due to labor-saving devices. Some way, somehow, most of these were reestablished in new industry and new services. Nor is there any reason to believe that we can not revolve our economic system in such fashion that further new discoveries and inventions will further increase our standard of living and thereby continue to absorb men who are displaced in the older industries. Nevertheless there is a period of readjustment in each case of new discovery, and industry has need of a larger understanding of the facts.

It is this process of readjustment that partly causes our present difficulties in the bituminous coal industry. In that industry the encroachments of electrical power, of natural gas, of improvements in consumption, have operated to slow down the annual demand from its high peak, leaving a most excessive production capacity. At the same time, the introduction of labor-saving devices has decreased the demand for mine labor. In addition to its other difficulties must be counted the effect of the multitude of 6,000 independent mine owners among 7,000 mines, which has resulted in destructive competition and final breakdown of wages.

All these conditions have culminated in a demoralization of the industry and a depth of human misery in some sections which is wholly out of place in our American system. The situation has been under investigation of our Government departments, by Congress, together with commissions and committees of one sort or another, for the past 10 years. The facts are known. One key to solution seems to me to lie in reduction of this destructive competition. It certainly is not the purpose of our competitive system that it should produce a competition which destroys stability in an industry and reduces to poverty all those within it. Its purpose is rather to maintain that degree of competition which induces progress and protects the consumer. If our regulatory laws be at fault they should be revised.

Stability the Big Problem.

But most of these problems are problems of stability. With the job secure, other questions can be solved with much more assurance. You, as workers, know best of all how much a man gains from security in his job. It is the insurance of his manliness, it upholds the personal valuation of himself and his family. To establish a system that assures this security is the supreme challenge to our responsibility as representatives of millions of our fellow workers and fellow citizens. The discharge of that responsibility does not allow present difficulties to rob us of our clear vision or the wholesome faith and courageous aggressive character for which our country has been long the leader of the world.

The demonstration of nation-wide cooperation and team play and the absence of conflict during this depression have increased the stability and wholesomeness of our industrial and social structure. We are justified in feeling that something like a new improved tool has been added to the working kit for the solution of our future problems.

No one would invite either war or business depression, but from them may come some new inspirations. We find in these times courage and sympathy, generous helpfulness from our work people to those unfortunates suffering not alone from the present but from fear for their future. We find inspiration in the courage of our employers, the resolution of the Nation that we shall build steadily to prevent and mitigate the destructiveness of these great business storms. It is this inspiration which gives confidence for the future and confirms our belief in fundamental human righteousness and the value of our American conception of mutuality of interest in our daily work.

20 Persons Hurt In Texas Tornado

Relief Forces Battle Way Over Three-Strewn Roads to Find Other Victims.

Crockett, Tex., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—More than twenty persons were believed injured and numerous farm houses were demolished late today by a tornado which struck Houston County, skirting Crockett and centered on a farming center near Latexo. As Crockett hospitals began filling, relief forces battled torrential rains and tree-strewn roads seeking other victims.

The tornado cut a swath of undetermined length. It first hit 5 or 6 miles southwest of here and was known to have extended 1½ miles northeast of Latexo. Its path was from 200 to 300 yards wide.

Crockett was in darkness tonight as power and telephone lines were out of commission. The twister followed a torrential rain. Crops over a wide area were reported destroyed and losses were expected to run high.

Ladies' Watch Reported Stolen.

Charles W. Heider, of 1402 Massachusetts avenue northwest, reporting for Mrs. Mamie Frentress, of that address, yesterday afternoon told police that a ladies' watch valued at $35 had been stolen from the residence at that address. A former roomer was named as the suspected person.

Law books valued at $50 were stolen from the home of William A. Bailey, 630 Twelfth street northeast, according to a report he made to the Ninth Precinct police yesterday.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS TO LEGION, LABOR

URGES LAW RESPECT

"my eminent predecessor," to whom he gave credit for carrying through "with great success during his administration" the Kellogg-Briand pact for outlawing war.

After the conclusion of Mr. Hoover's address, when former President Coolidge was presented to the convention by O. L. Bodenhamer, commander of the legion, the audience arose en masse and applauded.

Through a demonstration lasting more than a minute, the legionnaires clamored for a speech by the past President. While the Vermont banners waved vigorously, held far above the others, and Mrs. Coolidge sat and shook her head smilingly at her husband in the belief that he should not speak, Mr. Coolidge remained quiet.

Makes One-Sentence Speech.

Finally, rising slowly from his seat as the tumult gave no indication of abating, he advanced to the microphones and stilled the applause, saying:

"To save the time of this convention, I am going to give you one sentence:

"You have paid your debt to Lafayette, but you still owe a debt to yourselves and to the United States of America."

President and Mrs. Hoover joined in the applause as Mr. Coolidge sat down and they again clapped their hands when Mrs. Coolidge was introduced, with cries for a speech once more ringing through the hall.

Afterward Mr. Bodenhamer told the convention that he had given his solemn promise to Mr. Coolidge that he would not be called upon to speak.

Gen. Pershing on Platform.

On the President's right on the platform sat Gen. John J. Pershing and to his left, Mr. Bodenhamer, who introduced Mr. Hoover. Allen Hoover, youngest son of the President, who is attending Harvard, also was on the platform near his mother.

Prolonged applause greeted Mr. Hoover when he arose to speak and, after all the others had sat down, the Iowa delegation remained standing and to their favorite son sang:

"He's from Iowa, Iowa,
We'll have you understand;
He's the first man in the land,
He's from Iowa, Iowa,
That's where the President's from."

They were rewarded with a smile from the President.

The Legionnaires laughed with the President as he opened his address by telling them that he ventured to claim from some years of service during the great war, a measure of comradship with the men who fought, and that he understood their variety of French perfectly.

Respect for Law Urged.

The first applause broke forth as he asserted that "you realized that liberty and freedom can be won on the battlefield, but they can be held only by ordered government in peace."

"We need the teaching that the foundation of government is respect for law," the President said. "A quickened interest on the part of the community can insist upon proper enforcement of law, can arouse public opinion, while any condition of lawlessness remains unchecked in that community."

Turning to international affairs, Mr. Hoover said: "The maintenance of respect requires that we sustain a preparedness for defense that is impregnable, yet that contains no threat of agression."

Sees Defense Safeguarded.

He said the United States had safeguarded its defense by "parity with the greatest naval power in the world" under the London naval treaty, but by limiting its strength "we have given demonstration to the world that we seek no domination, but only adequate defense * * *."

"We know that there is no financial, traditional or military imperialism in the American heart. We know, in fact, that we have opened the door of a new social and eionomic system by which, within our own borders, we shall create the conquest of poverty without exploiting other nations."

Girl Record Flier Hits Bad Weather

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Unfavorable weather forced Laura Ingalls, St. Louis aviatrix, to stop here today on an attempt to set a new transcontinental flight record for women, after completing a hop from St. Louis. If conditions improve overnight she plans to take off for the West at 6 a. m. tomorrow, with Wichita, Kans., as her next stop.

Miss Ingalls left Roosevelt Field, N. Y., yesterday morning and remained at St. Louis last night. She took off at 10:31 a. m. and arrived here at 12:49 (C. S. T.). A light rain was falling and visibility was poor. After receiving reports that there was a low ceiling at Wichita she decided to delay her take-off.

Her flying time from New York was computed by the aviatrix at 11 hours 45 minutes. When she reaches the Pacific Coast she plans "to take a swim in the Pacific" and start back.

There has been much talk of "buyers' strike," induced by fear of hard times, and this has been substantiated by mounting totals of bank deposits—funds that have been diverted from normal expenditures . . . There is now no urgent necessity of providing for a "rainy day," and the best assurance of universal employment and prosperity is a resumption of previous spending habits. Text of Hoover's Speech Before Legion Convention

My Fellow Countrymen:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I am able to meet here with the American Legion.

I hope I may venture to claim from some years of service during the Great War, a measure of comradship with the men who fought in that war. I understand your variety of French perfectly. I know from intimate experience, and I intend to hold in confidence, the first reaction you had from a passing shell, and the homelike appearance of shell holes under certain circumstances. I shall maintain secret your opinion of those who profess indifference to or the glory in passing bullets, or insects, or the mud and filth of the trenches, or days and weeks in the wet and cold.

The glories of war are not in the heartbreaks of passing buddies and the thousand tragedies of the battle line. Its glories do not lie in its surroundings—they lie rather in the spirit, the sacrifices, the devotion of those who go cheerfully and courageously into the trenches, and the ultimate triumph of those lofty ideals for which they gave their all.

It was inevitable that men who lived through that great common experience, who had engaged in supreme adventure with death, should combine into associations of lifelong comradeship. Yet was not alone the comradeship of high adventure that instinctively called your organization into being. It was the common understanding which war called forth, the common experience from which sprang the highest emotions of patriotism—that shoulder-to-shoulder companionship in an idealism which transfigured men's lives.

Witnessed Legion's Birth.

The millions who shared in that experience came home from it rededicated to the further service of their country. But great as was that service, performed under impulse of the high emotions of war, the service to the great ideals of peace is ofttimes even more difficult and ofttimes requires more sustained courage. It was, therefore, with deep sympathy that I witnessed the birth of the American Legion in France in 1919.

At that memorable meeting you sensed this high purpose and expressed these lofty ideals of your peacetime service in the preamble to your constitution, which reads in part:

"To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, State and Nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth, to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness."

It is my purpose to speak upon some of these ideals and purposes, for idealism must be translated into cold realism of the day-to-day task of citizenship.

At the moment you made that declaration, you sensed an imperative national need. You foresaw that the aftermath of war would be a period of change, a period of disturbed mind, of loosened moorings; a period when evil forces among men might lead to violence and crime; a period which demanded understanding and wise restraint if the basis of all society and all progress were to be maintained. You realized that liberty and freedom can be won on the battlefield, but they can be held only by ordered government in peace. You realized, in fact, that without ordered government the very sacrifices which you had made the fruition of your high hopes, your endurance, your courage, might come to naught.

World Still in Unrest.

Eleven years of experience in our own country and in every country engaged in that war have proved the need of that inspiration to active citizenship. It has been a period of readjustment, a period of challenge to democratic institutions, a time when the world has had to contend with a greater mood of violence. Even today nearly one-half of the population of our globe is in a state of great unrest or a state of revolution.

Among these ideals was: "To promote peace and good will upon earth." Those indeed were courageous and constructive words at the moment when the guns had barely been silenced and the fires of hate were still burning fiercely. They were the words of brave men, of the soldiers from the trenches, men who respected a courageous enemy, who in clear vision saw that the future hope of the world lay in good will, not in hate. It was the real feeling of men who had fought and who knew the dreadfulness of war.

In that statement you gave no glorification to war. It was a pledge to peace based upon freedom and justice, and without this civilization itself must fail. It was a statement neither of pacifism nor militarism.

Real peace in the world requires something more than the documents which we sign to terminate wars. Peace requires unremitting, courageous campaigns, laid with strategy and carried on successfully on a hundred fronts and sustained in the spirit and from the hearts of every individual in every town and village of our country.

In the great intangibles of human emotion, respect is inseparable from good will. The maintenance of respect requires that we sustain a preparedness for defense that is impregnable yet that contains no threat of aggression.

On International Justice.

You have maintained that the development of good will also requires the firm establishment of confidence in our sense of international justice. This becomes of double importance from us because of the overpowering strength of our country in its relations with many nations. We have to remember that during the great war we demonstrated not only our military power but also our ability to quickly organize it and the valor to use it. After the war the disturbed condition of the world made it necessary to increase our defense establishment beyond the prewar basis. Above all, we made a more rapid recovery from the vast losses of the great war than other nations in the world. Our national income has expanded to embrace more than one-third of the whole commericial world. As a result we have become a dominant economic power. Our citizens have spread their trade and finance into every corner of the earth. From these tremendous happenings in our country some leaders in other countries came to believe that they were in the presence of the birth of a new imperial power intent upon dominating the destinies and the freedom of other peoples.

Such a conclusion would be the logical deduction from many instances during 3,000 years of history when the exploitation of other people has been the outcome of the ability to do so. This we know is an utter misconception of America. We know there is a desire to do justice and not exploitation. We know there is no financial, traditional or military imperialism in the American heart. We know, in fact, that we have opened the door of a new social and economic system by which within our own borders we shall create the conquest of poverty without exploiting other nations. But as wrong as these fears may be, it becomes our first duty to show by our every act, not alone by our Government but by our citizens, that our guide is justice and that confidence may be reposed in that sense of justice.

The day-to-day practical preservation of peace and good will requires that we build up and support agencies for pacific solution of controversies. It requires that no one of us shall entertain suspicion or ill will toward other peoples, that we give them no cause for the most dangerous of all emotions—that is, fear. It requires that every American shall realize that men and women of other nations have the same devotion to their flags and are as sensitive to the dignity of their country as we.

Two Momentous Victories.

On this road to peace we have attained two momentous victories. The first of these is the Kellogg-Briand pact. By the London naval agreement we have silenced the high dangers of competitive naval building and have safeguarded our defense by parity with the greatest naval power in the world. We have assured the maintenance of an efficient Navy as the first line of defense. By limiting our strength we have given demonstration to the world that we seek no domination, but only adequate defense.

The peace of our country has never stood more assured than at this moment. The realization of your ideal to promote peace and good will through active citizenship is the greatest guaranty of its continuance.

The first high purpose you express is to uphold and defend the Constitution and to maintain law and order in the United States. Happily, your ideal is my first and most sacred duty. As President of the United States I am sworn by the whole people to maintain the Constitution and to enforce the laws. No man should dare call himself a faithful American and suggest otherwise. You have recognized that the upholding of the Constitution and the enforcement of the laws must, however, not rest upon Government officials alone; it must rise from the stern demand and the loyal cooperation of good citizenship and individual responsibility to the community.

One of the primary obligations of citizenship is national defense. Our people have been traditionally opposed to a large standing army in times of peace. The Nation needs a regular Army, highly developed in training and technical services, as a nucleus for the training of citizen soldiers and to lead them in times of emergency. We have always relied on our citizen army, and never relied in vain, but its maintenance is again the voluntary service of good citizenship. Your association has taken large interest in provision for better industrial mobilization. You have been greatly interested, and I have lately signed an act creating an inquiry into the methods by which the economic burdens of war shall fall with equal weight upon every element of citizenry. It is not equitable that one citizen shall profit by war while another makes the supreme sacrifice.

Nation Has Been Grateful.

One of your expressed ideals was that of "mutual helpfulness." In your solicitude for your comrades disabled both in war and in peace you have kept that faith. Nor has a grateful Nation failed in its duty. In addition to hospitalization, rehabilitation, war-risk insurance, adjusted compensation, and priority in civil service, the Government has undertaken through disability allowances to provide for some 700,000 veterans of the World War. Our total outlays on all services to World War veterans are nearing $600,000,000 a year and to veterans of all wars nearly $900,000,000 per annum. The Nation assumes an obligation when it sends its sons to war. The Nation is proud to requite this obligation within its full resources. I have been glad of the opportunity to favor the extension of these services in such a manner that they cover without question all cases of disablement whether from war or peace. There is, however, a deep responsibility of citizenship in the administration of this trust of mutual helpfulness which peculiarly lies upon your members, and that is that the demands upon the Government should not exceed the measure that justice requires and self help can provide. If we shall overload the burden of taxation, we shall stagnate our economic progress and we shall by the slackening of his progress place penalties upon every citizen.

There are many other responsibilities of the individual in his "obligations to the community, the State, and the Nation." The very beginning of such obligation is at the ballot box. The whole plan of self-government presupposes that the whole people shall participate in the selection of its officials, the determination of its policies, and the maintenance of its ideals. Anything less than this involves government by the minority.

Voting a Patriotic Duty.

Your own expressed fears of "autocracy of either classes or masses" can well come true unless the individual citizen takes at least his share in the burden of government. He can not hope to escape tyranny, he may not safely trust that "right will be the master of might," unless he is willing to respond to the right and duty to go to the ballot box. When he does not insist upon purity of elections he has lost democracy itself. Beyond this, if right shall be the master of might, every citizen must be on guard against the invasion of our guaranteed liberties even by public officials.

You have insisted that we shall "safeguard and transmit the principles of democracy.' We have seen the erection of many new democracies during this period since the war. We have seen some of them fall by the wayside—some to strong men and some to the mob. Strange new doctrines are presented to us in alluring language. Self-government is being questioned. We in America have proved it the surest lift to the common man. We have grown and prospered under it for 150 years. We believe in it. There is no greater service to the world than that we should hold and strengthen it. It is grounded upon the ideal you have set for yourselves—the obligation of the "individual to the community, the State and the Nation."

During these years your thousands of posts have concerned themselves with these ideals of citizenship. My purpose today is to urge you to renewed efforts—that you, as the American Legion, as a group of men who, inspired by the ideals of our country, went to battle to preserve those ideals—that you should renew and expand your mission of citizenship.

Essentials of Good Will.

We need the teaching of the essentials of good-will toward other nations in every community—that the foundations of peace arise from the sense of justice within the citizenry of a nation, in the good-will which they individually evince toward other peoples.

We need the teaching that the foundation of government is respect for law. A quickened interest on the part of the community can insist upon proper enforcement of law, can arouse public opinion, while any condition of lawlessness remains unchecked in that community. You can impress upon the citizens that the road of self-government is through the discharge of our obligations at the ballot box; to understand that the basis of defense is a willingness to serve in our citizen soldiery; actively to participate in these and a multitude of duties of citizens—all are an inseparable part of the safety and progress of the Nation.

You have a post in every town and every village. These 11,000 posts are organized into divisions with State and national commanders. You are already an army mobilized for unselfish and constructive endeavor. Your strength is made up of men who have stood the quality test of citizenship. You have it in your power to do much. Through your local posts you can awaken the minds of the communities throughout our Nation to a higher ideal of citizenship. You have an exceptional interest and an exceptional opportunity in the front line of citizenship to cooperate and preserve the fundamentals of our Republic.

WICKERSHAM GROUP DRY REVIEW LOOMS

MEMBERS URGING ACTION

(Associated Press.)

New reports on prohibition confronted Chairman Wickersham, of the Hoover Law Enforcement Commission, as he returned to his desk yesterday to preside over the opening meeting of the group tomorrow.

While studying the statements of private investigators of the prohibition situation Mr Wickersham said he would wait until the commission had assembled before seeking to map out a program.

Already a movement has been started within the commission to have it go to the heart of the prohibition problem. There seemed little doubt last night that a thorough examination of prohibition would be made. [illegible] to have the commission [illegible] on this controversy also was expected.

The prohibition reports have been described as "interesting and illuminating" by some of the commission members, but there is no sign of any definite proposal coming before the commission regarding this issue.

Until all the reports are digested and the commission has studied them, Mr. Wickersham said there was little likelihood of any concrete action.

"You never can tell," he smiled, "what kind of a blossom will bloom until the plant develops."

However, with prohibition persistently creeping into various political campaigns this year, more interest is being shown by political leaders in the work of the commission.

Mr. Wickersham said that with such a voluminous job ahead there was little prospect of the commission completing its task within the next six months.

All of the commission members are expected for the opening meeting tomorrow. Several are here already and it is conceded by this group of early arrivals that prohibition is occupying much of the advance discussion.

Man Seriously Injured When Vehicles Collide

Russell B. Gotshall, 22 years old, of 215 Fifteenth street southeast, was seriously injured yesterday morning when the truck which he was driving collided with a Washington Railway & Electric street car at Twenty-second and P streets northwest.

Gotshall was taken to Emergency Hospital in a passing automobile, where his condition is said to be undetermined but serious. W. A. Hammel, 57 years old, of 2600 Dana street northwest, the operator of the street car, was also slightly injured and received treatment from a private physician.

MUTINY IS REPORTED ON BRITISH WARSHIP

40 Under Arrest Near Nice and 50 More Exceed Limits of Leave.

SOME RETURN CHEVRONS

London, Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Mass insubordination and some desertion from the British superdreadnought Revenge, now lying in the Golfe Juan Harbor, near Nice, are reported in a special dispatch which the Daily Herald will print tomorrow. The admiralty declared that no official report has yet been received.

"Serious trouble with the crew is reported to have broken out aboard the British battleship Revenge," said the Daily Herald correspondent. "It is stated that 40 sailors are under arrest on the vessel and that nearly 50 others have overstayed their leave in Nice and Cannes.

"Complaints have been made by the men that discipline on board the Revenge was too strict and that the food was poor. Sailors assembled on the quay are said to have hissed an officer of the battleship as he walked along the quay on Saturday night.

"This was the beginning of the trouble. A number of men who had overstayed their shore leave are stated to have returned their badges and chevrons to the ship. Their photographs have been handed to the French police with the request that they be arrested.

"An inquiry was opened aboard the Revenge this afternoon by Vice Admiral W. A. H. Kelly, second in command of the Mediterranean fleet. The Revenge is his flagship. The vice admiral has just returned to the Revenge from sick leave."

Rear Admiral Dewar, who was dismissed from the battleship Royal Oak after a sensational court-martial and is now a Labor candidate for Parliament, said, when he was shown the Herald's dispatch: "Dissatisfaction in the navy, in nine cases out of ten, is due to the feeling among the men that they have no right to make complaints. However perfect discipline may be, there is the risk of injustice and discontent unless the men feel that they can state their cases without fear of reprisals.

"Naval regulations are about 200 years behind the times on the subject of complaints. After the Royal Oak case the admiralty issued new regulations. They are more reactionary than the old ones. I can not understand the suggestion of bad food. The navy, as a rule, is well fed."

GROUP IN ARLINGTON TO MAP VOTE DRIVE

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

With Tuesday, November 4, set by Circuit Judge Walter T. McCarthy for an election on the question of a change in the form of the county government, the committee on legislation and legal action of the Arlington County Civic Federation, of which Robert N. Anderson is the chairman, announces that it will meet tomorrow night in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce at Clarendon to formulate plans for an intensive campaign of education among the voters.

Chairman Anderson stated that in addition to the members of the committee, the local team captains who had charge of circulating the petitions requesting the court t set a date for the election have been invited to attend.

The committee made a study of the question for many months and its report with recommendations was unanimously adopted by the civic federation. The local team captains have been invited to attend the meeting, as the committee members take the view that they are in a better position to inform the committee what opposition if any resulted in their campaign for signatures to the petition.

Addressing the monthly meeting of the Fort Myer Heights Citizens Association last night in the Woodrow Wilson Schoolhouse on the Government change proposal, Arthur Orr, member of the Civic Federation committee, sponsors of the movement, gave a comprehensive outline of the project.

Mr. Orr, after discussing the various forms available as a result of the acts of the legislature, stressed the advantages of electing the five members of the county board at large, an action which will abolish the present three magisterial districts and treat the county as a unit. Electing the members by districts as provided in the petition calling the election, which will be established by the court with as near equal population as possible, will give very little, if any, improvement over the present form, Mr. Orr stated.

The association voted to hold a mass meeting Monday night, October 27, at the schoolhouse to give the voters of Rosslyn voting precinct all possible information on the question.

Declaring that the continued drought is making conditions dangerous to the homeowner who still is depending on his well for a water supply, Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, said yesterday that wherever it is possible connections to the county water system should be made without further delay.

Many wells in the county are now dry and large numbers will be dry unless the drought is soon broken and, to those who still maintain their wells, Dr. Chichester stated that with heavy rains the wells will fill up with surface water, which is most dangerous to use unless boiled.

Beginning Sunday, October 12, and continuing through Sunday, October 19, a mission will be conducted at the St. Charles' Catholic Church at Clarendon by the Rev. Xavier Center. Services to which the public is invited will be conducted both in the morning and evening, the hours to be announced.

Meeting yesterday at the courthouse, Robert H. Forman, zoning administrative officer, and County Engineer C. L. Kinnier and J. Hammond Brewer, chairman of the County Zoning Appeal Board, considered the drafting of a number of amendments to the present zoning ordinance.

Prior to presenting the proposed amendments to the county board of supervisors for its approval, Mr. Forman stated that it is planned to have them considered by Allen Saville, zoning engineer of Richmond, who had charge of drafting the present zoning ordinance. He hopes to present them to the board of supervisors at its meeting October 15.

Mr. Forman said that a public hearing will be held, the date of which the board will advertise when the amendments are presented to it.

Because of pressing needs for the rooms which have been occupied by the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Rees Building at Clarendon for business purposes, the chamber is now in the offices of the Brumback Realty Co., three doors away, but in the same building.

Pursuant to its policies recently adopted to extend the water lateral mains as rapidly as possible where the property owners have signed applications showing that 50 per cent or better of the cost of the frontage is provided for, the county board of supervisors will meet in special session today to receive applications which County Engineer C. L. Kinnier has received since the board's last meeting.

The Lyon Village Woman's Club will hold its monthly social meeting tomorrow night at the home of Mrs. Louis C. Carl in Lyon Village.

The case of R. J. Burlesque, who is charged with illegal possession of liquor as a result of a raid conducted by Sheriff Howard B. Fields on his place of business Saturday night, yesterday was continued until Thursday by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas. Burlesque is out on $1,000 bond.

Pleading guilty to a charge of destroying evidence to be used in the prosecution of a violation of the prohibition laws, Isaiah Saunders was held for the action of the grand jury yesterday by Judge Thomas. James Walker, who pleaded guilty to a charge of illegal possession, was also held for the action of the grand jury by Judge Thomas. Bond in his case was fixed at $500.

The Edward Douglas White Council, Knights of Columbus, will give a benefit card party tomorrow night in the auditorium of St. Charles Schoolhouse.

Mary Washington Chapter No. 50, Order of the Eastern Star, announces that it will hold a dance Friday night in the Lyon Park Community House. Dancing will begin at 9, continuing until midnight. Music will be furnished by Les Colvin's Orchestra.

The Washington-Lee High School opened its second year of night classes last night with an enrollment of 92 students. Indications are that it will exceed the 100 mark by the end of this week, according to an announcement by the principal, S. P. Vanderslice.

Classes will be held Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights from 7 to 10 o'clock. Each class will be for a one-hour period.

Courses will be offered in all branches of high school English, mathematics, chemistry, physics, Spanish, history, mechanical drawing and commercial law.

The classes will continue throughout the 1930-1931 school term with a faculty of ten teachers.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE more you think of Postmaster General Brown the more he compels admiration.

It has been political gossip for months that the man was sitting over a sizzling political fire. Now has he done one single thing towards squelching it? Why, instead, you would get the impression that Mr. Brown is so obtuse as not to be aware of it, were it not for the very clever way in which he further intrenched himself when the reorganization of the Republican national committee was effected recently.

It is the very disregard with which he moves in the face of the hostile currents that intrigues us. He seems to be giving them enough to politically hang him, and is so disingenuous about it all.

* * * *

CONSIDER now the naive way in which his First Assistant, Mr. Arch Coleman, acting in Brown's absence, explains away the President's fears over reports that have come to him of the Postoffice Department cutting off men and curtailing service.

Just some little economies being effected, Mr. Coleman says, without any one being hurt or inconvenienced. His letter, made public by the White House, seems to reflect surprise that an inquiry had been made.

Now, when the department deals so complacently as this with a matter that is about to run some congressmen crazy, their inclination is to take the department and shake it by the neck.

* * * *

BECAUSE the little economies that Mr. Coleman speaks of involve cutting down the number of mail deliveries and collections all over the United States and if the complaints that are flooding the representatives are true, or approximately so, are causing a lot of postal employes to be discharged.

Mr. Coleman's letter said that no one was being let out, that it was simply a case of not replacing those men who had retired.

Regardless of how it is working out, the representatives are being overwhelmed with squawks from men who at least think they are losing their jobs and from business men who are protesting vigorously against the curtailed service.

* * * *

IN the face of this, the Postmaster General blandly awarded a mail contract the other day to a firm whose bid greatly exceeded that of another bidder, and the hostile elements on Capitol Hill have made careful note of this. The award to the greatly higher bidder was made possible by the simple insertion of a specification requiring six months' experience in night flying, which the lower bidder did not have. There is no such requirement in the law.

Now it may very well be that Mr. Brown very properly leaned to the higher bidder because it was an established, going concern, that has done much pioneering in aviation. It would seem quite logical for the Government in subsidizing aviation to pass out its subsidies where it believes aviation will be done the most good.

But whether this is what influenced Mr. Brown or not he offered no explanation at all and as the record of the transaction appears the hostile elements on Capitol Hill have another count against him.

* * * *

THERE is that so-called scandal about postal leases that he seemingly did not even have to get into.

But he issued a report the other day glibly explaining the matter away when, as a matter of fact, his own report gives the Senate investigators just what they want.

He explained in that same disingenuous way that while the Government was not paying any excessive rentals on postoffice buildings the professional lessors had issued bonds on these buildings in excess of their valuation, but that amortization was guaranteed because of the leases to the Government.

The man is a wonder. He reminds us a lot of former Postmaster General Burleson—the more people clamored for his scalp the more determined Wilson was to keep him in the Cabinet.

DIED.

Power Projects Letters Revealed

Three States' Protests Led to Mitchell Ruling, Commission Says.

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Power Commission yesterday made public letters from the Governors of Tennessee and West Virginia and the Virginia Conservation and Development Commission protesting the assumption of jurisdiction by the commission over proposed power projects on nonnavigable streams.

The commission announced the letters served as "the principal factor which brought about the recent ruling by Attorney General Mitchell as to the limited character of the commission's power on nonnavigable streams."

The tenor of the letters was that the question involved the soverignty of the tSates and their rights to control their own domestic affairs. They hel that the limit of the commission's power under the Constitution extended "to the minimum regulation necessary for the protection of navigation as it affects interstate commerce."

residential section, Mr. Bush's home being within a quarter of a mile of the new British Embassy and in the neighborhood of the Norwegian Legation and dthe Naval Observatory.

Although the shooting took place close to the Bush residence and in a thickly settled neighborhood, no one apparently heard the reports of the gun or else mistook them for the backfiring of an automobile.

FAIRFAX TEACHERS TO GO TO INSTITUTE

Board of Education Gives Leave to All; Tuition Fees Up Again.

POLICE WEEK-END BUSY

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The monthly meeting of the Fairfax County school board was held yesterday in the board room at the Fairfax courthouse. A resolution was adopted providing that all teachers who attend the District H Teachers Institute, to be held on Friday, October 24, at Warrenton, Va., would be excused from teaching that day without any reduction of their salaries. Those who do not attend the institute will be expected to conduct their classes as usual.

A letter was received from Divisional Superintendent R. C. Bowton, of Alexandria, addressed to Superintendent W. T. Woodson, of Fairfax, relative to pupils attending the Lee-Jackson School who live in the corporate limits of Alexandria. In his letter Superintendent Bowton states: "I note that there are fourteen pupils who reside in Alexandria, who are not taxpayers in Fairfax County. I wish you would notify these pupils at once that I will not pay tuition for any of them. However, if they wish to attend Lee-Jackson you will have to look to them for individual tuition." He also states: "We take care of pupils who are from Arlington and Fairfax Counties whose parents are taxpayers in Alexandria."

The Fairfax board appointed Trustee Herbert Williams, of Providence district, as its representative to interview Superintendent Bowton to find out if satisfactory arrangements could be worked out in this case. Williams was instructed that if an agreement could not be reached the pupils will either have to pay their tuition or be barred from the school.

Another problem before the board was that of the congestion of the various schols in the county, especially at Forestville. To meet this situation the board authorized the divisional superintendent and the district trustee to employ additional teachers, as they see fit, where such congestion exists.

A large delegation of patrons of the Fairview School near Burke Station, which is overcrowded, appeared before the board asking for an additional room and a teacher. It was the sense of the board that the alternative plan worked out by Superintendent Woodson, which provides that the school bus now transporting children from Belle Aire by the way of Donovan's Corner to the Fairview School, should be started from Donovan's Corner taking school children from there by the way of Belle Aire to the Burke School. This would take many of the children attending the Fairview School to the school at Burke.

The application of several colored families for tuition for their children attending high school in Alexandria and several other applications for transportation of colored school children in various sections of the county were not allowed by the board.

Bills totaling $7,096.35 for last month's expenses were ordered paid as well as the Vienna School bond of $1,366.34 out of the Providence district special fund.

Two Washington youths, Kenneth Lawson, 21, and Marvi Drake, 20, are in the Fairfax Jail as the result of the story of two Washington girls, one 13 and the other 14 years old. The men are being held on a charge of criminal assault. The alleged assault was supposed to have taken place Saturday night on a country road near McLean. The youths were apprehended late Sunday night by Sheriff E. P. Kirby and Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity.

Floyd Huber, 13, of Falls Church, ran afoul of the law yesterday when he was arrested by Town Sergt. Walter Mitchell on the complaint of the principle of the Madison School, Miss Nancy G. Edwards, who said he was carrying concealed weapons. Sergt. Mitchell states that the boy confessed to entering the home of a Mrs. Dooring on Great Falls street Saturday morning and taking a small revolver. He will have a hearing tomorrow afternoon in the Juvenile Court before Judge A. C. Ritchie, of Fairfax.

Three persons were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Paul Herrman and Town Sergt. Mitchell during a raid on a house on Cherry Hill, in Falls Church. They were taken before Justice of the Peace John T. Moling at Falls Church. Maude Ford, the tenant of the house, was fined $50 and costs for running a disorderly house, and Beatrice Lee and Thomas Dicks were fined $15 and costs for being drunk.

George Sutphin, of Fairfax, was arrested in the town of Fairfax by County Traffic Policeman A. W. Mills, on a charge of driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. A preliminary hearing was held before Justice of the Peace Thomas P. Chapman, who held him for the grand jury at the November term under a $500 bond.

D. E. Bailey, of Alexandria, was arrested on the Washington-Richmond highway at Snake Hill charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, by County Policeman Lewis L. Finks. He was held for the grand jury by Justice of the Peace Arthur D. Kirby, at Groveton. H. H. Cockerll of Alexandria, who was arrested at the same time was fined $10 and costs for being under the influence of liquor.

Other arrests made by the county police were: Howard Erdman, of Baltimore, Md., for passing other cars on a curve at Woodlawn was fined $10 and costs by Justice of the Peace Harry Shepherd at Accotink; R. S. Norris, of Berwyn, Md., arrested for reckless driving on the Lee highway between Fairfax and Falls Church was fined $10 and costs by Justice Moling at Falls Church; Neal D. Snyder, of Washington, at Tyson's Cross Roads for reckless driving by Policeman L. L. Finks, was taken before Justice Chapman at Fairfax and fined $10 and costs.

The Fairfax Garden Club will meet this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Richard Farr. I. N. Anderson, manager of the Glebewood Gardens at Balston, will give a talk on rock garden plants and perennials.

The Women's Auxiliary of the Fairfax Volunteer Fire Department will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock in the courthouse, according to an announcement made by its president, Mrs. James E. Nickell, who declares this meeting is to be one of the most important business meetings ever held by the auxiliary.

The Woodlawn School League has elected Mrs. John Dixon president; Miss Mary Talbot, vice president; Walter Shepherd, secretary, and Mrs. Richard Hinton, treasurer. John Dixon was appointed chatirman of the school ground improvement campaign. Ways and means of raising money for the school and for the school library were discussed, including plans for a play to be given next month. Every member of the league was appointed a committee of one to secure books for the library.

The Women's Guild of the St. John's Episcopal Church at McLean will serve a luncheon this afternoon from 12 to 1 o'clock at the farm sale on the Cliff Laughlin farm, near McLean.

Mrs. Amos H. Chilcott, vice chairman of the Fatirfax County Democratic executive committee, has called a meeting of her precinct committee women for tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Large District Forest Fire Hurts One, Menaces Homes

One fireman was injured, nearly a score of houses were threatened and approximately 50 acres of woodland burned over yesterday in a forest fire described as the largest occurring within the District in the last ten years.

The fire was discovered shortly after 12:30 o'clock between the Metropolitan branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and Sargent road northeast. Trees and underbrush were burning over several acres before No. 17 engine company arrived on the scene, but about 25 homes and barns were saved from the flames, which cast a pall of smoke over the entire Northeast section and part of the Northwest.

William Carter, 1626 G street southeast, a fireman of No 17 engine company, was taken to Casualty Hospital after he had been accidentally struck in the groin with an ax wielded by another fire fighter. His injuries were not regarded as serious.

The flames were well under control last night, but it was decided to keep an engine company at the scene all night.

INTERNATIONAL ROAD CONGRESS IS OPENED

ADDRESS BY STIMSON

Beneath the massed flags of 60 lands, whose delegates have assembled here from every corner of the globe to harmonize views for a world-wide highway network, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson formally opened the Sixth International Road Congress yesterday morning in an address visualizing international peace and prosperity through international cooperation.

In this first gathering of the organization outside of Europe more than 600 foreign delegates, members of various diplomatic corps and persons from every part of the Nation provided an audience of more than 2,000 at this initial plenary session as a preliminary to business meetings in two sections to open this morning at the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. One gathering will study road construction methods and the other group will consider questions of maintenance and finance.

A major event in connection with the congress was the signing fo a convention by representatives of twenty Pan-American nations in a subsequent meeting for the regulation of international automotive travel throughout their territories. It was immediately hailed as a tremendous step toward linking the poples of the Americas in a gigantic highway system that should effect harmony and good will throughout the Western Hemisphere.

Stimson Sees Peace Guaranties.

"It is to the unselfish spirit of international cooperation, so finely exemplified in this Congress, that we must look for the basic guarantees to the future peace and prosperity of the world," declared Secretary Stimson.

"The outstanding lesson of the present world situation, a lesson which nations are too apt to forget, is that the prosperity of each is dependent on the prosperity of all and that in the long run no nation can develop its own national well-being at the expense of another.

"It is unnecessary for me to emphasize the intimate relation between improved road communication and national prosperity, nor need I point to the larger social consequences that flow from the greater accessibility of country to city and city to country, which follows as a direct result of improved highways."

Roy D. Chapin, president of the American Organizing Commission, which President Hoover appointed to make arrangements for the assembly, as the temporary presiding officer, sounded the urgent need for increasing road building programs as a means of giving additional employment to labor and relieve unemployment.

Sees Opportune Time Now.

"This is a particularly opportune time that we have met, for every nation is seking fields for the productive use of labor," he asserted. "What better way is there to add to the wealth and prosperity of the country, the individual and the family than by an immediate and widespread increase in the road-building program?

"This even is significant in that it is the first meeting of this organization held in the Western Hemisphere. There are in attendance delegates from more countries than ever have convened before in any congress. Look upon our highways and the traffic over them as a laboratory and take away what you find to be good. We have spent vast sums in highway building during the last fifteen years and our objective constantly has been to secure a dollar's worth of roads for every dollar spent."

Mr. Chapin, formerly president of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, was elected president general of the congress, and was unanimously elected president of the permanent international commission, whose acting president has been Edmond Chaix, member of the French delegation.

Continents Won Neighbors.

"What a sign of the time," declared Mr. Chaix in a brief address in which he commented on the shift of the convention to Washington after meetings during 22 years in Europe. "Continents which once seemed so far apart are now almost neighbors. Speed, conquered at the cost of superhuman efforts, has abolished distance, or at least tends each day to curtail it more and more and to draw nations nearer to each other. We, builders of modern roads, are among the principal factors of this speed, which is a source of economic wealth by facilitating and hastening transportation, by economizing time or rather by employing it to a better advantage."

Responses were made by members of various delegations, followed by a principal address made by Thomas H. MacDonald, c hief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture, selected yesterday as secretary general of the permanent international commission, who stressed the importance of the work ahead of the convention in cementing international amity.

Germany Next Meeting Place.

Announcement was made that Germany has been selected unanimously as the next meeting place of the road congress, possibly in Berlin, and that a prize of 4,500 francs for an essay on "Highway Construction, Administration and Finance" had been awarded to Edwin W. James, chief of the division of highway transport of the Bureau of Public Roads.

The Pan-American automotive convention was signed for the United States by former Assistant Secretary of Commerce J. Walter Drake, chairman of the Pan-American session of the road congress. The agreement now before the signatory governments for ratification grew out of a proposal for uniform automotive traffic regulations made to the 1929 Pan-American Highway Congress in Rio de Janeiro. Its provisions include international registration of motor vehicles, driving certificate requirements, right-hand passing and uniformity of road signs.

Important, Practical Step.

"The signing of the convention marks an important practical step in bringing the peoples of the Pan-American countries into closer relations and understandings through the medium of modern motor transportation," declared Mr. Drake in an address. "The countries whose representatives have signed have said, in effect, 'the gate at the frontier is open, the latchstring is out.'

"The convention represents a tremendous gain for those countries, not only in the economic and social advantages toward which its operation will assist, but in a larger sense, it is a demonstration of enduring valuable friendships between the Pan-American countries and the peoples and of their willingness and eagerness to meet upon the common ground of practical affairs in the intertats of closer acquaintance and understanding."

Signatory Nations.

The signatory nations, in addition to the United States, were Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, Guatemala, Honduras, Mexico, Nicaragua, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Salvador, Uruguay and Venezuela.

The international exposition and demonstration of road construction and maintenance equipment and materials, offered by the American Road Builders Association, will open this afternoon at the Washington Auditorium. Actual demonstrations will take place at Rock Creek and Potomac parkway, between Virginia avenue and K street northwest.

The congress will continue its sessions throughout this week.

CENSUS SUIT TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

Atlanta's Fight on Returns by Bureau Occasions Lengthy Hearing.

HOUSTON PLEA IS DENIED

After a lengthy hearing, Justice Frederick L. Siddons in District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday took under advisement the suit for mandamus filed recently against W. M. Steuart, director of the census, by the City of Atlanta, which seeks to compel the defendant to publish its population at 360,692 instead of 270,367.

In taking the case under advisement the justice gave the plaintiff three days in which to submit briefs and also allowed the Government an additional three days to answer with its briefs.

Prior to going into the merits of the Atlanta case Justice Siddons refused to permit the City of Houston, Tex., and the Houston Chamber of Commerce to intervene as defendants. Houston in its petition claimed that if Atlanta were given the figures it asked Houston would be irreparably injured in that it would be dethroned from its position as second city in the South.

The hearing of the case on its merits evolved about the construction of the act of the Georgia legislature by which the municipality of Atlanta was created with a number of boroughs. Defense attorneys claimed that the attitude of the census director absolutely defeated the plan of borough government.

Atlanta was represented by Attorneys C. Bascom Slemp, Louis Titus and Ralph B. Floharty, of Washington, and James L. Mayson, city attorney of Atlanta. The Government was represented by Assistant United States Attorney John W. Fihelly and a number of Department of Commerce solicitors.

Girl Killed, 11 Hurt In Three Car Crashes

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Oct. 6.—Miss Elizabeth Stuart, 34, and Mrs. Elizabeth Vincent, 39, both of Roanoke, Va., were seriously injured in one of three automobile accidents late yesterday in Gilmer and Braxton Counties near Burnsville, in which a girl was killed and eleven injured. They and five others are in a Weston hospital.

The girl victim was Estelle Dennison, 14, of Copen. She was returning from a picnic at Falls Mill.

Moved or Moving?

The new apartment may have more and larger rooms, or the new house may be on a pleasanter street—but there is one regret that the family which has enjoyed the comforts of the American Ice Service will have in leaving the old home. The punctual calls of the friendly American Iceman will be missed.

But the American Iceman who serves the new neighborhood will be just as reliable and the ice just as pure and sparkling. So whether you move blocks away or just around the corner, you can have at all times an unfailing supply of this crystal-clear ice.

TWO SCHOOLS CLOSE WHEN WATER FAILS

Hagerstown Reservoirs Go Dry, Affecting Chewsville and Smithsburg.

MANY HOMES CUT OFF

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 6.—Two schools were closed and scores of families between Smithsburg and Hagerstown were without water today as a result of the Smithsburg and Edgemont reservoirs, owned by Hagerstown, going dry. It was the first time in half a century the reservoirs have gone dry, attesting to the seriousness of the drought in this section.

Hagerstown, however, was not affected, its new $2,000,000 pumping station of the Potomac River supplying this city with plenty of water. After the erection of the Potomac River plant the mountain water was used as a reserve supply

Reservoirs Held Out.

During the water famine the reservoirs supplied about half the amount of water Hagerstown needs, but the new pumping station is capable of supplying a city twice Hagerstown's size.

The Smithsburg High School, which depends upon the Edgemont reservoir for its water supply, and the Chewsville School, were both closed today, but the board of education hoped to find a new water source and planned to open the schools in several days if such could be found.

Families living on the pike, along which the main from the reservoirs to this city passes, were hauling water for their needs today. Increased pressure was put upon the Potomac River pumps to supply the eastern section of the city, which was using reservoir water, but in one street, the elevation was so great that it was impossible to pump the water to many homes.

Brunswick Seeks Spring.

In the meantime Brunswick, which has been pumping water from the Potomac River since springs that town owns in West Virginia went dry several weeks ago, is looking for a new source of water and a mass meeting has been called, when citizens will meet with the mayor and council Brunswick is considering the purchase of a spring on the Elizabeth Yourtee Farms at Brownsville, Washington County, which has kept flowing during the drought and which produces at the rate of 820,000 gallons each day.

Representatives of the State Board of Health inspected the spring today. Brunswick, if it purchases the spring, will be forced to pipe the water a distance of five miles to its own main

Petersburg Fair Gets Under Way

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 6.—The tenth annual Petersburg Fair opened this afternoon when all children were admitted free and there were a large number of them on the grounds. The fair will continue during the current week and closing Saturday night. A large number of exhibits for the various departments were received today.

The merchants of the city have fine exhibits of their wares in the auditorium and on the grounds are exhibits of machinery of almost every description. The fair officials declare that the display of fireworks each night will be the most elaborate and beautiful ever seen at any previous fairs of the association.

The fair promises to be very largely attended by people from Petersburg and Hopewell and the counties of southside Virginia, as well as the delegates to the grand lodge Knights of Pythias of Virginia, which convenes in annual session here tomorrow.

PLEAS MADE TO CUT ACREAGE IN COTTON

Southwide Movement Begun in Alabama Meeting; Notables Attend.

FARM BOARD ASKS IT

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A South-wide movement to reduce cotton acreage was started here today with the indorsement of 50 leading farmers, industrialists and bankers of Alabama and representatives of the Federal Farm Board. The conference, called by Gov. Bibb Graves at the request of the Federal Farm Board, in session at the Statehouse, went on record favoring acreage reduction to place production on a basis with world consumption.

A resolution was adopted directed at a Nation-wide restriction of cotton planting to 40,000,000 acres as a measure toward relieving the present depressed price of the staple and to put cotton production on a profitable basis for the farmer.

Gov. Graves opened the conference with a plea for the Alabama cotton farmers to be the leaders in the movement to curtail production at least 25 per cent. J. O. Thompson, of Roba, Ala., and a staff representative of the Federal Farm Board, said that the conference was for the purpose of removing the first obstacle faced by the Federal Farm Board, that of overproduction of the staple.

Lawrence Meyers, of the United States Department of Agriculture, produced charts which showed the price of cotton had declined steadily since the middle of 1929, and that it has reached its lowest since 1920, with the exception of one year, 1925.

C. F. Sarle, of the Federal Farm Board, advocated an increase in cotton consumption, which, he said, should increase the price. He predicted that business conditions would improve because of cheap money, cheap raw materials and cheap labor.

Trial on Kidnaping Accusation Is Set

Mary Frances McClenny's Case Will Be Heard October 22.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Trial of Harry Dickerson, filling-station attendant, on charges of taking and secreting Mary Frances McClenny, young Richmond girl, was set for October 22 in Henrico Circuit Court today. No member of the McClenny family appeared when the case was called on the docket.

Dickerson, who has a wife and child in Tennessee, was sought by police and private detectives for ten days after the disappearance of the girl here in July. The two returned to Richmond after a week's stay in a cottage at Waynesboro, Miss McClenny going home and Dickerson surrendering to police. Miss McClenny, who is 20 years of age, issued a statement that she went with Dickerson voluntarily and with knowledge that he was married and not divorced.

H. N. Dickerson, brother of Harry, and Johnny Ledbetter also will be placed on trial October 22 on charges of aiding in the secretion.

Girl, 4, Drowned In Swimming Pool

Carpenter Nearby Is Told of Accident by Her Small Playmate.

Gale Trundle, 4-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Americus Trundle, of Carroll Springs Sanitarium, Forest Glen, Md., was drowned yesterday morning when she slipped into a swimming pool on the sanitarium grounds.

The child's body was taken from the shallow water by Charles W. Hurley, a carpenter working nearby. The first he knew of the accident came when little Billy True, who had been sailing boats with Gale, sauntered up and casually mentioned that his playmate had fallen in the pool. He seemed unable to comprehend what had happened.

Hurley took the little girl to the sanitarium, where Drs. Rufus Thompson and C. W. Mitchell tried vainly to resuscitate her. Both the child's parents were in Washington at the time.

BRITTEN TO SPONSOR HELIUM LAW REPEAL

GREAT QUANTITY IN U. S.

(Associated Press.)

In an effort to avert future aircraft disasters abroad, Chairman Britten, of the House naval affairs committee, announced yesterday he would sponsor legislation at the next Congress to permit exportation of helium for use in dirigibles of foreign governments.

Voicing the opinion that the disaster to the British dirigible R-101 would not have occurred had the noninflammable helium been used instead of hydrogen gas, Mr. Britten said he favors either permitting foreign governments to establish plants in the United States or increasing the facilities of this country so the product can be sold abroad at cost.

The United States is the only country in the world possessing helium in unlimited quantities, but present law prohibits its exportation. Records of the Bureau of Mines indicate the present producing capacity of Government plants greatly exceeds the military demand for the commodity.

Moffett Urges Law Repeal.

Mr. Britten made his announcement after Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, had urged repeal of the present law to permit helium to be sold in peace time to all nations, especially to Great Britain and Germany. He added that the extent of the R-101 disaster "is undoubtedly due" to its having been inflated with hydrogen gas.

Lieut. Comdr. C. E. Rosendahl, who was on the American naval dirigible Shenandoah when it collopsed in 1925, expressed the opinion that the loss of life on the R-101 and the complete loss of the ship "must be charged primarily to hydrogen whatever led to the crash."

Ships With Helium Defended.

"Regardless of the cause of the British dirigible disaster, the loss of the R-101 does not condemn the modern helium-inflated rigid airship."

"We in the United States," he continued, "can never be too thankful to Providence for our bounteous supply of helium.

"It is through its agency that the airship project will go on to a successful attainment and through it the fleets of modern airships of the near future will perform their appointed tasks over the ocean expanses of the world."

Hoover, Stimson Send Condolence

President Addresses King and Secretary of State, Premier MacDonald.

(Associated Press.)

The official condolences of the American Government and personal expressions of sympathy by President and Mrs. Hoover and high Government officials were sent to England yesterday for the disaster of the R-101.

The President's message, expressing also "the deep sympathy and grief of Mrs. Hoover," was sent to King George. Secretary Stimson sent a personal message to Prime Minister MacDonald, a friend of the Secretary's. Acting Secretary of War Payne and F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, sent official messages of sympathy. At the same time Secretary Stimson instructed the American Embassy in London to express to the British foreign office the sympathy of the Government.

Ambassador Edge at Paris advised the State Department that a representative of the embassy had visited the scene of the disaster and had expressed to British authorities there the sympathy of the American Government. A similar expression was conveyed by Ambassador Edge to the British Ambassador at Paris.

STOWAWAYS, ONE A WOMAN, MAY HAVE PERISHED ON R-101

early in the morning. Radcliffe had previously been reported dead, but was only in a coma.

Two errors combined to cause the fluctuations in the official list. The first was the early erroneous announcement of Radcliffe's death. This raised the total to 48. The police denial yesterday lowered it again to 47. Then Radcliffe's death this moring carried it back to 48.

The second error was cleared up tonight by Air Commander F. V. Holt, who is conducting an investigation for the British air ministry.

He said, in stating that only 46 bodies had been recovered, that there had been a mistake in putting one of the bodies into two coffins. The body, partly consumed by fire, had fallen apart and the sections had been placed in separate coffins.

Baffled by Cause.

A vast mass of twisted steel upon a storm-swept hillside failed to divulge to investigators of the British and French governments today how the world's largest dirigible airship met disaster here.

Tonight, after officials had pried and hewed their way into the enormous bulk of the stripped and broken carcass, they seemingly were no nearer to a solution of the greatest air catastrophe of all time than when dawn yesterday first brought them a sight of the still flaming ruin.

Nor did any of the 48 bodies, so pitifully charred that they all looked alike, give up the secret of the sudden, tragic ending of a voyage that had been projected as an 8,000-mile trail-blazing round-trip to India. A few personal effects of the passengers and crew were found today. These served little purpose in the baffling work of attempting identification of the victims.

Find Woman's Shoe.

From the survivors, whose number had been decreased by the death of one early today, was pieced together the only story of events within the great craft leading up to her destruction.

That one and possibly two stowaways, one of them a woman, were on the R-101 became a prospective development of the inquiry being directed for England by Air Commander Holt, after the finding of a dainty woman's shoe with a buckle among the debris.

This discovery seemed to throw light upon a discrepancy between the number of dead and survivors and the airship's official passenger list. Certainly it complicated the puzzle over which the French and English investigators labored today.

Questions Before Probers.

A further complication was the finding by peasants of metal pieces 5 miles from where the airship drove her nose into a hillside and exploded. These bits were picked up along the route which the R-101 had taken to her point of grounding. Experts gave them careful attention in an effort to determine their bearing upon the accident. Engineer Harry Leech, on duty as pilot when the disaster occurred, said the craft had hit the ground once or twice before crashing to a full stop. It is possible that parts were torn away in that manner.

Several questions were formulated in the minds of the probers. Some of them were:

Did the metallic structure give way before the ship came to earth, as might be shown by the finding of the bits of metal?

Did not the ship take fire when flying over the region of Beauvais and before coming to earth, as declared by one of the riggers, S. Church, an engineer of the Royal Airship Works?

Was the R-101 simply swept to earth by a squall such as struck the fateful spot again today and nearly took the investigators off their feet?

National Mourning Today.

While the probe was going on today, Premier Tardieu proclaimed a national day of mourning on Tuesday for the victims. The bodies, which had been laid out in a hall, today were placed in coffins and borne into Beauvais from the little suburb of Allonne. They were carried to the city hall. In the great cathedral tomorrow Bishop Lesenne will say a mass in their memory and then they will be removed to Boulogne, there to be placed on British destroyers and borne home for a solemn service of commitment in St. Paul's Cathedral on Friday.

The service here will bear some of the depth of sorrow that the British feel over the deaths of such conspicuous figures as Lord Thomson, the popular air minister; Sir Sefton Brancker, director of civil aviation; Wing Commander R. B. B. Colmore, director of airship development, and others similarly situated in government and aviation circles.

The possibility that identification of all the dead might remain an impossibility confronted the investigators throughout the day. It appeared tonight that all would go unnamed upon the British ship for return to their bereaved families. The city authorities awaited anxiously tonight word from some English family which might clear up the identity of the extra person above the official total.

Bad Weather Blamed.

This afternoon, during the midst of their operations about the scene of the crash, weather which suggested that the disaster might have been due to no mechanical defect or fault in navigation, but brought on by the elements alone, caused one of the English commission to say, "It is no wonder that the airship succumbed."

Suggestion that the R-101 disaster was caused by structural weaknesses were scouted today by J. D. Worth, chief engineer of the Norwich concern, which fabricated the structure and hull of the airship.

"The suggestion that the R-101 revealed weakness on her earliest flights is entirely without foundation," he said. "Indeed, the ship's structure never at any time gave a moment's anxiety. The sole purpose in lengthening the ship was to increase the disposal of the load, and the enlargement of the R100 has been contemplated with the same end in view."

HELIUM TO BE USED BY NAVY'S ZRS-4

Dirigible Under Construction Will Have Safety Devices Unknown to Rivals.

READY NEXT SUMMER

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Safety devices unknown to any other dirigible are being built into the Akron-ZRS-4, the Navy's giant airship now nearly half finished here.

Use of helium as the lifting gas is seen as the greatest safety factor. It is noninflammable, minimizing fire danger, and it permits housing the engines in large rooms in the hull of the ship for the first time, making them readily accessible to repair and overhauling with the dirigible in flight.

The swivel feature of the eight propellers is another important safety factor. The great ship can be more easily maneuvered in adverse winds.

The Akron—ZRS-4 can be kept in air by use of dynamic lift, it is calculated, which results from flying at a slight angle of pitch to compensate for an extreme case of losing more lifting power through large ruptures in gas cells than can be compensated by jettisoning ballast.

The possibility of a gasoline fire is considered to be no greater than in an automobile, but fire-proofing precautions will be taken. The engine rooms will have fireproof walls, the entire ship will be ventilated and electrical connections will be gas-tight.

The whole metal framework will be banded together as a Faraday cage, rapidly dissipating a lightning charge.

Construction started a year ago and it is to be completed by next summer. The dirigible will be 785 feet long with a diameter of 133 feet. It will have eight engines and a volume of 6,500,000 cubic feet.

DESTROYERS TO GET BODIES OF VICTIMS

England Makes Plans for Return of Those Killed in R-101 Blast.

FRANCE TO PAY HONOR

London, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Although still stunned by the magnitude of the disaster which wrecked the dirigible R-101 in France early yesterday, Great Britain went ahead today with plans for returning the bodies of the victims to England for burial.

Two destroyers, the Tempest and the Tribune, are scheduled to leave early tomorrow morning for Boulogne-Sur-Mer, where a special train will bring the bodies from Beauvais.

After ceremonies at the docks by French officials, the warships will begin the return trip across the Channel about 2 p. m., arriving in Dover at 11 p. m. (7 p. m. E. S. T.). At this port the coffins will be placed aboard a special train for London and will reach Victoria Station about 10 a. m. Wednesday.

Plans for the funerals have not been decided definitely. It is known, however, that a memorial service will be held at St. Paul's Cathedral.

In the meantime the air ministry is taking steps for an inquiry into the cause of the disaster. A preliminary probe now is being made at the scene of the crash, but the full and final investigation will be conducted in London.

Aviation authorities who have viewed the wreck refuse to make statements concerning their conclusions, preferring to wait until the court of inquiry is convened.

Today's London papers were full of speculation as to the causes of the wreck, but no official statements have been made.

MR. HOOVER ON LABOR.

President Hoover's message to labor, delivered at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Boston, was one of optimism. The President believes that American industrial and labor leaders are moving steadily toward a solution of unemployment. He passed lightly over the quack remedies that are being advocated in this country and tried out in many other countries, and reasserted his faith in the cooperation of industry and labor for the advancement of both.

Only the bituminous coal industry was given specific mention. Mr. Hoover suggested "reduction of destructive competition" as one key for the solution of its problems. "If our regulatory laws be at fault," he said, "they should be revised." This statement may be significant, but it is applied to only a single industry. For industry as a whole the President advocated no new legislation. He sees in the movement to stabilize wages and employment through joint action of industry and labor—through the acceptance of a new economic philosophy—a superior way of handling these problems.

Mr. Hoover's optimism for the future is justfied by the results of his stability conferences last November. Generally speaking, wages have been maintained at their previous high level. Dismissal of employes since the depression began has been minimized, and construction work has been stimulated. Labor has done its part by preventing disputes and strikes. This achievement stands out in sharp contrast with foreign disturbances, and with the strikes, wage-slashing and wholesale discharge of workmen that have marked past periods of depression.

The President sees labor imbued with a new spirit. Intelligent workingmen no longer resent the introduction of labor-saving machinery in the factory; nor the application of science and invention to the work of the world. They recognize that machines relieve them of toil, and increase their productive capacity many fold. Finally, they expect the profits of this new system to be shared with them as wage earners and as consumers. This is the philosophy, the President puts it, of mutual interest. In this trend he detects "a growing sense of mutual responsibility and a willingness to bend private interests to the general good."

Mr. Hoover did not evade the question of unemployment insurance, but he skipped over it as something beside the issue. "America is making more progress toward security, better living, and more hours of leisure," he said, "than those countries which are seeking to continue doles of various kinds, which limit the independence of men." In another paragraph he referred to the "Nation-wide cooperation and team play" in the interest of stable employment, and declared that "these measures have served as a practical system of unemployment insurance."

The United States can not afford to make the mistake of subsidizing idleness as other countries have done. At best unemployment insurance is a negative approach to the subject. America is already well on the way to solution of unemployment through the operation of sound economic law. It is absurd to assume that the country has more working capacity than it has work to be done. The solution lies in an adjustment that will more adequately divide work among the available workmen, and the distribution of a larger share of profits to labor so that consumption demands may be maintained and the workman may take his rightful position in the economic and social life of the Nation.

President Hoover has contributed much to this conception of the unemployment problem. In doing so he has made the cause of the workingman more hopeful than it has ever been before. If labor takes a long-range view of its own progress, it will throw its strength behind this movement to stabilize employment on a sound economic basis.

THE ROAD CONGRESS.

No place is so appropriate for the assembly of the international road congress as the Capital of the country that has motorized the world and made good highways a modern necessity. This is the first of the six world-wide conferences on highway problems to be held in the United States, and for that reason, if for no other, it will probably be the most significant.

The delegates from 60 nations are welcome to Washington and to America. The United States will eagerly supply the eminent engineers with complete data on every phase of road building in this country; traffic experts will make their findings available, and State highway officials will contribute their experience in financing road construction. In return America will be glad to receive from the foreign delegates all suggestions concerning the science of transportation.

Most of the delegates come to the United States primarily to learn. They recognize that this country has progressed far beyond any other in the extension of highways, as in other means of transportation. Twenty-five years ago the American people were relatively immobile. They had built only 155,000 miles of improved highways, and operated only 25,000 automobiles upon them. Today they have in use more than 600,000 miles of improved highways and almost an equal mileage of other roads, over which they operate more than 26,000,000 motor vehicles. Travel is now one of the fixed habits of American life. Motorists range over the whole country with greater ease than was possible a few years ago in traveling between neighboring cities.

Yet it is not to be supposed that the United States has nothing to gain from this international conclave. The program is not confined to technical questions of highway building. It includes questions of administration and the effect of roads on human life. "Wrapped up in their deliberations," said Roy D. Chapin, president of the American organizing commission for the congress, "is the social and economic future of their children, of yours and of mine. Fundamentally, these highway engineers are the vanguard of modern life."

To a large extent the economic progress of the world and the unfolding of civilization are dependent upon the extension of highways. What has been done in America in the last 25 years can be done in Europe, South America, Asia, Africa and Australia. A greater length of time will doubtless be required, but each new step will give the movement momentum. New markets will be opened up to millions of people. Trade will be stimulated and a way will be opened for the infiltration of ideas. Production will be encouraged, demands will increase, and the standards of living will consequently rise. Such progress will redound not only to the benefit of the country immediately concerned and to the United States, capital of the motor world, but to every nation.

TWO REPORTS ON MUSSOLINI.

Diametrically opposite reports concerning Premier Mussolini of Italy have just appeared, one from the pen of Frank R. Kent, of the Baltimore Sun, and the other written by George Seldes. Mr. Kent based his article upon a personal interview with Premier Mussolini. Mr. Seldes seems to have taken his inspiration from Italian emigres exiled in Paris.

The Italian Duce told Mr. Kent that fascism was never stronger than at present, and that it was destined to displace the old parliamentary system in Europe. He described the novel plan of parliamentary representation now in effect in Italy. On the subject of disarmament he spoke very frankly. "Disarmament is impossible in Europe," said Mussolini. "No one wants war; no one can afford war. We in Italy are opposed to war. We want peace. But disarmament is not practicable, not possible now. Perhaps later, when treaties are revised and European conditions change, disarmament will come, but not now. It can not come now. But war will not happen."

These remarks bear the stamp of authenticity. They give reassurance as to the pacific intentions of Italy's premier, and they also afford a refreshing contrast to the hypocritical pretenses put forth by certain other European statesmen, who talk disarmament while carrying on plans for greater armaments.

Mr. Seldes, not having the advantage of personal contact with Italy's spokesman, lends a willing ear to extravagant predictions by the disgruntled Italian emigres. They assert that Mussolini's regime is crumbling; that he "will not last a year;" that Italy is well-nigh bankrupt, and can not float a loan that is needed; that the country is seething with revolution, &c.

The two articles give a good illustration of reliable reporting by a man who gets his information at first hand, and the peddling of gossip by a man who listens to the irresponsible talk of the boulevards.

WILL CHAIN STORES SURVIVE?

Speaking before the Boston conference on retail distribution, Mrs. Christine Frederick, household efficiency expert, condemned the chain store on the ground that it made retailing "too mechanical." Retailing, she says, has recently been pushed so far in a scientific purely mechanistic direction that the modern retail store has become little more than an automatic vending machine. The result is that the women of America are about to rise in revolt. The clever merchant will recognize this incipient revolution and prepare to turn it to his advantage.

Representative James M. Beck believes otherwise. In an address delivered before the Chain Store Association convention in Chicago recently, he held the chain system to be an outstanding example of today's mechanical civilization, and predicted that laws designed to thwart its growth would fail in their purpose. In his opinion economic methods of a nation, developed in practical operations of business, will always in the long run triumph over stupid and oppressive legislation.

In these two views of the chain store is to be found an answer to the agitation for legislation to curb their spread. In several of the States antichain store bills have found their way to the statute books, and there is a threat that legislation of this nature will be introduced in Congress during the forthcoming session. The antichain store group has made a vigorous campaign. It has preached the length and breadth of the country the evils of the chain system and it has aroused the public in many localities against the "economic monsters" that drain individual communities of their wealth. But, according to Representative Beck, if the chain store system is economically sound the enactment of laws against it will fail in their purpose.

Mrs. Frederick, however, suggests the possibility that the housewife will revolt against the chain store. The average woman likes to purchase service with commodities. She is flattered by a personal greeting from the storekeeper and she demands individualized attention from the clerk. If the chain store can not render the kind of service the housewife demands it will not last. In the last analysis the fate of the chain store system rests upon the decision of the customer and upon economic law, and not upon the mandate of the legislature.

The two residents of Montgomery County facing trial on charges of selling sawdust for high-grade fertilizer missed their calling. They should have been bootleggers.

SENATE CAMPAIGNING

By Col. EDWIN A. HALSEY,
in the Congressional Digest.

Politics has to be managed just like any business, and the management of politics is done by what are called "campaign committees."

The Democratic senatorial campaign committee does not undertake in any way to direct the State campaign. Its main purpose is to act in an advisory capacity, provide campaign literature, speakers of national prominence, furnish information requested by the candidates and the State committees, and to raise and furnish to the candidates and State campaign committees such financial assistance as is possible under the State laws. Bombarded with questions the senatorial committee endeavors to answer them all, so far as it can.

The committee has been very fortunate, in recent years, in having young and active men at its head. It is particularly fortunate this year in having as its chairman Senator Millard E. Tydings, of Maryland, who acted in this capacity during the last campaign and was also chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Democratic national committee.

The secretary of the senatorial campaign committee has a variety of duties to perform. His principal duty is to keep the chairman of the committee well posted on the multitudinous details which develop during a campaign. The secretary must produce on short notice the detailed information covering a senatorial candidate, or the conditions in each State, or any number of like questions that come up in connection with the campaign.

The keeping of the public record of the senatorial candidates, both in his own party and those of the opposition, is a main feature of the secretaryship. Nothing is ever sent from the committee other than that contained in the public record of the candidate.

The vote of a senator is considered the acid test of his public service and political career. How a senator votes necessarily indicates how he stands on any public question. A record vote is taken in the Senate on all subjects, and a copy of how he voted on these questions is furnished to the candidates when campaign time comes. That the Senate recognizes the paramount importance of the votes of a senator is proved by the fact that at the end of the consideration of each of the tariff bills, the Senate has directed that the votes on all questions pertaining to the tariff be compiled as a public document.

The tariff, unquestionably, is the outstanding economic issue of the present campaign. At the instance of Senator Reed Smoot, chairman of the Senate finance committee, Carl A. Loeffler, secretary to the majority, was by resolution directed to compile and publish all votes on the Hawley-Smoot tariff act (Senate Doc. 117). Mr. Loeffler was also entrusted with compiling the votes on the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922. The votes of a senator, taken in conjunction with his speeches and the history of the bills and joint resolutions he has sponsored, comprise the public record, in the main, of a senatorial candidate offering for reelection. A candidate, other than the incumbent, must depend on his State platform and his own public performances.

TEA AND TOAST.

Just sit me down to toast and tea
And have the jam nearby,
With that no epicure could be
A happier man than I.
What if the cook has gone away
And left the pantry bare?
'Tis good to be alone, I say,
And sup on simple fare.

I'll put the kettle on the fire,
You get the dishes out,
And I'll connect the toaster wire
And place the chairs about.
Let those who will seek banquet food,
It has no lure for me,
On Sunday night I'm in the mood
For toast and jam and tea.

On Sunday night I want no fuss,
The kitchen board will do
One teapot for the two of us,
With you to pour the brew.
Of all the meals I must admit
The ones I like the most
Are those when we alone may sit
And sup on tea and toast.

Come, sit you down. We'll be as gay
As once we used to be
Before we had a cook to pay
To brew our cup of tea.
Though many a fancy meal we've known
Still happiest I am
When you and I may sup alone
On toast and tea and jam.

Diamonds Inspire Little Respect in a Land Filled With Cheap Imitations.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN laws multiply they defeat themselves.

When normal children, full of curiosity and innocent of ethics, adventure in search of knowledge and find every avenue blocked by a parental "Don't," are they impressed by the superior wisdom of adults? Does the fact that so many things are forbidden cause them to dread the perils of the world and feel grateful for the protection of their parents?

You know better. The normal child is too logical and sensible to be fooled by such absurdity. It assumes, quite reasonably, that parents are queer creatures without understanding who see danger and wrong where none exist and have an unaccountable aversion to all activities that afford pleasure.

The child obeys, if it must, but it resents prohibitions that are unreasonable and feels no respect for the source of them.

Observe young people on the threshold of manhood and womanhood. They have acquired a knowledge of ethics and feel competent to direct their own affairs, but still they are surrounded by prohibitions.

Fussy parents, remembering their own youth and no longer tolerant of its tastes and appetites, are filled with suspicion and dread when the youngsters are out of sight. They forbid almost everything. And they are ably assisted by college authorities whose regulations, designed to restrain youngsters who should be in a reformatory, are an insult to those who are decent enough to be worth educating.

Do all of these rules and restraints win the respect of the youngsters? Does their number make them sacred?

You know what happens. The young people, having brains of their own and knowing full well that no rule can make an innocent act wrong, obey only when they must to avoid trouble and resent the foolish restrictions as they despise their author.

You know that is true. You know that sensible people respect only the rules that are respectable and scorn the multitudinous regulations that are unnecessary.

The country's best minds and best lawyers plead for a revision of the statutes to eliminate the thousands that are useless irritants, but the people themselves do nothing.

A great man once lost the Presidency because he said the people didn't have intelligence enough to govern themselves.

How far was he wrong? A tree must be judged by its fruits. Is the present fruit of democracy a proof of sound intelligence?

War in Pennsylvania.

New York World.

Gifford Pinchot is not the kind of Republican that the Vare organization of Philadelphia or the Mellon organization of Pittsburgh, if free to choose, would wish to have established as governor at Harrisburg. He has never fitted smoothly into the political scheme in Pennsylvania as it is understood by the heirs of Quay and Penrose. He has made himself objectionable to the leaders of both factions; although he is the regular candidate of their party, they are not bound to him by ties either of gratitude or loyalty.

But since Mr. Vare and his forces give signs of opposing Mr. Pinchot and so throwing the election to Mr. Hemphill, the Democratic candidate, the Mellon group are the more inclined to take Mr. Pinchot, bitter dose as he is to swallow. For, lightly as they esteem the former governor for his independence and dryness, the Mellons dislike and dread their enemies of the Vare gang. At the worst the Pinchot governorship should be over in two years, but the Keystone State is a magnificent territory for any set of political rulers to keep as a private possession. If the Vares were in power, what could the Mellons expect?

Over a long term of years we have been taught to look to Pennsylvania for an example in harmony, party discipline and 100 per cent Republicanism. But this year the indications point to a war between two bands, with Mr. Pinchot as the appointed victim or pretext and no principles or programs to distract the voters' attention.

Eliza Henning, Gifted Virginia Poet and Author, a Missionary and Western Pioneer, Writes Lynchburg Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In her interesting article in The Post last Sunday, headed, "The Williamsburg Mystery of 1930," Mrs. Gahn quoting one verse of the poem, "Thou art crumbling to the dust, old pile," states that "the author is unknown, but his sentiment well serves through the centuries." The author is very well known. "He" is Eliza Henning, daughter of William Waller Henning, a noted attorney and author of "Henning's Statutes at Large." From him Jefferson acquired a great deal as he did similarly from the Theodorick Bland, whom Mrs. Gahn mentions, and from Dabney Carr.

Eliza Henning also wrote the "White Rose of the Miamis." Her first husband was Robert Goode Spotswood, cousin of Theodorick Bland, and her second husband, a Mr. Schermerhorn, of New York. Her efforts in behalf of Indians in the West induced President Jackson to appoint her husband a Government agent. She took with her from Virginia, the first piano known in the Ohio-Indiana section. Her portrait, one of the most beautiful in Virginia, is within one hour's ride of Washington. She was adored by the Indians for her goodness to them. For beauty, character and intellect Virginia has never produced a woman superior to Eliza Henning.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The street improvement program does not seem to include the widening of M street from Connecticut avenue to Georgetown. Why not? This is a most important cross-town street, and the M Street Bridge makes it more useful than ever. Motor car traffice along M street is very heavy. Chicago Judge Says Drunkenness Among Girls Is Less Than Before Prohibition:

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The wets would have us believe that juvenile delinquincy and drunkenness have increased.

A statement by Judge Bartelme, of the Chicago Juvenile Court, is significant:

"Only one-tenth as many girls are being brought into juvenile court for drunkenness as prior to prohibition."

HENRY SCHERER.

Disagrees With Correspondent on "Benefits" of Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post recently H. H. Culver, of Collins, N. Y., contributed an interesting letter. The gentleman claims, in effect, that in the time of Queen Elizabeth the ruling classes established a great number of saloons in order to drain away the money of the working people and thereby curb their growing independence and wealth.

Here in the dry United States the movies, the automobile, the radio and the soda fountain (to say nothing of the bootlegger and certain home-brewing interests) are all working to the same end. They are absorbing many millions of the workers' dollars, but the gentleman has not a word to say in protest.

Citing conditions in Russia under the czars, he further says: "Czarist Russia deliberately debauched the people by fostering the trade in vodka. * * * The time and crisis came which demanded manliness and efficiency; then came prohibition." The gentleman fails to state that, as soon as prohibition had taken effect, the Russians overthrew the czarist government. Prohibition persisted, and they overthrew the Kerensky government and established bolshevism and a reign of anarchy and terror. Then the Soviet government abolished prohibition.

Mr Culver also denounces the efforts of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment to secure repeal of the prohibition laws, which, he says, is "a foxy scheme to give the poor man the personal liberty of paying the rich man's tax plus the brewer's profit." The gentleman does not seem to realize that the poor man pays the rich man's tax plus the dealer's profit whenever he pays his rent or purchases anything, whether necessaries or luxuries. The revenue lost by abolition of the lawful liquor trade must be collected from the people in some way. If the prohibition laws should be repealed and a lawful, tax-paying liquor trade reestablished, the poor people would be relieved of the burden of some of the taxes they are now paying. Following such repeal, any one who wished to avoid payment of a part of the tax imposed on the liquor trade could do so merely by not purchasing any liquor.

The association is laboring to rid this country of an obnoxious, disreputable law which has robbed our citizens of constitutional rights, bred corruption and hypocrisy, caused ruthless homicides, sown disrespect for all law, flooded our country with untaxed, illicit liquor, and fostered excessive drinking of bad booze.

Tragic Result of an Early Warrantless Raid Is Recalled.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An old timer of South Washington, who lived near the scene of the tragedy, tells me that Capt. Robert E. Doyle's father, who was a policeman in that section, met his death many years ago at the hands of a woman when he attempted to enter her residence by breaking in the front door after she told him she would shoot if he did so. The jury which tried this woman freed her of the charge, as the unfortunate officer had no warrant. She was confined in jail, however, for some time, and during her stay there a daughter was born.

Warrantless raids, it seems, are not new-fangled actions, and District Attorney Rover has warned against them in order to avoid such misfortunes as that which befell the elder Doyle.

NATIONALITY IS STUDIED

London, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The imperial conference met today in the shadow of the greatest aviation disaster of all time—the crash of the dirigible R-101 in France yesterday. The chief delegates met this morning at No. 10 Downing street, adopting a motion of tribute to the men who died in the R-101, and to their relatives.

For the most part, however, they listened as Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told them what the loss of one of these men—Lord Thomson, air minister—meant to him personally.

"Many of you in this room are prime ministers," said Mr. MacDonald in a voice almost breaking with emotion, "you know what a solitary post it is. There are times when even the dearest of one's friends can not lift the burden from one's shoulders.

As a Member of Family.

"Lord Thomson has been the dearest of my colleagues. He has passed in and out of No. 10 Downing street as a membeer of my family. He has not only been a bulwark in political matters, but his door has always been open. His table has always been spread, his fireside has always been ready with a welcome for me.

"There were times when we did not talk of political things at all, but of the delightful things of the world—of its beauty, its energy and of the affections of life.

"Lord Thomson enabled me to get over many a hard circumstance and to bear many heavy burdens. Now that he has gone you will understand my feelings, not only as a prime minister but as a human being."

Australian Premier Present.

In the afternoon the heads of the delegations continued their session under the presidency of the Australian premier, James H. Scullin, as Mr. MacDonald had left for the Labor party conference at Llandudno, and the Canadian premier, R. B. Bennett, next in seniority, was unable to be present.

The work done consisted chiefly in reviewing a variety of questions connected with imperial political and legal relations preparatory to passing them on to a committee headed by Lord Sankey, which will hold its first meeting tomorrow.

The two principal matters thus disposed of were the problem of nationality and the right of appeal by any individual in the dominions to the judicial committee of the British privy council—a topic in which the Irish Free State is particularly interested.

The next plenary session will be held Wednesday, and those in close touch with the conference say it will be disclosed that great progress has been made since the opening.

Five More Counts Faced by Shapiro

Sale of Additional Houses With 'Hidden Trusts' Is Alleged.

Five additional charges of false pretenses in connection with the sale of houses containing alleged "hidden trusts" were returned yesterday by the grand jury against Jacob Shapiro, president of the Joseph Shapiro Realty Co. Shapiro already is under seven similar indictments.

The new indictments charge that the house at 1718 Hobart street was sold to Florence G. Purley without revealing that it was encumbered with a $2,500 "hidden trust;" that the house at 419 Madison street northwest was sold to Horace Hullinger, better known as "Happy" Walker, with a "hidden trust" of $1,209; that the property at 422 Marietta place was sold to Joseph C. Engers with an undisclosed trust of $1,271.91; that the property at 420 Marietta place was disposed of to Howard M. Carter without the purchaser being advised of a $1,300 trust, and that the house at 1706 Hobart street was sold to Daisy B. Kelly without disclosure of a $2,500 trust.

Shapiro has pleaded not guilty to all the charges hitherto made against him, and it is expected that he will make a similar plea when arraigned on the new indictments. He is now at liberty under bonds totaling $14,000.

Killing of Boy by Car Is Ruled Accidental

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the inquest held over the body of 7-year-old Arthur Cross, of K street near Twenty-fifth street northwest, who was fatally injured by an automobile driven by Mrs. Mary V. Mrs. Lambert was arrested immediately after the accident, but released later when police found that the accident was unavoidable. The child was playing in the street with several companions when he suddenly darted into the street in the path of the automobile.

Titulescue Regarded as Probable Successor to Maniu.

Bucharest, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Premier Juliu Maniu, of Roumania, went out to Sinaia this morning and handed in his resignation as head of the government to King Carol.

The king accepted it, but asked M. Maniu to continue in office until a new ministry could be formed.

Maniu stated tonight that he had resigned because of "impaired health." His most likely successor is Nicolas Titulescu or Foreign Minister G. G. Mironescu.

M. Titulescu, Minister to Great Britain and Roumanian delegate at the League of Nations assembly, now is in Geneva.

M. Maniu, however, favors the selection of Ion Mihalache, his minister of agriculture, one of the founders of the Peasant party. M. Mihalache is believed to be willing.

In M. Maniu's eyes, the best alternative candidate would be Virgil Madgearu, minister of industry.

Premier Maniu's resignation is generally regarded as a trial of strength to demonstrate to King Carol whether or not he still has the support of the entire Peasant party.

DEMOCRATS RAPPED BY HOUSE SPEAKER

Party Out of Power Causes Business Retardation, Is His Claim.

SENATORS ARE SCORED

Blame for the slow unemployment readjustment and the retarded recovery of business generally in the present economic depression was laid upon the Democratic party by Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth in a radio talk through Station WRC and a National Broadcasting chain last night.

He directed his censure principally at Senate Democrats for what he termed their action "to prolong as long as possible business uncertainty for their political advantage."

"They had no intention of confining their opposition to germane amendment and legitimate debate," he continued. "That they succeeded is evidenced by the fact that they were directly responsible for a continued tariff session of nearly a year and a half, a period unexampled in tariff history.

"So-called debate in the Senate, most of the time was a joke; in the condition of business and industry, a sinister joke. Most of it was had before a practically empty chamber. Propositions having no place on a tariff bill were debated for weeks. Recesses and adjournments for days at a time were the rule, not the exception. There can be no excuse for this prolonged delay, except an inexcusable one; and that was the desire to profit in the coming election by preventing for as long as possible the recovery of business and industrial prosperity.

"There are few of my audience, I presume, who are as happy as they were at this time last year. But the results have been nowhere nearly as disastrous as they would have been had not President Hoover and this administration used every effort to promote employment and encourage confidence in the absolute and fundamental soundness of our Government.

"There is nothing that so much unsettles business and industrial conditions as a prolonged uncertainty as to what tariff shall be when a revision is undertaken. In my deliberate opinion, had the Democratic party, particularly in the Senate, not deliberately used this situation to further, as they hoped, their political interests, the unemployment situation would be infinitely better than it is now. It is on their heads the responsibility must rest."

Separate Maintenance Is Requested by Wife

Arthur D. Cook, a member of the park police force, was named defendant in a suit for separate maintenance filed yesterday in District Supreme Court by his wife, Mrs. Anne R. Cook, of Lawrence street northeast near Nineteenth.

The wife accuses her husband of being stingy with funds for her and their home, although lavishly spending money on himself and his sports. She also alleges that he has been practicing cruelty toward her. The couple was married January 30, 1924, and has one child. Attorney Harry G. Kimball appears for the wife.

Prescription Forgery Laid to Man and Wife

Edward M. Dodge and Louise Dodge were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of forgery and uttering in connection with alleged illegal use of narcotic prescriptions.

The woman and the man are alleged to have used blanks containing the name of Dr. W. Calhoun Sterling, of 1835 I street northwest, in order to obtain drugs. Dr. Sterling is said to have told the grand jury that the woman took a pack of prescription blanks recently when she came to his office in order to obtain a prescription for her husband.

G. O. P. WOMEN HEAR DEMOCRATS SCORED

E. F. Colladay Addresses First Meeting of League for Season.

CITES PARTY RECORDS

Gathering for their first meeting of the 1929-30 season, the League of Republican Women of the District yesterday adopted resolutions supporting President Hoover, and heard campaign issues outlined in a lengthy address by E. F. Colladay, national Republican committeeman of the District.

The resolutions praised President Hoover's "constructive statesmanship," and asserted that political criticism of his administration was designed to handicap his efforts to remedy business depression. Their adoption followed an address by Mrs. E. A. Harriman, president of the league.

Paying a tribute to the President's leadership, Mrs. Harriman declared that "meeting criticism in dignified silence, working night and day to meet problems which would crush a weaker man, he has risen to the heights of the greatest who have lived in the White House."

Branding the Democratic campaign as one of "misrepresentation and untruthfulness," Mr. Colladay stressed the prosperity which he said the Republicans had given the country for many years. The last tariff, he contended, instead of increasing living costs by $1,000,000,000 as the Democrats had predicted, had lowered living costs by $2,000,000,000. Other triumphs which he claimed for the Republicans were the reduction of the public debt by $7,000,000,000 between 1920 and 1929; tax reductions of more than $2,500,000,000; increases in life insurance policies from $42,000,000,000 to $103,000,000,000; the doubling of bank accounts, and employment increases from 32,000,000 to 42,000,000.

In contrasting the records of the two parties, Mr. Colladay directed his guns at New York City, whose government he said was typical of the Democratic regime. "The city treasury has been plundered," he continued, "the judiciary has been exploited, fraudulent contracts, pay-roll padding and the sale of appointments have resulted in the loss of millions of dollars to the public."

In closing Mr. Colladay urged his listeners to "carry to the people the wisdom of the Republican policies and to rebut the unjustifiable attacks which have been made during the past few months by the enemy."

Man, Wife Indicted On Mail Fraud Charge

Herman O. Hagner and his wife, Julia C. Hagner, who formerly operated as merchants in Scranton, Pa., were indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud. Both are charged jointly with selling fictitious accounts to the Merchants Transfer & Storage.

Both Hagner and his wife were convicted on a similar charge last March 31 and are at liberty under bond pending sentence. The new charge was presented yesterday by United States Attorney Leo A. Rover.

Spelling Clubs to Meet In Match Here Tonight

The Capital City and the Waverly Spelling Clubs, the latter of Baltimore, will contest for a silver loving cup tonight at the Stuart Junior High School. Each team will have 22 spellers. Dr. George B. Woods, dean of American University, will pronounce.

The Capital Club won both victories in 1929, while the Baltimore Club won the April engagement, although the latter is 32 years old and the former only 2 years old. The match will open at 8 o'clock. The school orchestra will play.

OBSERVERS CHANGE OPINIONS ON BRAZIL

Vast Distances May Influence Length of Revolution, They Point Out.

AMERICANS ARE UNHURT

(Associated Press.)

A sharp change in the opinion of Washington officialdom as to the seriousness of the Brazilian insurrection was manifest last night as reports came to the Capital from the Latin American republic.

Some observers previously had expressed the opinion that it was the result of repercussions of recent revolts in other Latin American countries and the economic depression with which Brazil has been affected to the same measure as other countries.

Military observers pointed out last night a factor which might have a bearing on whether the insurrection may be prolonged over a considerable period: The vast distances between the points along the coast and in the interior, where it would appear the revolutionists have to a measure been successful.

Would Hamper Both Sides.

These distances would prevent an immediate junction of the revolting forces, but also would hamper the government in getting loyal troops to so many scattered areas so far from loyal centers.

Word that the revolution had broken out almost simultaneously in a number of points was interpreted as indicating plans had been laid over a considerable period for the outbreak and that the revolt did not constitute incidents growing out of a single minor movement.

The American consulate at Porto Alegre reported to the State Department yesterday that all American lives and property were safe there after the revolution broke out in the city early Saturday night.

Little Bloodshed There.

Another report from Porto Alegre to usually well-informed sources said there was little bloodshed there and that the central government had joined the revolution, which was also successful at Pernambuco, where the Liberal element is in power, but no new government has been set up.

The loyalty of the state of Sao Paulo, the native state of President Washington Luis, may be a factor in assisting the government against the revolutionists. This state, one of the most important in the entire republic, would in effect act as a buffer against the juncture of the revolutionists in the event it remains loyal to the government.

One report last night said the revolutionary movement at Para, in the State of the same name, was considered at an end after the rebels abandoned the barracks and fled over the Braganza Railroad to join rebel forces from Maranhao. This was the first indication of an effort on the part of the rebels to concentrate forces.

GULF STREAM TUBE PRODUCES ENERGY

Once the geneartors were on, the 40 big bulbs, arranged in rows, began to burn dimly. Then as the generators attained full speed, they became increasingly bright. The demonstration lasted lon genough to convince the most skeptical of those present that the inventor's scheme was successful.

The French scientist, who has expended more than $2,000,000 of his own money to carry on the work in the face of numerous reverses, received with calm a chorus of congratulations.

He said he intended to continue improving his plant during the next few weeks, in order to secure the greatest possible efficiency from his machinery. He labored tirelessly in his laboratory, 6 miles northwest of Matanzas, to bring his experiment to the point where it would stand scientific scrutiny.

Harbord to Speak At Board of Trade

Chairman of R. C. A. Board Will Be Honor Guest Here Tonight.

The first fall meeting of the Washington Board of Trade is to take place tonight at the Willard. Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America, is to be the guest speaker. Another guest speaker will be Frank R. Arnold, director of development of the National Broadcasting Co.

A feature of the meeting will be the sending of radio greetings to ships at sea and capitals of Europe. Answers to these messages will be received at the meeting. About 1,000 members are expected to be present.

The following radio officials are expected to attend:

Thought She Was Free, But Girl Is Held Again

Marie Ruff, the girl who disappeared in July, 1928, because she thought that when she was held for the grand jury she was free, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of grand larceny.

The girl is alleged to have stolen a quanity of clothing and money from Janet Donnelly with whom she roomed at that time. Held for the grand jury, the girl disappeared but recently was apprehended in another jurisdiction and was returned here two weeks ago. Before Commissioner Needham C. Turnage she made the explanation that she thought she had been freed after her Police Court arraignment.

80,000 REBELS MOVE ON BRAZIL'S CAPITAL

Officers of the Seventh Cavalry were at first arrested, but now have returned to their organization for the northward drive to Sao Paulo. The rank and file of the Sixth Cavalry is backing the revolt, but the officers refused to join and surrendered on condition that they be permitted to leave the country.

They were taken from Alegrete, where the regiment was stationed, to the Uruguayan frontier and released.

Banks Ordered Closed.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Government officials tonight were inclined to minimize the Brazilian revolutionary movement.

They declared their advices indicated that the revolters had not even succeeded in completely overthrowing the government in the State of Rio Grande do Sul, where the revolution originated, and said life was going on calmly and normally in the great cities of Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

At the same time the administration declared all Brazil in a state of siege until December 31, and ordered all banks in the capital closed for at least fifteen days. The bank closing was announced as a precaution to prevent any speculation in exchange.

Because of interrupted communications reports of the revolt have been scanty here, but it appears the governors of Pernanbuco and Rio Grande do Norte have been forced to resign, while disorders have been reported in other states south of Para.

Train Service Halted.

It is understood that Curityba, capital of the State of Parana, is under control of antigovernment forces. The government is said to hold the southern portion of Minas Geraes, but the revolutionists have taken Bello Horizonte and its vicinity.

Trains from Rio to Bello Horizonte have been suspended since Saturday.

The government version is that part of the army has gone over to the revolutionaries in Rio Grande do Sul, but officials believe that the movement is going slowly there.

LABOR WILL ATTACK TRADE DISPUTES ACT

British Party Caucus Told of Decision, Held to Imperil Ministry.

LIVELY SESSION CERTAIN

Llandudno, Wales, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Strong indications that the autumn session of Parliament will be lively were provided by the opening day's events of the Labor Party's annual conference.

For the first time in its history the political caucus was presided over by a woman, Miss Susan Lawrence, member of Parliament and secretary to the ministry of health. In a keynote speech she declared that sooner or later the Labor party would have to deal with that "aged anacronism," the House of Lords. This alone, she forecast, would lead to heated parliamentary exchanges.

The sensation of the day was provided, however, when Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, announced that a bill to amend the trade disputes act would be put forward in the forthcoming speech of the king and would be one of the earliest bills to be taken in hand after the opening session.

The trade disputes act is one of the most contentious measures on the statute book, and Premier MacDonald himself has been credited with a wish to leave things as they are while the Labor party remains a minority in Commons. It was passed by the Conservatives and was a direct echo of the general strike in the previous year.

The measure has a third clause that, excepting in certain cases, civil servants may not be members of trades unions other than those consisting exclusively of servants of the crown.

There is combustible material enough in any one of these sections, to say nothing of many minor clauses, to start a rare parliamentary bonfire and some observers say that because the Liberals object as a party to repeal of the bill and there is divisions even in Labor's ranks regarding it, today's decision to proceed instantly with its repeal carries a serious danger of overthrow of the MacDonald government.

STRIKING DANVILLE WORKER IS EVICTED

INJUNCTION BRIEF FILED

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 6.—The first eviction of a striking cotton mill operative from a house owned by the River Side and Dan River Cotton Mills took place at 4 o'clock this afternoon on Pickett street, where a deputy constable placed the effects of J. O. Morrison, loom fixer, on the street for failure to pay his rent. Morrison said he was one of the first loom fixers to join the union.

He admitted he was "several weeks behind" in his rent. He has a wife and three children and had lived in the mill house for nine years.

Deputy Constable Luther Lewis superintended the removal of the household effects which were placed in the street. A knot of union men stood nearby watching, but there was no interference. Morrison moved his effects into another house.

Another development this evening was the filing with the clerk of the Pittsylvania circuit court in Chatham of an answer by the United Textile Workers of America to the injunctions recently issued designed to prevent free access to the mill gates. The seven-page document denies all the equities of the bill of complaint and asks that the answer be treated as a cross bill for affirmative relief and that the injunction awarded the mills be dismissed at once. A similar bill is to be filed in the corporation court, it was learned, on October 20.

The answer denies all the allegations set up in the injunction petition, and charges that "in 1919 the mill management inaugurated a vague and theoretical system called industrial democracy, and that deluded the workers into the belief that they would have some voice in the management of the mills."

The further charge is made that industrial democracy was operated "to keep down labor costs for the mills at a time when wages in every other industry were high." The answer charges also that overseers and second hands coerced workers to vote for certain persons for office for the benefit of the management, those refusing to vote being discharged.

There is a specific denial that foreign agitators came to Danville to organize a union but, the brief says, the workers requested organization. The answer also denies that a strike was called, but says that the workers voted not to return under existing conditions. It also denies that men have been placed before the mill gates who by froce or intimidation prevented persons from passing in or out of the mill gates. It is denied there is a disposition to damage the plants and it is finally held that an injunction will not lie.

Judge Turner Clement was not holding court at Chatham today when the answer was filed with the clerk and no action has been taken.

The opening of the second week of the strike was quiet today, but more people entered the gates to work than last Friday. The additions went into the shipping department. Today was commissary day and a long line of union men and women was seen on Loyal street receiving rations from the union.

Were the Graustark stories still going the rounds everybody would immediately recognize the fictitious kingdom set up in "Everybody's Secret," current at the Belasco; but now that Beverley and her dashing companions have been relegated to back seats in the literary world these kingdoms come along all too seldom. When they do they are usually surcharged with lots of intrigue and political machinations, with a dash or two of downright immorality; for stage purposes.

In making an adaptation from the Hungarian of Attila von Orbok, the Hattons, American playwrights, left behind what undoubtedly might have been a lot of continental innuendo and came away with a delightful bit of fantasy that approaches, at times, the realm of Cinderella herself. It is not all as charming as it might be, what with one thing and another, and yet the comedy has its saving graces. It has, for instance, the lovely Jane Bramley playing a completely innocent and virginal DuBarry-Pompador role, if such a thing can be imagined. Since it has been imagined, and makes the pivotal role in the play, part at least of the story must be told.

As Lily Dornik, daughter of a bourgeois family in a central European kingdom, Miss Bramley falls innocently into a role that carries with it a superabundance of deceit. In love with a young newspaperman, a fellow who interviews the high and mighty, she is asked to go with him one day to ride in an automobile the manufacturers are fitting out for his majesty the king. The car bears the royal arms. As the king is a bachelor, as he is young and handsome and romantic, the gossipers who see the young scribe and his lady immediately set their tongues a-wagging. They hail her as the mistress of his majesty.

Right here is where there comes a superb touch of Americanism on the continent. The young newspaperman, anxious to exploit his lady love in the theater—she really has a voice for light opera—seizes on this bit of gossip and persuades her to pose as the king's beloved. It means that the merchant princes shower favors upon the young woman, the populace hails a new star in the theatrical firmament, the ministers at court seek her favor—and all unbeknownst to the king himself. Finally that monarch discovers the intrigue, meets up with his imaginary breath of the boudoir and——

Well, enough has been said. There is here a certain amount of amusement, and an idea that dances. It moves, alas, until the exact middle of the play, only too slowly; so that once the situation is grasped, at the very outset of the play, one begins to wonder why the Hattons, experienced playwrights that they are, did not use the pruning knife on the first act; an act cluttered with quite a lot of needless suspense building. Had that been done, the play might have been condensed into such a small compass that a curtain-raiser would be necessary—for it's a short and sweet tale they tell, and it has its very best moments right before the fall of the final curtain.

A cast of goodly selection has been set to work, and old-timers will delight to find C. H. Croker-King playing a sycophant husband and father and doing it in his usual manner. Young Anthony Kemble-Cooper makes a stylish king and measures to true artistic heights in a short session. Hugh Miller delights as a ham actor, and Edward Crandall is the newspaperman exploiter. Theodore St. John does well as the girl's brother, but these are only just so much adornment for Miss Jane Bramley, the real picture of the piece, who might, perhaps, add to her stature in more animation.

GAYETY

Jeanne Steel, after a year's absence from the Mutual Circuit, appeared at the Gayety yesterday with Harry Steppe and his big show which gives Washington a new chorus, dominated by Jeanne Loy, local blond beauty, whose beauty and showmanship promise future advancement for her.

Miss Steele yesteday received an ovation. The famed Steppe handled the comic situation in a manner that brought many laughs. Dobbe, another funnster, helped him. The Misses Dixon and Morrell went through a bright vaudeville number. With Steppe's chorus, having such favorites among it as Elsie Davis, Ida Lee, the Johnson sisters, Vivian Jacobs and that cute little Miss Dobbs this outfit offers a commendable performance.

Employe of Postoffice Is Arraigned in Theft

Alvin G. Thornton, colored, postoffice employe at the U street station, was indicted yesterday by the District grand jury on a charge of rifling the mails. He is now at liberty under $1,000 bond, having previously been arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

At the time of the arraignment postoffice inspectors testified that they had suspected Thornton for some time and that they trapped him through the use of decoy letters. Thornton pleaded not guilty before the commissioner.

Former Cashier, Wife Indicted for Forgery

Roy H. Kinloch, former cashier of an Albany (N. Y.) bank, and his wife, Virginia Hamilton, alias Blanche Kinloch, were indicted yesterday on charges of forgery by the District grand jury.

The couple is alleged to have cashed a check to which the name of John Watson Dwight, of New York, had been forged. Both are now under arrest and already have been arraigned before the United States commissioner. The check was for $780.

Indictment Charges Forgery of $20 Check

Robert A. Dunn was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of forging and uttering.

The indictment charges that Dunn forged the name of Dr. William Ferris, son of the former senator from Wyoming, to a check and cashed it. The amount specified is $20. Dunn is alleged to have bought two pairs of hose for $2 from a local store and to have obtained $18 in change by the passage of the check.

$15,000 Embezzlement Is Laid to Bookkeeper

The District of Columbia grand jury yesterday returned an indictment charging Albert M. Woolworth, former bookkeeper of Barber & Ross, local hardware merchants, with embezzlement of the company's funds totaling approximately $15,000.

Woolworth, who had been the firm's bookkeeper for ten years, is alleged to have begun his defalcations on May 6, 1925. His system, it was said, was more or less complicated, involving the use of fictitious names in opening accounts and in depositing checks. According to police, Woolworth's peculations will reach an approximate total of $40,000.

Young Woman Escapes Injury in Auto Crash

Mrs. Barbara A. Short, 18 years old, of 4006 Garrison street northwest, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon when her car was overturned at Sixteenth and Monroe streets northwest by a car operated by William T. Gouvert, 55 years old, of Buffalo, N. Y., according to police.

After being treated for shock at the scene, Mrs. Short went home, while Gouvert was taken to the Third Precinct station for questioning.

Grand Jury Returns Murder Indictments

One indictment charging first-degree murder and another charging second-degree murder was returned yesterday by the grand jury.

Frank Cozzens, Negro, was charged with the first-degree murder of his wife, Fannie Cozzens, last August 11, while Sadie Brooks, Negro, was charged with the second-degree murder of William Edmondson last July 23.

ABSENCE OF ENVOY BARS INDICTMENT

ALLEGED BOOK BANDIT

The District grand jury yesterday declined to return true billls charging grand laceny and reception of stolen property because the complainant, Herr Rudolf Leitner, First Secretary of the German Embassy, exercised his diplomatic immunity and refused to appear before the grand jury.

Herr Leitner's home at 3105 Thirty-sixth street northwest was broken into several weeks ago by Washington's so-called book bandit and a number of priceless volumes stolen, police charge. Herr Leitner, however, refused to appear as a witness and the case had to be dropped.

The grand jury, however, returned five indictments against William Sullivan, charging house breaking and larceny in four and housebreaking in the fifth. As a result of the grand jury's action, charges against the nephew, who was arraigned jointly with his uncle in Police Court and held for the grand jury under $10,000 bonds, were dropped.

DELAY IN SMITH CO. HEADS' TRIAL SEEN

CASE IS DUE TOMORROW

Failure of the Government to push through to conclusion hearing on pleas in abatement in the F. H. Smith Co. conspiracy-to-embezzle case yesterday indicated that there may be delay in the trial of the four former officials of the company, which is scheduled to begin tomorrow in District Supreme Court.

Argument on the various pleas in abatement filed in the case was begun yesterday before Justice Joseph W. Cox, and after a session went over until today. Whether the trial begins tomorrow as scheduled depends on whether the pleas are disposed of, which was a matter that was considered problematical yesterday.

The four defendants in the case are G. Bryan Pitts, former chairman of the board; Samuel J. Henry, former president, and C. Elbert Anadale, jr., and John H. Edwards, former vice presidents. All are jointly charged with conspiracy to embezzle approximately $5,000,000 of the funds of the company. More than 60 witnesses have been summoned for the trial.

Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, Rudolph H. Yeatman and Frank Raichle appear for Pitts, Edwards and Anadale, while Attorney Harry S. Barger represents Henry. Assistant United States Attorney Neil Burkinshaw is carrying the burden for the Government during the hearing on the pleas, although Assistant to the Attorney General Nugent Dobbs is scheduled to prosecute the case when it comes to trial.

Polite Dry Agents Aim of Woodcock

Intelligent Police Methods Will Be Used, He Tells Government Club.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Prohibition agents are to be taught to attain success by brain and not brawn, Amos W. Woodcock, recently appointed national director of prohibition, told the members of the Government Club today.

"If we can not get results through trained and intelligent methods," he said, "we will have to acknowledge failure. Our agents first of all must have respect for themselves and their calling and they must be able to command the respect of others."

Woodcock said all efforts of his department would be aimed at commercial violators.

"It is only the lazy, unintelligent agent who will make out noncommercial cases," he said. "We don't want that type of man in the service."

Catholics Forbidden To Give Aid to Hitler

Berlin, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The Jewish Telegraphic agency reports that Archbishop Hugo of Mainz today officially forbade all Catholics in his diocese to join Adolf Hitler's Fascist groups and barred from confession and the sacraments registered members of the Fascist party who are Catholics.

The prohibitions are said to be due to the archbishop's belief that Hitler's program and pronouncements are incompatible with Catholic teachings.

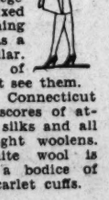
—at the Baby Mode, 1770 Columbia road, are made of waterproof and windproof suede cloth, made in three pieces, including a hat. Priced at $8.95, size 2 to 6 years. They are in the best quality, sturdily made, and may be had in all colors.



White Satin For Evening

—continues in high favor. Mme. Florenz, 1145 Connecticut avenue, has such a good model for only $35. It is a copy of an imported gown from a famous house. When it was shown me, a short ruby velvet coat was shown with it, having a deep collar of white fur, at $65.

A day frock in Marietta knit, with a matching beret, is priced $19.50, and is characteristic of models available at this price. A surf green crepe, with black and silver belt, is another outstanding model at this price. It has a long, straight tunic, so flattering to the figure. Gowns are priced up to $79.50.

"Meet me at Mme. Florenz" is becoming the natural answer to the query, "Where will you be?" Women and girls are learning that Mme Florenz's salon is a restful, comfortable place to drop in for a few minues' respite from shopping, for a cigarette or just for the pleasure of seeing the new styles.

Schwartz Coats In New Weaves

—are attracting discriminating buyers, for themselves alone, but the reasonable price should be an added inducement. The prices range from $58 to $69.50, and if you can find better coats at this price you will perform a miracle.

A green tweed, well tailored and fashionably cut, has biege lapin collar. A mixed tweed in a becoming shade of green has a big raccoon collar. There are dozens of models. You must see them.

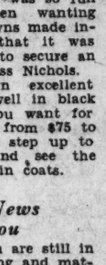
Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut avenue, also has scores of attractive frocks in silks and all the new lightweight woolens. A black and white wool is made eton over a bodice of scarlet and has scarlet cuffs.

Take Your Furs To Be Fixed

—before you really need them. Harlton, 1617 Conn. Ave., although having complete displays in fur garments, does a large business in repairing furs and making over your last year's furs into the superb work done in this shop. You will like the prices, too, for they are really moderate.

The Green Window Is Our Newest

—on Connecticut Avenue. You will find it at No. 1745. You have probably wondered for months what the meaning might be of the casement windows outlined in green, which have remained for so long shielded from the gaze of passersby. Well, the windows are unveiled now, and the door is wide open waiting for you to enter, and to inspect the most exquisite and varied collection of luxuries.



The shop, under Miss Converse and Mrs. Bohlen, has, needless to say, some relation to their regular salon in the same building. In the Green Window they show tea gowns and pajamas for lounging or for hostess wear, and scarfs which may be copied or repeated for you. The pajamas and negligees can not be described. There are no others in town to compare with them, at least no others which I have personally seen. They are the models you have wanted, in the colors you like.

The Green Window boasts at the moment a small showing of old porcelains, figurines and so on for decorative purposes, fine old prints, colored fruit plates, and several rare paintings.

Jewelry, inexpensive lamps with shades, authentic pieces of old furniture and old painted paper screens are to be seen now. Do see a pair of low corner pieces in fruit wood, which Mrs. Bohlen picked up in Normandy. The Green Window offers you everything of novelty and variety. They even have smart hats. The Green Window, 1745 Connecticut Avenue.

Evening Wraps Of Great Beauty

—have arrived in an important showing at Nichols', 1341 Connecticut vaenue. This shop is on the second floor at this address and has formerly featured dressmaking. This group of evening wraps are priced from $90 to $125 and are in vivid colors and black. Some have luxurious collars of white fox or lapin. In fact, dressmaking is still the major activity in this shop. When I went in yesterday morning the shop was so full of women wanting their gowns made instantly that it was difficult to secure an interview with Miss Nichols.

Street coats in excellent weaves, tailored well in black and the colors you want for street, are priced from $75 to $125. Be sure to step up to Nichols' today and see the wonderful values in coats.

Here's News For You

—especially if you are still in need of that spring and mattress I have heard you talking about. The King Bedding Stores, Inc., 1327 Conn. avenue, have a perfectly wonderful box spring and mattress which they are offering to you at the low price of $37.50 for the two. This is a price! The box spring is perfection itself, covered in rose, blue, orchid or green, to match the covering of the mattress you select. It seems to me this is the kind of mattress you usually pay around twenty dollars for, and the spring certainly sells for nearer thirty. You may have the two for $37.50.

School Head Is Enthusiastic Over Opening

Miss Morrow Hopes She May Teach Lindbergh Heir Some Day.

HOPING at some future date to have Charles Augustus Lindbergh, jr., "the most famous baby in the world," as a pupil in her school in Englewood, N. J., Miss Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of the former Ambassador to Mexico and Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, is enthusiastic over her little institution, which had its opening last week.

When queried about the possibility of having her diminutive nephew as a pupil, Miss Morrow declared that to be her "dream," although she jokingly added that she doubted whether the Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh would ever give their consent.

Miss Morrow enrolls pupils from the age of 18 months to 5½ years. She feels that even the youngest of them have receptive minds, and says "there's a lot to teach them."

Two rooms of the Vanderbeck residence, which Miss Morrow leased last March for her school, are given over to the infant classes, with a nurse in charge of each one. The other seven rooms of this attractive, rambling old house are devoted to classrooms for the older children. There are 40 pupils in all.

The little ones are instructed on the Child Education Foundation Plan, which teaches them free development as individuals. Miss Morrow observed methods used in the schools of France, Mexico, and this country, and by supplementing them with her own ideas on the education of children, is introducing a complete course in her Englewood school. She is preparing these youngsters for the Dwight School, where she had a position as English instructor three years ago.

Miss Morrow has been interested in educational work since her school days. Even in Mexico, when her father was serving as ambassador there, she taught English classes in a school in Mexico City.

In Englewood, Miss Morrow is being assisted by a staff of six, including the Misses Florence Heineman, Mary Ellen Riber, Elizabeth Eddy, Susan Graham, and Constance Chilton. Miss Caroline Mowry is acting as secretary

Thurbers Congratulated On Birth of Son.

Lieut. and Mrs. Harold Ray Thurber, U. S. N., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son, whom they will name Richard Snowden Andrews Thurber.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lee Andrews, of Flushing, Long Island, parents of Mrs. Thurber, have come to Washington to make the acquaintance of their new grandson. Mr. Andrews is the brother of Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, of Washington.

An interesting visitor in Washington is Senor Don Rafael Silvelo, one of the Spanish delegates to the sixth congress of the Permanent International Association of Road Congresses. Senor Silvelo is the brother of the former attache of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Fernando Silvelo y de Tordellias, a popular figure in Washington several years ago when he was attached to the embassy. Senor Rafaelo Silvelo is accompanied by Senora de Silvelo and her sister. Also reaching Washington yesterday for the congress was Vicomte de Rohan, of Paris, who is stopping at the Carlton.

Mrs. E. T. Osborn and her young granddaughter, Miss Ellen Gardiner, have returned to Washington from Frankfort, Mich., where they spent the summer. Mrs. Osborn has made her home at the Mayflower since its opening.

Mrs. James F. Mitchell is at the Weylin Hotel in New York for a visit.

Mrs. John A. Wells and Miss Anne Wells have returned from Maine and have taken an apartment in the Connecticut.

Mr. Ralph Graves, who, with Mrs. Graves, has been in Paris, sailed on September 27 for New York on the liner Carmania.

Senor Viel to Depart For Bermuda.

The First Secretary of the Chilean Embassy, Senor Don Oscar Blanco Viel, leaves for New York today, preparatory to sailing tomorrow for Bermuda, where he will be until the end of the month.

Senor Viel was in Washington most of the summer, except for occasional week-ends at nearby resorts. He acted as charge d'affaires of the embassy in the absence of the Ambassador, Senor Don Carlos Davila.

Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock has closed her summer home, Harrison House at Newport, R. I., for the season, and will arrive in Washington early this week, and will open her home on Massachusetts avenue for the winter. She is accompanied by her cousin, Miss Dorothy Sollers, who has passed the summer with her at Newport.

Mrs. Henry Suydam, and her small son, Henry Suydam, jr., who have passed September at Wakefield Manor, Virginia, the home of Mrs. Suydam's mother, Mrs. George Barnett, will join Mr. Suydam at their Washington residence the latter part of the week.

The Right Rev. James E. Freeman is the guest of former Senator and Mrs. George Wharton Pepper in Philadelphia. He will go to New York today and will return to Washington tomorrow.

Mrs. Francis Walker and Miss Helen Walker, who spent the summer in the Adirondacks with a few weeks in Atlantic City, have joined Dr. Walker at their home on Ashmead place. Miss Evelyn Walker has returned to Manhattanville College in New York, and Mr. Francis Scoughton Walker has entered the Yale Law School.

Campbells Will Reside In Brookline, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Stuart Campbell are now at the Beaconsfield, Brookline, where they will remain until the completion of their new home in Brookline, Mass. Mrs. Campbell is the daughter of the late Senator Nelson Aldrich. With their family Mr. and Mrs. Campbell have been in the house of Mr. and Mrs. William Grosvenor for about two years.

Mrs. Clarence A. Aspinwall is visiting in New York.

Col. Innis Palmer Swift and Mrs. Swift will give a tea dance at the Mayflower on Friday, October 31, to present their debutante daughter, Miss Lucile Paddock Swift, to society.

Miss Julihn's Wedding Is in Fall Setting

Autumn Leaves Part of Decorations at Church Ceremony.

A beautiful wedding took place Saturday when Miss Claire Seece Julihn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Edward Julihn, was married to Mr. Howard Clinton Cross, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clayton Cross. The ceremony was performed at the Cleveland Park Congregational Church by the Rev. George Farnham. The decorations were palms, autumn leaves, pink roses and pink dahlias.

Mrs. Lucille Etchison played selections on the organ before the ceremony and was assisted by Miss Lois Lillie, who sang.

The bride was given away by her father and wore a gown of cream satin, made on princess lines, with a long train. She wore a tulle veil, caught in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower of white Killarney roses and lilies of the valley.

The attendant, Miss Yvonne Julihn, sister of the bride, wore a gown of peach net, with flounces, and a felt hat to match, trimmed with turquoise velvet, and turquoise slippers. She carried talisman roses and blue delphinium.

Mr. Everett Cross was best man for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Lawrence Julihn, brother of the bride, and Mr. Wilbur Cross and Mr. Chester Cross, brothers of the bridegroom, and Mr. Bernard Weaver.

After an informal reception held in the adjoining church parlors a buffet supper was served in the home of the bride.

The going-away costume of the bride was a king's blue suit trimmed with galyak, and she had matching accessories. Mrs. Julihn, mother of the bride, had a costume of black velvet and lace, and Mrs. Cross, the mother of the bridegroom, wore brown velvet. The couple will live in Columbus, Ohio.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, will arrive in Washington on Thursday, planning to make a brief visit.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, is in Washington to spend a short time.

Senator Claude A. Swanson has returned to Washington from a trip to the West Coast.

The Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy, Capt. Nobile Luigi Notarbartolo dei Duchi di Villarosa, who has been in Italy on leave, will return next week.

Mr. Wilbur J. Carr, Assistant Secretary of State, and Mrs. Carr, who have been in Paris, London and Stuttgart, Germany, where Mr. Carr was the presiding officer at several international conferences, will return to Washington in a few weeks. Also attending the conferences was Mr. A. Dana Hodgdon, chief of the visa division of the State Department.

Mrs. Adams Writes Book On Alps Hero

Daughter of Former Envoy Tells Children of William Tell.

Selecting a theme and title of rare charm, Mrs. Julia Davis Adams, daughter of the former Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. John W. Davis, is publishing a book for children, relating the adventures of William Tell, illustrated by Theodore Nadejen.

Mrs. Adams has also to her credit a previous book for children written shortly after her marriage to Mr. William McMillan Adams, when they resided in Copenhagen, Denmark. The motif of her first tale related to the folk lore of the northern countries and received wide recognition.

Capt. and Mrs. Washington I. Chambers, U. S. N., retired, have returned from their summer home, Craigsmoor, N. Y., and have engaged a suite at the Martinique for the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick have taken an apartment at the Galleon until November 1, when they will occupy their new home at 2234 Massachussets avenue.

Col. N. E. Borden, U. S. A, is a guest at the Martinique while on duty at the War College.

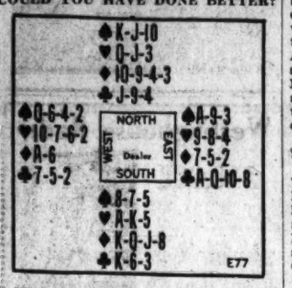
COULD YOU HAVE DONE BETTER?



With the above hand in Auction Bridge, South bid one No Trump, which obtained the contract.

At Contract Bridge, South would bid one No Trump, North would have just the strength to jump to two, and South, of course, could bid three easily.

In the play with a Spade led, dummy played the Ten, and East won with the Ace. Seeing nothing better to do than to establish his partner's suit, East returned the Spade Nine, and dummy's Jack took the trick. North then led a Diamond, which took the Ace of Diamonds out of the West hand. West—for want of a better lead—led Spades a third time, dummy winning. Three Diamonds were now run and then three Hearts, the third being won in the dummy. A small Club was led from dummy, and when Eats played small, South's King took the trick. After that the adversaries made the remaining tricks, but four-odd already had been scored.

Could the adversaries have done better?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

When East won the first Spade trick he knew that, as West had led his lowest Spade, the lead had been from a four-card suit and that dummy had two winners in that suit, so he should have shifted to the Queen of Clubs, which promised better results.

With the Jack-ine and one other Club in the dummy, South presumably had the King and would cover the Queen; but if South did so and West had any entry whatever, West could lead back the Club through dummy's Jack-Nine and East could take three Club tricks. If West did not have an entry, returning the Spade would be a useless procedure. It will be noted that West's entry would have been the Ace of Diamonds and that the game would have been saved if played as outlined. If South had not covered with the King, East could have accomplished the desired end by leading the Eight to a second round of Clubs.

Jane Interprets the Mode

New York, Oct. 6.

ISN'T it odd how subtly our tastes change? Not necessarily as we grow older, nor for any particular reason—but they just seem to change, and the things for which we looked two years ago no longer seem particularly smart or desirable to us.

In all of us there is a lurking desire for the picturesque in our attire. Those arid seasons we just passed, abject slaves to youth as interpreted in the "garconne" mode, left us with this desire more than ever starved, and threatening to break its bonds and scream forth in certain expressions that we have learned to associate with poor taste.

Changing Moods Anticipated.

But it always seems as though Dame Fashion is ever a little ahead of us. She anticipates to a nicety our possible changing moods, and before we have had a chance to quite break away from her hold she has given us the very things we are thinking of, and we are quiet once more!

There is a costume for every mood today and, as though they were psychologists who had figured out exactly when and how those moods came about, and under what set of circumstances, the clever couturiers have given us a garment for every mood.

Ruled by Good Taste Only.

No longer is it smart to have it said of you that you "affect tailored suits," or that you "affect trailing, slinky lines." You "affect" today exactly what good taste has taught you is proper for different occasions. Therefore, you wear a tailored suit when it is proper to wear a tailored suit, sports wear for sports wear, dressier wear for more formal occasions. All these, of course, consistent with your type and tastes, but always consistent with good taste as well.

* * * *

The art of the mode expresses itself this season in sleeves and necklines. Time and again the most successful model of a leading couturier has proved upon analysis to be merely a fairly good silhouette—and an unusual pair of sleeves or a tricky neckline. Any one of your last season's dresses might be made to look like a new Paris model if you just knew what to do to the neck and sleeves! That's why, in an effort to be helpful, we made an illustrated leaflet of 40 of the newest sleeves and necklines from Paris. Yours for a stamped, self-addressed envelope sent to the Dare department of The Washington Post.

* * * *

An ermine collar, blue wool and unusual lines—and there you have the Philippe et Gaston coat in today's illustration. Yet chic and practical, which is what a well brought-up coat should be, especially one that you want to wear for every day. That's why I here sketched it for you!

And now we urge you again to look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

Smallpox on Increase.

J. E. F. wants an article on smallpox with special reference to its contagiousness. He wants to know if the disease can be carried a distance of 40 to 50 feet by air.

REPLY.

Smallpox has shown a definite tendency toward increased prevalence, both in Europe and America, during the last fifteen years. Something more than 30 years ago the general run of smallpox epidemics seemed to be due to a very mild virus. While the disease seemed as contagious as ever, those who developed it did not have many pocks, they were not very sick, they generally got well and bad marking, blindness or other objectionable after effects were infrequent. In consequence, people lost much of their oldtime fear of the disease. Some countries, notably England, took the teeth out of their vaccination laws and others relaxed in the use of their more stringent laws. Still others tried to get along without laws, or with poor ones.

In consequence, we are in the midst of an increase prevalence of epidemics in sections of both America and Europe. To make maters worse, every so often we have a few weeks of old fashioned smallpox, with its deaths, its blindness, and its horrible illness. We need to wake up and go at the matter with something of the oldtime vigor.

Smallpox is the most contagious of all the eruptive fevers, but it can not be borne through the air for distances of 40 to 50 feet. It begins to be contagious shortly before any symptom develops. It is highly contagious during the stage of fever, headache and backache, which precede the eruption by three days. It is supposed to remain contagious as long as ulcers are present. It is spread by the breath, by the secretions and by the pus from the sores.

It can be prevented by vaccination. Immunity conferred by vaccination usually last seven years, though in many cases it is protective only for five. In many instances one vaccination completely protects for life, though in most instances, after five to seven years, protection is only partial. Young children, including babies, stand vaccination much better than adults do.

The old-time dangers of sepsis and tetanus have practically disappeared by reason of the use of modern methods, but some cases of encephalitis in the wake of vaccination have been reported, both from Europe and from this country.

Protection of a community by quarantine is expensive and insufficient.

HEARING VIA THE TEETH.

T. Y. sends a newspaper clipping about a device by which a deaf man may hear with his teeth. The device is plugged into a light socket or into special sockets at talkie theaters and one part of it is held against the teeth. He wants to know whether it has merit.

REPLY.

More than 50 years ago a hearing device calculated to send sound through the teeth was invented. It is still used somewhat. As I understand it, this inventor has taken some modification of the old device and adapted it for use in a talkie theater. my guess is that it will work very well in many cases. There are different types of deafness.

Whether the talkies will equip for this device remains to be seen.

What Today Means to You

"LIBRA."

IF October 7 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to noon, and from 4 p. m. to 5:20 p. m.

If you have reckoned without Providence on this date, you will probably have to reckon twice, for she is greatly mixed up with your affairs. It will be more a time of fertile thinking than productive activity. A breakdown in health for some one closely associated with you.

Children born on this October 7 will have restless natures and will be lacking in concentration. They will have versatile and impressionable minds, and will be overly sensitive to both slights and their surroundings. They will enjoy sports of all kinds, but it will be difficult for them to settle down to serious study or work.

There will be many ups and downs in your life—periods of vivid happiness and success, to be followed by sudden relapses in both. Fortunately, yours is a resilient nature, and you quickly get up when knocked down by hard problems or human griefs. Lukewarmness is not one of your offenses, and you are always either a "Bull" or a "Bear," on the big market of life. You have the pioneer spirit of your forebears—you are not a watcher, you are a born prospector and experimenter, and you leave the watching to be done by others. Yours is essentially a business brain, you think quickly and lucidly. You are not a lazy leader. Those who keep step with you must work hard and work fast.

Impatience is one of your sins, and you are a little too anxious for quick results, and a little too severe in your criticism of those who are unable to match your stride. You do not suffer fools gladly. You are also a little selfish with your spoils, and are never unmindful of the comforts and desires of Number One.

Your emotions are not very stable—you are on fire today, and are phlegmatically indifferent tomororw. Others must fit into your moods, you can not fit into theirs. You can not be expected to live a humdrum life, an attempt would be suicidal to your happiness. You are naturally loyal.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Her Love Cooled.

DEAR Miss McDonald: I read of a few of the letters sent to you, so I'm going to write of an experience of mine.

About three years ago I met a girl and started going with her. At the time I was "going places and doing things" myself.

When I met the girl I was making good money and showed her a good time every possible way I could. When I had been going with her about two months she asked me to go only with her. I asked her if there wasn't some one else she cared to go with and she said no. Well, I gave up going around and played on the square with her for two years, refusing invitations and just going with her. Well, to make a long story short, work got slack and, I guess, so did our love affair.

She had talked of marriage and I told her I wouldn't marry until I got a steady job. Well, after that the first opportunity that came along the girl stepped out and I quit. I didn't see her at all for about two months and then received a phone call asking if she could see me. All the time we were apart I didn't bother her, but started going around myself again.

Now, I guess you know what happened. Right. We started going around again. Now I guess the same thing is about to happen again. I am not feeling sorry for myself, but I wouldn't talk to any one about it. So I'm just writing to get your opinion on this so-called love stuff. I guess maybe I am to blame, but I did think an awful lot about the girl. I want you to understand I did not keep her tied down. She stepped out plenty with other fellows even after I had given up all but her. But when she had no time for me at all, when my work got slack, why then I figured she wasn't worth pining about. Still I went back with her.

I was told two or three times that was were I made my mistake, going back with her the last time, but I took a chance. But I guess my friends were right. It looks like the same thing is happening again. So I would just like to get your opinion on the girl.

She's a good decent sort of a girl and I guess it's just the idea of my work.

X. Y. Z.

Well, how glad you should be that you did not marry her when she urged it. Can you imagine coming home at night to tell that sort of wife your troubles? And about one-fifth of all the men in this country today are telling their troubles at night and being consoled and encouraged. You are not the only chap who is having financial troubles. For most of the unmarried ones it is an excellent experience and may teach them thrift and cure them of the habit of spending all they earn on these silly, brainless girls. Most of the working men in this country simply throw their earnings away and get nowhere. You have spent yours on a girl who cares nothing for you or for any one else. Be thankful you are still free. Concentrate on your work, save your money and do not let any girl talk you into marriage. That is up to you. The girls who urge men to marry usually are merely negotiating for a home. Thank them for the compliment and step out of the picture.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

Kindly tell me how to care for an amaryllis bulb.

MRS. ARTHUR F.

Pot the bulb in a pot of a size about 1 inch larger than the diameter of the bulb. Plant bulb so that only the thick part is covered with soil; the long neck must be fully exposed. Use soil composed of good loam two parts and well decomposed cow manure one part and sufficient sharp sand to make it loose and friable. Water sparingly until bulb starts to grow. When the bulb has developed three leaves, water more freely. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, we shall be glad to send you a circular we have prepared for readers of this column, on the 'Care of the Amaryllis."

Please tell me how to get rid of poison ivy. Also tell me what to do to make my lilies-of-the-valley bloom.

MRS. HERBERT R.

The best way to get rid of poison ivy is to uproot it. Lily-of-the-valley should be lifted and divided about once in four years. Early autumn is the time to make the beds, the work being done when the leaves begin to show signs of decay. When you dig up the roots select only the strongest crowns for the new bed. Plant these crowns three inches apart each way. Trim the roots to about six inches and bury the crowns just below the surface. Before planting incorporate some well-rotted manure with the soil. It is also wise to use some well-rotted manure as a mulch the first winter after resetting the plants. Apply this after the first light frost.

Please tell me the name of the hardy shrub of which I am inclosing some leaves.

J. S.

Please tell me the name of the hardy shrub of which I am inclosing some leaves.

J. S.

I am sorry but I can not definitely identify the shrub from the specimen submitted. It is a hardy shrub, likely a variety of viburnum.

Please help me before my dracaena terminalis expires. It was doing very well until I placed it on the porch where it gets early morning and late afternoon sun. Before setting it outside I attempted to remove it from its pot to see if there were any worms at the root. I was unable to lift it from the soil, as it is a huge plant. So all I could do was to replace the original soil. For three days it seemed none the worse for the upheaval—the following day it drooped and has been dying ever since. How can I coax new leaves to grow on the old stalk?

S. O. S.

Your soil may be at fault. If the plant is too large for you to handle why not have your florist transplant it for you? The charge will not be much for this service. A dracaena does best in a soil composed of loam, leafmold and enough sand and charcoal to keep soil open and sweet. When a plant is growing well it should have a 30 per cent cow manure added to the compost. I know of no way to coax new foliage on the lower part of the main stem. New growth will be sure to start at the top.

Please tell me where I can purchase an actinidia vine which you mentioned in your column on July 26. I want it to drape a half-dead cherry tree.

MRS. JOHN R. L.

I feel sure that you will be able to purchase one of these vines from your local dealer. If he does not list it please send me a self-addressed envelope and I shall be glad to send you the name of a dealer listing the vine. We can not publish names and addresses in this column. May I suggest that for tree draping you will find the Virginia creeper a more suitable variety?

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Home Training Shows.

Many a mother begins to see how well or how badly she has done her work only when her child first enters school.

Here, for the first time in his life perhaps, it is necessary for him to be independent, to be responsible for his possessions, to dress himself, to do his work without constant adult interest and supervision.

If he has been an only child he may, for the first time, be called upon to share and take turns, to be not the sole occupant and center of the stage, but one of 30 or 40 children with whom he must share the spotlight.

The child who has been unwisely trained at home sometimes reacts to this new situation with resentment, temper, tears, helplessness, and a feeling that he is lost in an unkind world.

Often he does poor work simply because of the difficulty he experiences in adjusting to what must be to him an extremely trying situation.

If he has been kept close within the circle of the familiar home faces, protected from contacts of the neighborhood, he may meet the school situation with feelings of extreme apprehension. He is frightened by the many strange faces, strange places and throngs of noisey, energetic children.

How has your home training stood the test of the first school days? If they have already shown up some of its shortcomings, it is not too late to begin at once to correct them.

If your child is fortunate enough to have an understanding and observant teacher she will be able to give you valuable hints which will help you correct your past mistakes.

German Army Officers Guests Of Summerall

Honoring Gen. von Blumberg, commander of the First Division of the German army, who is visiting the United States to study the school system of the Army, and Col. Erich Kuehlenthal, of the Reichswehr Ministry, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club. At night the Commandant of the Army War College and Mrs. William D. Connor gave a dinner at their quarters in honor of the distinguished officers. This evening Dr. Otto C. Kiep, Counselor of the German Embassy, will give a stag dinner at his home for the visitors.

Gen. Summerall's guests included Col. Kuehlenthal, who accompanies Gen. von Blumberg; the deputy chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Preston Brown; Dr. O. C. Kiep, Counselor of the German Embassy; Maj. Gen. Fred W. Sladen, Maj. Gen. W. D. Connor, Maj. Gen. S. D. Puqua, Maj. Gen. H. A. Bishop, Maj. Gen. John W. Gulick, Brig. Gen. S. H. Ford, Col. Arthur L. Conger, Col. R. C. Foy, Col. Thomas W. Darrah, Lieut. Col. Walter Krueger and Lieut. H. B. Waddell, aid to Gen. Summerall.

Gen. Blomberg is making an inspection tour of United States Army posts, visiting Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort Myer, Va., the Presidio, San Francisco; Fort Winfield Scott, Calif., and Fort Totten, N. Y., and will study the Army War College, the Infantry School, Primary and Advanced, Flying Schools, the Command and General Staff School, West Point and the Tank School.

Peruvian Attache Host at Luncheon.

Col Jose Urdanivia, military attache of the Peruvian Embassy, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton in honor of Lieut. Col. Angel M. Zuloaga, military attache of the Embassy of Argentina. Other guests included Brig. Gen. Raymond Casanave, military attache of the French Embassy; Col. L. H. R. Pope-Hennessy, military attache of the British Embassy; Lieut. Col. Marco Pennaroli, military attache of the Italian embassy; Lieut. Col. Zorobabel Galeno, military attache of the Chilean Embassy; Col. Shohei Washizu, military attache of the Japanese Embassy; Senor Coronel Don Francisco J. Aguilar Gonzalez, military attache of the Mexican Embassy; Col. Robert C. Foy, liaison officer of the War Department; Maj. Joaquin Pianell Riera, military attache of the Spanish Embassy, and Capt. Enrique A. Prieto, military attache of the Cuban Embassy.

Arts Club to Offer Paris in Miniature.

Paris in miniature, its gay streets and quaint "cut-out silhouettes" formed by odd windows and little corners will form a background for the Foire aux Croutes being given at the Arts Club on October 16, 17 and 18. The "fair," which the members of the organization are making one of the unique offerings of the season, will be a replica of the Montmartre potboilers' fair when art students bring together their productions for sale.

The work of art students of the Arts Club roster as well as clever offerings of nonprofessionals will be included in the interesting brochure of paintings, sculpture and modeling. The gardens and rooms will be transformed into a gay bit of Paris, booths of French patisserie will be installed and walls and stalls hung with bits of gay tapestries.

There will be a Pirates' Den, and the inevitable French bride and bridegroom will be impersonated by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dunn. The part of the "Pompier," the French equivalent for the chief of the volunteer fire department present on all such occasions, will be taken by Miss Josselyn Giffen.

Debs and subdebs in costumes varying from that of Kiki, done by Miss Betty deBeauvais Richards, to Miss Christine Eckengren, in a foreign dinner gown, will sell candy and cigarettes.

There will be street singers, fortune tellers and the Arts Club "Follies," under the direction of William F. Baker. The dignified "Mayor of Montmartre," in the person of Mercer Vernon, will preside.

Senor Acebo In New York On Way Here

Spanish Embassy's First Secretary Has Served in Budapest, Vienna.

The newly appointed first Secretary of the Spanish Embassy, Senor Don Ricardo Gomez Acebo, arrived in New York Sunday and will come to Washington this week.

Senor Acebo comes to Washington from Budapest, Hungary, and before that appointment was in Vienna, and the Foreign Office in Madrid. He will be an attractive addition to the bacheler contingent of Washington, and will take the place of the former Secretary of Embassy, Senor Don Jose Linares Rivas, who has returned to the home office in Madrid.

Senor Acebo is staying in New York a few days for entertainments forGen. eral Millan Astray, founder and former commander of the Spanish Foreign Legion and one of the illustrious officers of Spain. Organizer of the Legion in 1920, Gen. Astray declared the second man to enlist was an American.

Also included in the delegation greeting Gen. Astray upon his arrival were Maj. W. H. Shutan, of Fort Hamilton, representing the War Department, and Mr. Jose Gimeo, Spanish consul in New York.

Superior Court Judge, Robert Harrison Scott, of Los Angeles, Calif., has arrived in Washington and joined Mrs. Scott, who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Steffens.

Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, of New York, who has been the house guest of Miss Marie Obenauer, of Chevy Chase, for the week-end, returned to her home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fellheimer announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Maud Fellheimer, to Mr. David B. Paul, of Charlotte, N. C., on Saturday evening, October 4. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Abram Simon at the home of the bride's parents, only the immediate family being present. The bride is a graduate of the Washington College of Law and was admitted to practice before the District and United State Supreme Court in 1921. She is also a past matron of Arene Chapter, No. 10, Order of the Eastern Star.

Mr. Paul is a graduate of the University of North Carolina Law School. After an extended trip South, Mr. and Mrs. Paul will reside at the Cavalier Hotel.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

(Bureau of Animal Industry.)

Select a piece of pork for roasting—generally the ham, shoulder or loin—scrape skin clean and wipe with a damp cloth. If the ham is used and skin left on, cut with the point of a knife just through the skin, so as to dice skin, and trim with some cloves and little tufts of parsley (if desired).

Salt and pepper to taste should be sprinkled over the ham. For a ham weighing eight to ten pounds use one and two tablespoons of salt and from one-half to one teaspoon of pepper. Heat in a roasting pan from two to three tablespoons of grease. When hot put in the roast and sear quickly all over to seal the pores and prevent loss of the juice of meat. Add two small turnips to the roasting pan and one-half to one cup of boiling water. Leave skin side up (do not turn) and baste frequently.

If skin and fat are removed from ham before roasting, lard with narrow strips of larding pork, alternating with rows of little tufts of parsley. Add one small turnip, one small root of celeriac, a few cloves and five or six whole peppercorns to roasting pan. Meat may be rubbed with cloves of garlic if desired. Season as in recipe above.

Robin Smith, a young and risior but extremely sensitive poet, is invited to make one of a country house party. He accepts because Lady Gwendolen Winston with whom he is desperately in love, will also be present.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER 2.

ALSTON MANOR stands in a remote Kentish village, three miles from a railway. It is an extensive Elizabethan structure, whose stability and beauty have been the just pride of several generations of Alstons. Its several striking gables, and its charming black-and-white effects, have been again and again reproduced in periodicals devoted to architecture and handsome homes and gardens. In recent days it has been much mentioned in the newspapers because of some fabulous sum offered by an American who proposed removing the immense building across the Atlantic, stone by stone and beam by beam. The usual outcry was raised by Englishmen proud of their heritage. But this protest was quite unnecessary in this case. Impoverished as the Alstons were by the war, like many other families of the English nobility, the thought of parting with the old mansion—above all, for removal to America—never entered their heads. They did part with many acres of taxable land, and a picture or two; that was all.

Indeed, it would be difficult to imagine Alston Manor in surroundings other than those in which the fates themselves and the original builders had decreed it to stand. The Manor stands nearly in the middle of a huge walled garden. The front wall, broken by a wide ironwork gateway, faces the high road, and the village with its fourteenth century parish church and its scattered thatch-roofed cottages. Old copper-beeches and tall poplars line the path to the main entrance. But the real beauty of the place is at the back of the Manor, where, from the platformed balustrade, bordered on either side by a projecting wing of the house, the view presented is that of an oblong-shaped pond completely surrounded by a rose garden profuse with flowers, broken at intervals by small vine-clad arbors, thick shrubs, and spreading trees. Beyond the wall, opening through diminutive gateways, are extensive green gardens, and still beyond these, as far as the eye could reach, mile upon mile of green meadows and decorative patches of forest on undulating land. Peacocks strut along the edge of the pond and on the high walls, and flaunting their gorgeous feathers give just that essential exotic touch, exciting admiration.

The limousine carrying Lady Dorothy and Robin Smith rolled through the front gateway and detoured to the right, round the side, pausing before the steps of the terrace. A butler opened the door of the car, and as soon as the occupants vacated it, he took the poet's bag and followed his mistress and the visitor up the broad steps.

Once at the top, the poet paused, and, leaning on the balustrade, took in the garden with his eyes, which sparkled with pleasure and admiration. He was silent. He seemed to be oblivious to the presence of his hostess. She watched him good-naturedly, and enjoyed his delight. After all, the dear thing was a poet, and it was not given to him as to her to see that garden every day.

"Would you like to see your room?" she ventured, seeing that he had wholly forgotten her.

"No, not just now," he said slowly, after moments of silence. "If you don't mind, I'll walk through the garden. It is lovely!"

"As you like!" she replied, with mock petulance. "As for me, I must get ready for the others. I'll send Lady Gwendolen out to keep you company."

At the mention of Lady Gwendolen, the poet felt himself flush, and he hoped Lady Dorothy did not notice. What could be better than strolling in this beautiful garden with the most beautiful girl he had ever seen? His heart pounded at the thought, and he could but mumble the banal reply:

"It will be nice seeing Lady Gwendolen!"

Lady Dorothy laughed, and turning on her heels walked through the open French doors into the house.

"Does she suspect?" Robin Smith wondered. He was sensitive and proud. He did not like to appear ridiculous. What hope had he, a poor poet, of having his love returned by such an imperious creature as Lady Gwendolen? He suddenly felt small, insignificant. A wistfulness came into his eyes. And the roses mocked at him.

He was almost sorry he had come. His reflections were suddenly interrupted by the appearance of Lady Gwendolen herself, radiant and summery in a clinging, diaphanous dress which she had put on for the guests. Laughter lurked in the depths of her dark eyes, as she extended to him her small brown hand, tanned by exposure to the sun. So he had been right, Robin thought. Lady Dorothy had been laughing at him.

"And how goes the poetry today?" Lady Gwendolen was saying in her deep, sweet voice. "Come, I will show you the roses. They are my favorite flower, too."

"How did you know . . . ?"

A delighted laugh greeted Robin's bewildered effort. "I guessed," the young lady replied, her eyes scrutinizing him narrowly. He was so totally different from the immaculate young aristocrats of her acquaintance as to pique her interest.

For a moment Robin felt strangely intimate and pleased, but her next remark shattered the illusion.

"Poets all like roses, and moonlight, and tinkling waterfalls, and fauns and fairies, don't they?" The laughter in those opaque black eyes was mocking him.

"Aren't you ever kind?" he asked, gently.

It was Lady Gwendolen's turn to be abashed. She dreaded seriousness as the people of the Middle Ages dreaded the plague. With a wave of her hand she sped on ahead, finding silence and distance the best means of ignoring this new turn in the conversation. By the time Robin overtook her, they were opposite the deep red roses she had brought him to see.

"My brother is back, did you know?" she plunged into a safer subject than roses in June. "I never was so glad to see anyone in my life! It's nearly a year since he went off to Canada!"

Robin found scant consolation in the fact that the lady of his desire adored her brother beyond any of her suitors. There was no chance for a poor young poet, anyway; all he dared hope for was that he might be allowed to see her sometimes; that she would talk to him alone, as she did now. His present state of ecstasy deprived him of the power to make adequate replies. He stared from her to the roses and back to her silently.

"It's Andree Opie," explained Lady Gwendolen to Robin. "Here I am!" she called over her shoulder in the direction from which the voice had come.

Robin remembered that voice well; six years before he had thought he was in love with the little French girl who was now the "girl wife" of a prominent member of parliament. Then, as now, he had worshiped in silence, but Andree had been kind to him. She had even let him kiss her—once. He remembered it with startling poignancy; it had made him very sad, and he had written one of his best poems when he returned to his little attic in the Rue Vavin.

A small figure in a brilliant green dress appeared around the edge of the garden as Robin stood recalling these things. The smiling face was wreathed in reddish golden curls, and the blue eyes flaked with gold lighted up with recognition the moment they spied Robin. With a laughing greeting to Lady Gwendolen, Andree strode past her straight to Robin.

"My sweet boy," she cooed, as she took his hand in both of hers. "I had not known that you were to be here. I am so glad. Do you remember the night in Luxembourg Gardens, mon cher?"

Lady Gwendolen watched this meeting with mingled feelings. She was rather relieved, but at the same time she did not fancy having even an unwanted cavalier snatched from under her nose.

"I was showing Mr. Smith the roses," she said, placing her hand on Robin's arm, and gently maneuvering him away from the other. "These are the Princess Marya, the very loveliest of all, I think. And these," drawing him still farther from the astonished French girl, "while not nearly so rare, are my very favoritest of all. Is there such a word as favoritest, Mr. Smith?" She smiled tenderly on Robin.

Robin, unexpectedly finding himself in Lady Gwendolen's favor, did not exactly like the circumstances which precipitated this sudden state of affairs. He admitted to himself his infatuation for the younger woman, yet at the same time he felt a loyalty to Andree; and it was not pleasant to discover himself torn between two feminine factions. It was just his luck, too, to have two lovely women making up to him at the same time; and every one who knows anything at all about such matters is aware that it is worse than having none. Here was an occasion for tact; and tact, he had to confess to himself, was not one of his strong points. Indeed, he despised tact, and employed it only to conform to social amenities.

"You haven't answered my question," said Lady Gwendolen, laughter once more lurking in her eyes. "Is there such a word as 'favoritest'?"

"No, there isn't. But there ought to be!"

Quick to catch his meaning, she said:

"I see you are a true poet, Mr. Smith. It is the prerogative of poets to go off on a rampage!"

She seemed pleased with him, yet laughing at him at the same time. He couldn't make her out at all. What most astonished him was that she took his arm, causing his heart to flutter. Then, quite as suddenly, she reconsidered. She let his arm go, and, as if surrendering her conquest, said:

"Well, I must be going to receive the other guests. Mr. Poet, I shall leave you in the hands of Lady Andree!"

PROPERTY DAMAGED BY TEXAS RAINFALL

NONE DEAD; RIVERS HIGH

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Torrential rains which spread from Texas across the Rio Grande into Mexico today flooded lands long parched by serious drought, doing great damage to property and farm crops, but taking no known toll of lives.

Brady, Tex., was the hardest hit community when the usually tranquil Brady River spread from 3 to 8 feet of water over several blocks of the business section.

From 30 to 40 small homes were carried away, making from 200 to 300 persons homeless, and merchandies stocks suffered approximately $250,000 damage. About 1,000 bales of cotton stored in a shed near the river's banks were washed downstream.

The light and power plant also was submerged and forced to shut down. The water supply was menaced and there was a probability of a food shortage. The Brady Chapter of the American Red Cross had organized a relief program for those who lost their homes and personal belongings.

The Guadalupe River rose 18 feet near Kerrville after three days of continuous rain measured 7¾ inches.

Tony Sanchez and two companions, who attempted to cross a bridge over the river in an automobile, were swept downstream. Sanchez floated 5 miles on a log, finally pulling himself to safety in the top of a tree. He later was rescued. His companions swam out immediately.

The San Saba river in the vicinity of Menard was the highest in 20 years and the floodwaters were spreading over a large area of lowlands. It was believed all live stock had been driven to safety, however.

The Rio Grande at Del Rio, where more than 10 inches of rain fell, had risen 8 feet and still was raising. The Devils River, in the same section, was up 15 feet and still rising. Reports to Del Rio from Mexico said streams on the other side of the international boundary were rampant. Heavy rains were reported in the southern republic.

Floors of downtown stores in Corpus Christi, on the coast, were flooded when 1½ inches of rain fell within an hour.

Hoover En Route To Site of Battle

President Will Speak at Sesquicentennial Fete of King's Mountain.

Aboard Hoover Special Train, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—With his two addresses before the American Legion and the American Federation of Labor in Boston today behind him, President Hoover sped southward tonight to Kings Mountain battlefield, S. C., where tomorrow he speaks at the sesquicentennial of the Revolutionary War battle.

After a 21-hour run to Kings Mountain, N. C., the President is to attend the exercises there and then motor the remaining 8 miles into South Carolina to the site of the battle.

En route he arranged for Gen. A. J. Bowley, Assistant Chief of Staff, to join him at Washington. Gen. Bowley formerly commanded the Army corps area in which North Carolina is included.

Strikers in Bilbao Are Back at Work

Authorities Are Confident No More Riots Are in Prospect.

Bilbao, Spain, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—With the return to work of practically all of those who have been on strike for more than a week, the tension of the last two days began to wane tonight and authorities were confident that no more riots were in prospect.

A communique from the governor's office said that industrial and mine workers in nearby towns, who struck in sympathy with the Bilbao union men, also had gone back to work.

Heavy guards were kept posted following the riots of yesterday in which a man was killed and several persons were wounded, but the city is rapidly resuming its normal aspect.

Coste and Bellonte Land In Atlanta From Florida

Atlanta, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French transatlantic aviators, landed here shortly before 5 p. m. (C. S. T.) today in their ocean-spanning airplane Question Mark after a flight of little less than three hours from Pensacola, Fla., on a good-will tour of the United States.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, French transatlantic aviators, arrived here at 12:03 p. m. (C. S. T.) today from New Orleans in continuation of their good-will flight. They inspected the Naval Air Station at Fort Barrancas and after lunch turned their airplane toward Atlanta, the next stop.

Hundreds See Robber, Policeman in Gun Duel

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Hundreds of pedestrians in Seventh avenue, across the street from the Pennsylvania Station, watched a battle today between a traffic policeman and a robber who had held up a haberdashery and shot the proprietor in the leg.

The policeman, hearing the shot, gave chase as the robber backed from the store, fired once in the air, then grappled with the man. Pedestrians took to cover as the pistol barked, but surged about the battlers as the fight progressed. The prisoner was subdued.

W. F. Kenny's Daughter Wed to British Officer

Marlow, Buckinghamshire, England, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—William F. Kenny, millionaire New York contractor, tonight announced to the Associated Press that his daughter, Alice Kenny, and Capt. Percy Lawson-Johnston were quietly married here last Saturday.

Dispensation for Wedding Of Boris Denied at Vatican

Papal Organ, Osservatore Romano, Asserts Church's Permission for Mixed Rite Has Not Been Asked by King; News Causes Sensation in Rome.

Rome, Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.):—Osservatore Romano, mouthpiece of the Vatican, publishes a statement in tonight's issue that falls like a bomb upon the national rejoicing over the approaching marriage between Princess Giovanna, the King of Italy's only daughter, and Boris III, King of Bulgaria.

Although it was stated in Roman newspapers last Saturday that Pope Pius XI had graciously given his dispensation, under canon law 1061, which allows in certain cases for mixed marriages, Osservatore denies tonight that any such dispensation has been given. The papal organ says:

"The Italian press gives particulars about what it calls the religious problem. This implies—and the newspapers have clearly announced—that the needful dispensation has already been asked for and granted. From the information we have obtained it appears that this has not taken place up to the present. It seems superfluous to add that what these papers have published is absurd, namely, that the dispensation can take place even if to make possible one exception to the rule that all children of mixed marriages must be baptized and educated according to Catholic rites."

This cryptic statement is widely discussed here tonight. The only available explanation of it appears to be that Boris and Giovanna will not be married in the Catholic church, as the Bulgarian constitution provides that the heir to the Bulgarian throne must be a member of the Bulgarian Orthodox Church. This is a basic condition for Boris's heir to inherit the throne.

The whole situation is very mysterious, especially as Pope Piux XI has sent to the King of Italy, Giovanna's father, his congratulations on the forthcoming marriage. These were published by all journals here, except Osservatore Romano.

Court and government circles decline to comment on the statement in this evening's Osservatore. One court official, however, recalled tonight that Boris was born and christened a Catholic and afterward turned orthodox. This cost his father, former King Ferdinand, the friendship of the Vatican, but the Bulgarian constitution made it necessary if Boris was to succed his father.

Giovanna's mother, Queen Elena, was born and reared in the orthodox church, but became Catholic on her marriage to King Victor Emanuel. It is suggested here that Giovanna might return to the faith of her mother's Montenegrin race.

Despite the Osservatore's puzzling announcement, the fact remains that King Victor Emanuel must have made all needful arrangements for the coming marriage before he officially announced his daughter's engagement last Saturday. Time will show exactly what those arrangements are. Meanwhile all Italy awaits the explanation with the keenest interest.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

At the moment, the sum total of my information concerning the present state of the cinema is encompassed by the knowledge that the stretch of weather that has carried over these latter ten days or so has been very elegant for outings in the open; that boats do get below Hains Point, chilly as these nights are on the river; that if you are of a mind to hunt it out, miniature mountain climbing may be enjoyed in the more rugged recesses of Rock Creek Park; that there is still a seashore skirting the eastern edge of these United States; that the grass seed strewn recklessly around the lawn in late September pushed its way up in practically no time at all and turned out to be mostly plantain, with a fine mixture of dandelion, burdock and ragweed to fill in the interstices—if that is what I mean; that the St. Louis Cardinals better begin to step and that the saggy place in the back fence, that I have been intending to fix for a couple of weeks now, still sags, although in the meantime I have laid by a swell supply of paving material for the main streets of Hades—and don't think THAT won't come in handy!

Acclimated and addicted as I have thus become to the more or less fresh air and the comparatively wide open places, it was perhaps no more than natural that I should have gone first to see "Africa Speaks," that amazing pictorial record of a long trek through the equatorial heart of the Dark Continent, currently occupying the screen at the RKO-Keith Theater.

Despite disquieting recollections of "Ingagi" here, it seems to me, is an engrossing and reasonably authentic celluloid recital of more extravagant adventures and a quicker succession of ominous and sudden dangers than most of us would care to risk otherwise than inside an armored tank or high up in a balloon—and then not.

It is the lion stuff that I have particularly in mind. In one long sequence Paul L. Hoefler and his associates have managed to photograph in close-up a seemingly greater number of wild lions than there are dogs in the District pound—and they are no house pets, either! On the contrary, they are man-eaters every one, all sizes and ages and all ravenously hungry. I judge this from the voracious manner in which they bring about the precipitate demise of divers wildebeests, wart hogs, etcetera, which they devour with much lusty lip-smacking on the spot.

Indeed, in a daring and vivid glimpse of such tragic happenings as sometimes overcome even the best ordered safari, we view the startling spectacle of a black runner falling a terror-stricken victim to the swift attack of the king of beasts. Neither a pretty nor a soothing sight. But it is of this horrifying incident that I am most skeptical.

During this lion attack, Mr. Hoefler is seen grinding away at his motion picture camera until it becomes time to flee the ferocity of the angered beast and dispatch him with a volley of pistol bullets—a good trick, if you can do it. All this time the invisible camera that was taking the scene actually shown on the screen kept right on grinding and recorded the complete, uninterrupted action of the most exciting sequence in a film tightly packed with thrills.

I trust I have destroyed no illusions. Even if I have, it is still a great picture.

As has been pointed out here, and elsewhere, before, history has a quaint way of repeating itself.

Some eleven or twelve years ago, when Tom Moore was operating his newly opened Rialto Theater and ace productions capable of "standing up" for a week's run were scarcer than they are now, there was booked for the Ninth street house, at a ridiculously low cost, a film that was accepted "sight unseen," wholly on the strength of a six-week run it had just completed on the West Coast. It was a King Vidor production, as I remember it, with an adult cast that included Helen Jerome Eddy, Lloyd Hughes, Winter Hall and a precocious and handsome youngster some 7 or 8 years old, who afterward appeared in Griffith's "Hearts of the World" and many other notable pictures. While this juvenile actor was by no means the star of this hit picture, he conceded nothing to the others in the cast and contributed much to the action that served to emphasize the moral of the story—that happiness and contentment are frequently much nearer at hand and much easier to apprehend than we suspect, or something to that general effect.

However, that is not so much the point as that that same youngster, now grown to the 19 or 20 years he is supposed to have lived in the story, is today enacting another important role upon that same screen in Carl Laemmle's tremendously impressive picturization of Erich Maria Remarque's "All Quiet on the Western Front," and is to the last jot and tittle fulfilling the splendid promise of his early boyhood before the camera.

The player is Ben Alexander, the role that of Franz Kemmerich, who dies so needlessly and so pathetically in young Baumer's arms.

Reverting briefly to "Africa Speaks," I certainly would like to have one of those leaping Impallas to enter as a steeplechaser out at Laurel, where the bangtails get off today. It is nothing at all for them to jump 10 or 15 feet into the air for a sustained flight of from 40 to 50 feet. Winter on the Riviera, what I mean!

Kincheloe Takes Post As Customs Court Judge

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—David H. Kincheloe, of Madisonville, Ky., Democratic member of the House of Representatives from the Second Kentucky District for sixteen years, was sworn in today as associate judge of the United States Customs Court, in charge of the second division. He was appointed by President Hoover on September 22, and resigned yesterday from the House to accept the post.

Madisonville, Ky., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Glover H. Cary, of Owensboro, Commonwealth's attorney of Daviess County, was nominated for Congress to succeed David H. Kincheloe today by the Democratic committee of the Second District. There is no Republican opposition, assuring Cary's election in November.

Noah Berry Defendant In $1,950 Damage Suit

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Noah Beery, screen actor, was sued for $1,950 damages today by George Gary, cook, who accused the actor of knocking him down and ejecting him from his Trout Clubhouse, September 21.

Gary said the asserted attack was "without provocation" and he became ill with a cold because of his enforced five-hour sojourn outside the house. Gary said he weighed 117 pounds and the actor weighed approximately 200 pounds.

Rites for Veteran Opera Singer.

POLICE INQUIRIES BEGUN

Chicago, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The recent disappearance of confidential police correspondence and its subsequent discovery in the hands of Al Capone gangsters had its sequel today in the transfer of Capt. John Ryan, deputy detective chief, to the miscellaneous division—a sort of police department exile.

The correspondence dealt with the police campaign against men listed by the crime commission as "public enemies" and contained a list of gangsters to be arrested as vagrants. The list disappeared from the desk of Ryans' secretary, Sergt. William Balswick. The latter, Ryan said, made a new list from memory. The new list omitted eight men whose names had been checked from the original list when it was found under the pillow of Tony Tagenti, Capone follower. The coincidence prompted an exhaustive investigation of possible disloyalty within police ranks.

Two inquiries were under way today, one by a special police committee of the city council and the other by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, who cited the missing list incident and ordered the October grand jury to investigate the September grand jury's report that a "well established alliance" exists between the police department, corrupt politics and crime.

Disciplined Captain Defended.

In stripping Ryan of his command, Commissioner John H. Alcock said he did not believe Ryan had anything to do with the disappearance of the list, but maintained he should have seen to it that no names were omitted from the second list. He also said there was no evidence against Balswick.

The aldermanic committee decided to summon Ryan and Balswick Friday for their version of the affair. Alcock told the committee he would prefer charges against Ryan if so directed, but added he did not believe the committee was justified in forcing Ryan to trial before the civil service commission.

Lieut. Lawrence W. Rafferty, who has worked with Alcock for many years, was assigned to replace Ryan. Balswick was left in his preset position.

Foster Demands Trial.

As a matter of routine, Frank Foster, reputed owner of the pistol used to kill Lingle, and under indictment for the murder of the reporter, made a fourth demand for an immediate trial. According to law, if he is not brought to trial within 30 days of the fourth demand, he can go free. His case has been set for October 20.

Frank H. Bell, county jail prisoner, who implicated himself and another prisoner, Richard Sullivan, in his confession that they drove the car for the alleged slayers of Lingle, was arraigned with Sullivan in criminal court on a charge of killing Chris Patris last June.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler pronounced Bell's confession a pure fabrication and said the prisoner was bargaining to escape the electric chair for the murder of Patras. Bell said Sullivan shot Patras when the latter did not produce $10,000 promised them for their participation in the Lingle case.

Gunman Sought Here.

The aid of District authorities was asked by Chicago police yesterday in a search for Frank Natti, gangster gunman, who is believed to be secreted near Washington after engaging in a series of gang reprisals in Chicago.

Natti is said to be a lieutenant of the famous "Scarface" Al Capone. He was recently questioned by Chicago detectives about the murder of Jake Lingle, Chicago Tribune crime reporter, who was assassinated in a railroad terminal in Chicago by a gunman several months ago.

The gangster is believed to be on his way to Florida, where it is thought that he intends to join other Chicago criminals who are hiding in that Southern State.

Information linking Natti with a number of underworld slayings in Chicago has been forwarded to police here. Many of the slayings have been those of vice barons and leaders in the beer and drug rings.

OFFICER IS NAMED TO CREECY'S POST

Lieut. Col. Vogel Will Go on Haitian Duty; Rites Set for Hatchet Victim.

SERVICES TO BE SIMPLE

Lieut. Col. Clayton B. Vogel, U. S. Marine Corps, yesterday was appointed by the Navy Department as Chief of Staff of the Haitien Constabulary to succeed Lieut. Col. Richard Bennett Creecy, who shot and killed himself and fatally hacked his wife, Mrs. Marie Louise Creecy, in the Mayflower Hotel, September 28.

Col. Vogel, now on duty at the Naval Operating Base, Hampton Roads, Va., was ordered to duty immediately. Entering the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant from Pennsylvania in 1904, Col. Vogel has had wide experience, serving with the Haitian Constabulary from August 31, 1916 to November 1, 1918.

While on duty in the office of the Judge Advocate General of the Navy, he was ordered to Nicaragua on April 2, 1929, as chief of staff under the American commander of the National Guard until last June 1. He has been recommended for the Nicaraguan medal of merit.

Burial of Mrs. Creecy.

Funeral services for Mrs. Creecy, who died Sunday from her wounds, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at Westminster, Md., with burial at the cemetery there beside the grave of her mother.

It was revealed yesterday that a joint will drawn up by Col. Creecy and Mrs. Creecy requested that they be buried together beside the grave of Mrs. Creecy's mother. This will was made last December. Members of the Creecy family decided not to carry out these wishes. Col. Creecy is buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Simple Rites Planned.

The final rites will be simple. All friends and relatives of Mrs. Creecy have been invited.

Mrs. Creecy died at Emergency Hospital a week after she was found unconscious in the suite at the Mayflower Hotel, the lifeless body of Col. Creecy beside her. She had been attacked with a hatchet. She never regained consciousness. It was the conclusion of investigators that Col. Creecy had attempted to kill his wife and then ended his own life.

CHAMBER WORKERS PREPARE FOR DRIVE

Expansion Teams Will Meet at Breakfast to Lay Last Plans.

WILL GET INSTRUCTIONS

Team workers and their commanders of the Washington Chamber of Commerce five-year expansion program will meet at a breakfast at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow morning for the official start of the campaign.

The meeting is to be given the designation of "the early bird breakfast." It is to begin at 7:45 o'clock. About 150 workers are expected to be there, composing 25 teams. They will be given final instructions in the form of a demonstration and a sales talk.

Thomas P. Littlepage, colonel in charge of the campaign, will preside. Other officials who will be present are Edward Goring Bliss, lieutenant colonel; four majors, H. A. Brooks, Darrell P. Aub, George E. Kneipp and Ernest J. Spitzer. Six captains under the majors will also attend.

The breakfast tomorrow is to be followed by a luncheon to which the editors of the five Washington newspapers are to be invited. The newspaper editors will be asked to give their views on the "Washington Forward Movement" which is to be interwoven with the expansion campaign. Expressions on how the movement may benefit and develop business will be sought.

Luncheons are to be held Thursday and Friday, and radio talks are to be given throughout the week. The board of directors of the chamber will meet tonight and discuss the campaign.

The plural committee of the campaign, of which Martin A. Leese is chairman, met yesterday at the Washington Hotel. This committee is concentrating on large concerns. Considerable progress was reported in increasing the membership of employees in various concerns as members of the chamber.

Man Slain in Rum Feud Declared College Man

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Carl J. Dominic, 21, was wounded fatally here today in what police said was a bootleggers' feud. They said he was employed as a mechanic while earning his way through Ohio State University. He was not registered at the university at the time of the slaying.

Loren Weaver, William R. Brennan and Ralph Johnson were arrested for questioning. Police said Weaver told them Dominic was delivering 5 gallons of liquor to him when the shooting occurred.

Eight Die as European Air Liner Is Wrecked

Berlin, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Six passengers and two crew members lost their lives today when a Berlin-to-Vienna Lufthansa airplane crashed near Dresden. No one of its occupants escaped death. Two women were among the victims, Frau Craefe, wife of an official of the line at Sofia, and Fraulein Bluemel.

P. W. Blackwell, a British business man of Shanghai, bound for Prague, was another of the victims. Names of the others were said to be Foeldes, Knittell and Kuehnelt. Erich Pust was pilot and Max Lange mechanic.

$38,000 in Alcohol Seized in Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A carload of grain alcohol, valued at $38,000, the fourth large shipment of contraband seized here in six weeks, was in the hands of prohibition officials today, who attempted to trace its origin.

The names of both consignor and consignee were found to be fictitious when the shipment, billed as wrapping paper, was seized on a railroad siding yesterday. Three carloads of beer, one of which was traced to Philadelphia, had been seized previously.

HOBBS MAIL FRAUD CHARGE IS QUASHED

Demurrers Are Sustained; No Appeal or Effort to Reindict Indicated.

LEGAL PERIOD EXPIRES

Charges of using the mails to defraud contained in an indictment recently returned in District Supreme Court against James D. Hobbs, former official of the Wardman Corporation, were quashed yesterday in the court when Justice Joseph W. Cox sustained demurrers to the bill filed by Attorney Daniel Thew Wright.

It was indicated later in the day that no appeal from the ruling of the court would be taken by the Government and that no effort to reindict Hobbs would be made, since the statute of limitations governing the alleged offenses has expired.

In the indictment it was alleged that Hobbs, for the purpose of defrauding an individual, had deposited three letters in the mails on June 10, 1927, August 19, 1927, and November 8, 1927. It also was alleged that notes secured by a deed of trust were converted by Mr. Hobbs without the knowledge of the owner of the property.

Justice Cox heard the case several days ago in reference to the demurrer and yesterday handed down his written opinion. He held in effect that "it was not shown with certainty that the scheme was devised before the use of the mails in the execution thereof."

The justice also held that there was no direct "allegation of the falsity" of Hobbs' alleged statements to John V. Morris, owner of the property, that he did not command unusual facilities for the management and sale of the property involved.

TRIED FOR 1883 KILLING

Guntersville, Ala., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Exhibiting scars he said were caused by wounds during a fight 47 years ago, James Neely, 70, testified today in his trial on charges of murder in connection with the death in 1883 of Hiram Cooley. Neely was the only defense witness and said Cooley died from a wound inflicted by his brother, Tom Neely, now dead.

The defendant declared that Cooley attacked him with a stick. He was on the stand only a short time and argument by counsel was begun late in the afternoon.

Two State witnesses gave details of the slaying which occurred before most of the jury were born, and when the presiding judge, A. E. Hawkins, was 1 year old.

James Cooley, a brother of the slain man, and John Berry Walls, 68, an eyewitness to the fight, were witnesses for the prosecution and gave their version of the altercation that left Hiram dying.

James and Hiram Cooley were returning from the little Manchester Church on Sunday afternoon, November 2, 1883, the surviving brother said, when they met James and Thomas Neely, who also had attended the services. There, he said, a quarrel which began over a remark made by Hiram about 16-year-old Lucy Hilburn, now Mrs. Will Brown, 63, was renewed.

Sticks and rocks were used, he recalled, and Hiram fell after a blow on the head from which he died three days later. Wall's story was substantiately the same. Other State witnesses included Bill Jordan, 70, and C. G. Finnell, who were young deputies then and who went to the Neely home after Hiram Cooley died, only to find the Neely brothers had fled.

Neely entered a plea of not guilty by reason of self-defense.

Leaders of the Pennsylvania Fleet to Chicago

CERTAIN trains play such an important part in the lives of the communities they serve that their names become almost synonymous with the names of their cities of destination. Two such trains are The Golden Arrow and the Liberty Limited of the Pennsylvania fleet to Chicago.

And two others are the equally famous flyers to St. Louis, The American and the "Spirit of St. Louis."

Their equipment, the service of their personnel, and the delicious food served on their modern diners are worthy of the fast, rigidly kept schedules which have made these trains the favorites of experienced travelers.

When you plan a trip to Chicago or St. Louis think first of all of the Pennsylvania. Eight trains leave each day for Chicago, six for St. Louis. Each travels over one of the smoothest roadbeds in America laid with rails more than one-third heavier than those in ordinary use.

WHEN that question is put to you in that blunt fashion—you won't hesitate about your answer. You'll admit that the men who build your car know more about its mechanism and its lubrication than you do.

But do you buy oils and greases on that basis? Do you use the oil which has been specified by factory experts as the proper one for your car? Or do you buy a heavier oil than you should be using? Many people, thinking that the heavier an oil is the better it is, are regularly using oils too heavy for the proper lubrication of their cars. This results in a drag on the motor, causing decreased power and mileage.

The factory experts have designated the correct oil for your type of motor by an S. A. E. number.

Wherever Amoco Motor Oils are sold, the attendant has a chart showing just the proper grade for your car under summer or cold weather conditions. Consult the attendant the next time you stop for oil. He'll be glad to advise you as to the grade of oil for your car—recommended by the factory that built it.

And he'll have that grade of Amoco Motor Oil "right on tap", ready to serve you!

Bids received for the stone work on Senate office building. The low bid was $1,010,000.

The Athletics beat the Nats two games to clinch the pennant. Chief Bender pitched both games. He made five hits, including two triples and a double, scored two runs, batted seven in, struck out fourteen men.

STOCKS' GAINS LOST WHILE SALES DROP

U. S. STEEL OFF 3 POINTS

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Slow but steady pressure pushed stocks downward today, virtually completing the erasure of last week's rally and leaving the average for 90 issues only one-fifth of a point above the year's low set on September 30. Sales were well below the volume reached in the recent liquidation, however, totaling 2,365,060 shares.

The decline was accompanied by considerable unsettlement in other markets. Wheat closed fractionally higher on a rebound from early losses of 1½ to 2 cents and corn made a substantially larger recovery after similar declines. Bonds lost their vigor. The Brazilian situation brought distinct weakness to coffee futures as well as to the republic's bonds and obligations of other Latin-American countries. Cotton lost 4 to 10 points net.

The selling on the stock market was particularly disturbing to those who had hoped that last week's lows in the leaders would offer formidable resistance points. In general, these favorites gave ground most readily today under a dribble rather than a flood of offerings, which indicated that real liquidation was again in progress and that the bear faction was playing a relatively minor role.

Explanation for Slump.

Discouragement over the failure of last week's advance to hold for more than a day was the most frequently heard explanation for the market's action. Holders of stocks who had weathered the long decline terminating in last Wednesday's recovery were said to have been disappointed by the prompt reaction from that rally, and some selling by investment trusts was also reported.

Saturday's weakness in American Telephone and other so-called "blue chip" shares seemed to have had an unfavorable effect, for it was in stocks of this grade that some of the day's major losses were suffered. Virtually all of the investment rails made new 1930 lows. Prominent utilities and industrials slumped with only sickly attempts at rallies.

Many prominent shares were off 2 to 6 points and more on the day, which meant that new lows for the year or for the broad downward movement were numerous. There was virtually no improvement on covering at the close. U. S. Steel, breaking to 153½ against its 1930 low of 151⅝, and American Telephone, which touched 300½, only ⅜ from the year's minimum, closed slightly above the bottom for 3-point net losses, and such, on the whole, was the performance of other popular investment shares.

Business News of Day.

Aside from the disturbances in Brazil the day's news afforded little that was either alarming or encouraging. Woolworth's September sales were up a fraction in comparison with the same month a year ago, but receipts of another chain system were nearly 15 per cent lower. Atchison's president said the road had gone into surplus for capital expenditures, and there were reports that the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific might postpone construction of a Montana extension because of poor earnings.

Withdrawals of about $50,000,000, mostly for out-of-town banks, kept the money market firm. Loan calling was heavy about a fortnight ago, but the funds found their way back rather than into industry and Wall street expected a repetition of this movement.

Commission house sentiment was rather blue, but some of the statistical services advised careful purchases of selected stocks, especially on reactions. Inquiry from this and other sources, however, was limited and the market's own weight seemed to carry it down.

Allied Chemical Off 18 Points.

There were 5-point net declines in American Can, North American, Dupon, and Case. Westinghouse Electric, Canadian Pacific and American & Foreign Power lost 6, American Water Works nearly 9, and Allied Chemical 18. Radio made a new low for the year, off more than 2 points. General Electric, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Johns-Manville, Consolidated Gas and Baltimore & Ohio yielded 1½ to 2, while New York Central, Union Pacific, Gillette, Bethlehem Steel, Columbia Gas, Standard Gas and Sears Roebuck closed 3 to 4 lower. Atchison's loss was nearly 5.

Foreign exchanges eased. As was to be expected, the Brazilian milreis broke sharply. German marks were quoted at their year's low.

The recovery in wheat, which closed about ¼ cent higher, was based on an unexpected decrease in the visible supply. Corn rallied 1¾ net, likewise reflecting a reduction in supply as well as forecasts of unfavorable weather.

Woolworth Sales Total $22,352,534

Chain Shows 0.4 Per Cent Gain in September Over Similar 1929 Month.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—F. W. Woolworth Co. today reported September sales of $22,352,534, an increase of 0.4 per cent over sales of $22,264,336 for the corresponding month last year. This was the first time since April the chain has reported a gain over last year.

H. T. Parson, president, said the entire Eastern district from Maine to Florida, inclusive, and as far west as Pittsburgh, as well as the Pacific Coast district, showed a gain of 5 per cent in old stores, against a loss in those same stores of 6.32 per cent in August.

"Stores west of Pittsburgh and east of the Rockies," he added, "show a very much improved condition in sales, as their loss in old stores for September is only 7.5 per cent, against a loss in August in the same stores of 16.5 per cent" Sales for the first nine months this year totaled $196,466,061, a decrease of 4.1 per cent from $205,042,307 in the like period of 1929.

SEVERAL BRAZILIAN BONDS SINK HEAVILY

WARRANT LIST WEAKENS

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—There was a fresh outbreak of selling of Latin-American obligations in the bond market today, inspired by reports of revolutionary uprisings in Brazil, where martial law has been declared.

Active selling forced a wide list of Brazilian issues down 1 to 7 points, many to new 1930 lows, and influenced liquidation in bonds of Colombia, Peru, Bolivia, Chile and Argentina.

The weakness in the South American list was the feature of a session in which minus signs were placed after a majority of active bonds. The domestic section was highly irregular, with the exception of U. S. Governments. There a firm trend was maintained on a dwindling volume of sales.

Better Corporate Issues Firm.

Among corporate issues, the gilt-edged bonds held firm. Secondary issues eased, and speculative bonds, particularly sugar and oil obligations, were reactionary.

The heaviest liquidation in the South American list centered in Brazilian government bonds, and loans of the States of Rio Grande do Sul and Sao Paulo. The extreme loss was 14½ points in City of Sao Paulo 6½s. Sao Paulo State 6s sold off 8¼; 7s, 8¾, and the 8s dropped 6.

New year's lows were reached by Brazilian 6½s of 1926-1957, off 5 points, 6½s of 1927-1957 down 2⅜ and the 8s off 4. Bonds of Rio Grande do Sul, where a state of siege exists, were easily depressed by thin offerings. Losses ranged from 3 to 7 points. Rio de Janeiro 8s were heavily liquidated, and moved down nearly 2 points to 95¾. The 6½s yielded 5.

Other Latin American Losses.

The unsettlement influenced by the Brazilian revolution was reflected in sharp losses elsewhere in the Latin American list. Argentine 6s, Bolivian 7s and 8s, Colombia 6s, Costa Rica 7s, Cuba 5½s, Peru 1st and 2d 6s, and Uruguay 6s were 1 to 3 lower. Chilean bonds were in supply slightly under previous final prices.

Bonds of companies with extensive interests in South America such as Anglo-Chilean Nitrate 7s, Lautaro Nitrate 6s, American & Foreign Power 5s, and American I. G. Chemical 5½s sagged a point or more.

Weakness of shares influenced some liquidation in stock privilege bonds. The largest losses were suffered by American Telephone 4½s, International Telephone 4½s, Atchison 4½s and Paramount Publix 5½s. They lost about 2 points each. In the industrial group sugar company issues, such as Manati 7½s, Sugar Oriente and Antilla 7½s were reactionary. Shell Union Pipe Line 5s dropped 3 points to a new 1930 low. Among railroad bonds a 3-point loss in St. Paul adjustment 5s to 44½, a new low, was a feature.

BUSINESS RECOVERY LOOMS, SAYS REVIEW

SLOW ADVANCE IS SEEN

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The conviction now is developing in the minds of well-informed executives in most sections of the country that industry and trade have finally turned the low point of depression and that a revival of activity is impending, the monthly review of the Lincoln National Bank stated yesterday.

It explains that October brings business to a period when advances of a seasonal nature may be expected and that moderate improvement began in September, in some instances. Such improvement, it reminds, however can not be described as vigorous in any sense, as in some lines recession continues. But the rate of decline, the review emphasizes, was slowed down. Thus, the movement in both directions was not startling.

A determination of the collective business mind to climb out, no matter what may come, is seen by the bank's reviewers, and to the business observer, this is more encouraging than the optimistic statements that were so common during the period of dullness in July and August.

Corporate Trust Shares Data.

There are now outstanding in the hands of investors more than 8,000,000 Corporate Trust Shares, according to John Y. Robbins, president of Administrative Research Corporation of New York. He stated that on January 1, there were only 884,000 Corporate Trust Shares outstanding, and that this distribution of over 7,000,000 shares in eight months represents a record for investment trust securities of the fixed type. This record is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that these trust shares were not actively offered in the Eastern section of the United States until March.

"Had there been included such shares as may have been repurchased and resold to investors, the figure would of course have been larger than 8,000,000 shares," Mr. Robbins said. "On June 30 of this year, the trustee distributed to holders of Corporate Trust shares $7,537,945. Notwithstanding this substantial payment to shareholders, the trustee now holds more than $4,000,000 in a cash reserve fund to stabilize future distributions. Interest on this reserve fund is paid to shareholders."

Life Underwriters Meeting.

The October meeting of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association will be held Thursday afternoon, at 12:30 o'clock, at Hay-Adams House. The speaker will be James M. Stokes, jr., of the Philadelphia agency of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. His subject will be "Procuring My Business."

Paul D. Sleeper, chairman of the association's educational committee, announces the formation of a study class in preparation for the next examinations to be held in June. Applications may be obtained from the chairman.

McCrory Stores Corporation report September earnings at $3,280,888, an 8.4 per cent decrease from the month last year. Earnings for the nine months were $29,219,677 or 1.8 per cent behind the period last year.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Directors of Compania Swift International have voted an extra dividend of $1 a share to stockholders of record of October 15, it was announced today. Payment will be made November 15. The 1930 earnings to date, the announcement said, compare favorably with the earnings for the same period in 1929.

The Bank of Japan today lowered its discount rate from 3.48 to 3.11 per cent.

The General Tire & Rubber Co. today declared its regular quarterly dividend of $1 on common stock, payable November 1 to stock of record October 20. W. O. O'Neil, president of the company, announced that September business for this year exceeded that of the same month a year ago. He said operations of the plant will continue at the September rate for October, November and December, and will be increased in January, 1931.

The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 2,749,000, corn decreased 41,000, oats increased 231,000; rye increased 338,000, barley increased 159,000.

Cotton goods opened quiet today in the gray cloth division. Moderate orders were reported for finished goods in the mails. Burlaps were fairly steady. Wool goods for nearby cutting were in fair request. Raw silk was slightly weaker. Rayon crepes continue to sell well. Rayon yarns were irregular.

Raw silk futures closed barely steady; sales, 1,290 bales. December, 21; March, 216; May, 215; open market quotations (60-day basis), Shanghai steam, extra B, 260; Canton double extra A, 14 to 16s, 165; Japanese crack double extra, 250.

Rubber futures closed quiet; December, $7.60; March, $8; May, $8.30. New contracts, December, $7.83; March, $8.10; May, $8.30.

Wall street heard today that the $100,000,000 30-year 4-per cent loan for the Canadian government would be offered tomorrow. The price was said to be around 95.

Gold imports from Latin America today totaled $1,084,538. The Chemical Bank & Trust Co. received $1,015,538 from Colombia on the steamer Guatemala. Brown Bros. received $47,000 from Colombia and the International Acceptance Bank received $22,000 from Nicaragua on the same steamer.

E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, said directors of the road had returned from their annual inspection trip of the system "greatly reassured as to the outlook for a steady progress of general business, with, in all likelihood, a well defined upturn in volume making itself evident next year."

Directors of the Jordan Motor Car Corporation have approved a reorganization plan which will be submitted to stockholders. The plan includes formation of a new company, Jordans Motors Corporation, in Ohio, to take over the present Delaware company. The new company will have 500,000 shares of no-par common stock, for which the present preferred will be exchanged on the basis of five shares of new common for each share of preferred of the present company. The present common stock will be exchanged on a basis of one share of new for each ten shares of old.

William O'Neil, president of the General Tire & Rubber Co., said earnings for the first six months of the present fiscal year were sufficient to cover dividend requirements for the entire year on both classes of stock. He added operations will continue on the same basis as at present during November and December and the company is planning to increase operations in January.

Stockholders of American Eagle Aircraft Corporation approved a proposal to reduce the present capitalization from 2,000,000 no-par common shares to 200,000 no-par common shares by the exchange of one new share for each ten shares of old stock. They also authorized the issuance of $500,000 6½ per cent fifteen-year sinking fund debenture gold bonds.

Frank T. Hulswit, president of the American Commonwealths Power Corporation, today announced the company had put into effect a policy of buying on a substantial scale for future operating needs after a study of prevailing prices of commodities and equipment needed in the production of utility services. He expressed the belief that the bottom of the current depression period has been passed.

Empire Public Service Corporation is offering to holders of Electric Public Utilities Co. three-year 5-per cent gold notes due May 1, 1931, the privilege of exchanging their holdings for 20-year 6 per cent gold debentures, together with a cash consideration, Lloyd W. Woodcock, president, said today. Present holders of the notes will receive an equal principal amount of 6 per cent gold debentures due in 1950 and $80 in cash for each note exchanged, together with an adjustment for accrued interest on the notes and debentures. There are $3,000,000 of the notes outstanding.

September sales of 27 chain store companies aggregated $133,562,677, a decrease of 7.7 per cent from $144,776,316 reported in September last year, a compilation by Merrill, Lynch & Co. shows. Sales of the same companies for the first nine months this year totaled $1,210,382,199, a decrease of 2.4 per cent from $1,240,367,952 for the like period last year.

The National Tea Co. reported September sales of $6,850,862, a decrease of 2.29 per cent from $7,012,045 for the corresponding month of 1929. Sales for the first nine months totaled $63,444,050, a decrease of 4.5 per

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Grain threw off the influence of stock market weakness today and scored late gains both for wheat and corn. An unlooked-for decrease of 2,739,000 bushels in the United States wheat visible supply was largely responsible for late trades in the wheat market, together with reports that the Argentine wheat crop had been damaged by frost. There were also advices that husking returns from various sections of the corn belt in this country were disappointing and that farmers expected such advices to continue.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at ⅛ to ⅜c per bushel higher than Saturday's closing. Corn finished 1½ to 2c net gain, oats a shade to ⅜c down and provisions varying from 12c decline to a rise of 10c.

Late advances in Chicago wheat values lifted the market 2¼c from the day's bottom level, and as much as 1¼c above Saturday's finish, but efforts to realize profits on the upturn led to some reaction from the top point reached. Meanwhile, reports from Argentina were at first ignored, as they contained no mention of any damage. Subsequently, however, messages were received asserting that injury to Argentine crops had been done by frost both in Pampas Province and in southern Buenos Aires. It was at this stage also, that the influence of the unexpected falling off in the United States wheat visible supply began to make itself evident.

On the other hand, the grain markets earlier were a good deal affected by the bearish course of securities and by reports of rains in Australia and Argentina. Word of good rains over his domestic winter wheat region Southwest tended also temporarily to pull wheat values down. The reports from the Southwest said that early seeded wheat was now up to a good stand many places and was being pastured. It was added that ample moisture has finally been provided, with the crop generally in excellent condition. Helped by corn market strength, however, wheat readily advanced in the last part of the day and stubbornly held part of the gains despite selling from Eastern sources at the last.

Throughout the day the corn market gave signs of independence when wheat showed weakness. Offerings of corn future deliveries were notably lacking in volume at times. Oats displayed less rallying power than either corn or wheat, demand for oats being confined mostly to cleans.

Provisions were irregular, with the pit disconcerted by fluctuations in grain, whereas from the outset hog values showed upturns.

Curb Review

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Utility shares broke sharply in today's Curb Market, unsettling the entire list. Several prominent issues were depressed to new minimum levels for the year or longer. Trading was moderately active, with sales aggregating 500,300 shares.

The decline was notably abrupt in the stocks of companies with Brazilian connections. American & Foreign Power warrants broke more than 6 points to a new low, in sympathy with the stock on the big board. This company has extensive public utility interests in Brazil, while its operating subsidiaries serve some 240 communities with an aggregate population of more than 3,800,000 persons.

Electric Bond & Share, which controls American & Foreign Power, dropped nearly 5 points to 85, a shade under the previous year's low. Last November, however, it dropped to 50. Brazilian Traction, a Canadian company operating public utilities in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo, dropped 8 points to 29½, duplicating the year's low.

American Gas & Electric, a domestic corporation supervised but not controlled by Electric Bond & Share, tumbled 9 points to 106, only 2 above the year's low, but rallied to close at 107¾. United Light A lost more than 2 points, and American Superpower, Central States Electric and Niagara Hudson lost about a point each.

Oils were also under pressure. Cities Service was an active feature, declining nearly a point to 26. Gulf dropped 2, then rallied 1½. Standard of Indiana lost ¾, and Humble and Vacuum each more than a point. Lion was a soft spot, dropping 3. In the mines, Newmont rallied 2 points, contrary to the trend elsewhere.

Industrials were not very active, but inclined to be heavy. Ford of Canada A stock declined 2 points to 21¾, a new low. Royal Typewriter and Aluminum Co. tumbled about 5 points, the former to a new low. Losses of 2 to 3 were recorded by Driver Harris, Dresser A, Dow Chemical and Technicolor.

In the investing company group Goldman Sachs touched 14½, a new low, and off more than a point. American Capital A broke 3½ to 18½.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Moderate rallies from an opening decline on a little trade buying and covering were followed by renewed declines in cotton here today under liquidation and a moderate volume of Southern selling. The new December contract, after advancing from 10.33 to 10.44, closed at 10.36, compared with 10.42 at the close of Saturday. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 4 to 10 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 5 to 10 points, with new October selling off to 10.10 and March to 10.63 in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables and over-Sunday selling which seemed to come partly from the South. These early offerings were not particularly heavy, and the market stiffened up during the middle of the day on a little trade buying and covering, while there may have been some commission house buying on apprehensions that the rains reported in the South would slow up the movement and possibly lower the grades of local cotton.

Prices just about recovered the early losses, selling back to or a shade below Saturday's quotations, with new October advancing to 10.21 and March to 10.73 during the early afternoon. The demand tapered off at these figures, however, and prices eased again in the later trading when there was a little more Southern selling and local liquidation. Closing prices were within a point or two of the lowest on most months at 10.11 for new October and 10.64 for March.

Several more of the private crop reports were issued during the day. They showed condition figures ranging from 51.1 up to 52.5 and figures on the indicated yield ranging from 13,891,000 up to 14,600,000 bales. Altogether up to the close of business tonight nine of these private reports have been issued, showing, on the average, a condition of 52.1 and a crop indication of 14,268,000 bales. Reports by the same authorities a month ago showed a condition of 54.2 and an indicated crop of 14,040,000. According to a canvass made today 88 members of the New York Cotton Exchange, on the average, expect a crop indication of 14,443,000 bales.

Private cables said there had been hedging and liquidation in that market, influenced by weakness in Egyptian following the Egyptian government estimate placing the crop at 5,420,000 cantars, including 2,326,000 sakels. Exports today, 31,477, making 1,401,992 so far this season. Port receipts, 92,562. United States port stocks, 2,816,782.

FOXX'S HOMER IN 9TH GIVES MACKS PITCHERS' BATTLE, 2-0; ATHLETICS REGAIN LEAD, NEED ONE VICTORY FOR TITLE

Westbrook Pegler Says

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6.—So far as St. Louis customers are concerned, the world series ended this afternoon when Jimmy Foxx, the young Maryland hay-tosser, whaled one into the bleachers just to the left of center field in the ninth inning, with Mickey Cochrane on base. The hit bounced from skull to skull among the steerage patrons, with dull sounds as of a bouncy object meeting concrete or other solid matter, until some one plucked it out of the air for a souvenir of a mournful afternoon at the ballyard.

The two Philadelphia runners rounded the bases with ostentatious deliberation, scoring the only two runs of the day. Mr. Cochrane, who has ears like the handles of the Davis Cup, turned to Mr. Grimes as he dawdled along from third to home, and flapped them derisively, while, from the Athletics' bench several other members of Connie Mack's assemblage of well-behaved young men addressed highly insulting remarks to Mr. Grimes in the vigorous sign language of the trade. For all the fine morality and social elegance of Mr. Mack's young men (all of whom possess dinner jackets), few of these gestures could be described, much less explained, in any newspaper which goes into the American home, and it was a bit startling to see these boys expressing such homely and familiar, but altogether inelegant ideas by simple movements of their fingers from benches placed out in front of the dougout, in full view of all present.

Mr. Rommell Says A Few Words.

Mr. Ed Rommel, the superannuated pitcher for the A's, who is carried on the roster nowadays merely as a pensioner in recognition of the time when he won 27 ball games in a season with a team of errand boys, bell hops and peanut venders for his support, was particularly rude. He hove up from his place down near the end of the pine plank and uttered a manual remark of a nature so shocking that George Walsingham Earnshaw, who is listed in the Philadelphia social register, turned and remonstrated with him.

"Remember, there are ladies present," Mr. Earnshaw said.

"Any lady who knows what I said to Grimes just now is not any lady," said Mr. Rommel, agitating his fingers in an angry running fire of abuse.

Mr. Cochrane's ears have been the subject of considerable personal repartee in the two games that Mr. Grimes has pitched.

In the first game at Philadelphia Mr. Grimes mentioned the matter of ears, and Cochrane's rejoinder was a home run. Today Grimes resumed the subject of Cochrane's ears, and while that sensitive young man got no home run himself, it was a home run that brought him in with a run, which was a sufficient rebuke.

The customers raised a half cry that certainly didn't express jubilation as the solid and somewhat elephantine Mr. Foxx hoisted his fly ball against the dull autumn sky and Taylor Douthit, the center fielder, backed up, reaching for it, until he was chafing his shoulder blades against the wall. The world series is moving back to Philadelphia tonight, and this was the last positive action that St. Louis was to see.

Traveling Party Reduced.

The traveling party will be considerably reduced now. There may be only one more game and a number of the baseball experts from other major league towns and the Western minor league points, are dropping out to turn to football. Also, most of these enthusiasts who start out eager and excited, to follow the show from town to town at their own expense, have wearied of the standing around and sitting around in the hotels, and the sleeping in berths, and have checked out quietly to follow the rest of the series per newspaper or radio. Mr. George Getz, of Chicago, the millionaire, who not only fancies but collects baboons, but also cultivates the acquaintance of prize fighters and managers as a recreation, was seen limping to a taxicab this evening behind a porter. "I am going home to rest my feet," Mr. Getz said, "and, after several days of uninterrupted gasing at the hill-billy type of baseball nut, I think it will be a pleasure just to sit and gaze at the intelligent countenances of my baboons."

It is becoming sadly apparent that the world series G. A. R.'s are a dwindling group. One by one they drop out, the old ball players and managers who first came to the world series years ago all brisk and thirsty and prepared to sit up against the hardiest all-night sitters up in the world. They have been shunning the hard floors of the hotel lobbies, which are very trying on the feet, and retiring to their rooms early in the evening where, more than likely, they put on old-fashioned nightshirts and take their pills before turning in. To such as these, the world series ball games nowadays have come to represent no more than business sessions

Athletics Jubilant in Clubhouse; Cards Not Mournful.

By WILLIAM HENNIGAN.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Smiling a boyish smile with his round and chubby face, Jimmy Foxx, latest idol of the 1930 world's series, stood in the center of the Athletics' dressing room at the ball park this afternoon and received the tributes of the other members of the world's champions for that mighty, grand and glorious home-run hit off Burleigh Grimes in the ninth inning.

They gathered around Jimmy before he could even take off his shirt, shaking him by the hand, patting him vigorously on the back, and jokingly jabbing him in the ribs. "Boys, I did it for dear old Connie," laughed the clouting first baseman, and the other players gave one big and rousing cheer. The celebration of the Athletics of their third victory of the series and their second over Grimes was a short one, as they had to catch an early train back to Philadelphia. While it was short, it carried plenty of kick, as the Athletics would rather lose their right hands than to meet defeat at the hands of the spitball pitcher.

"That was the sweetest home run I ever saw hit," declared Mickey Cochrane to Foxx. "I would have given my year's salary to have clouted that ball into the bleachers."

Mickey Out for Revenge.

Now, Mickey is a nice boy, a great catcher and wants Foxx to get all the glory he can out of his home run. But Mickey wanted to be the one to defeat Grimes today. The catcher and the spitballer have been battling all through the series, calling each other some short and ugly names. Mickey got so mad when he hit a ball up in the air in the seventh inning, with Dykes on base, he slammed his bat down on the ground and broke it.

He then walked over to the bench, and as he did Grimes said something to Mickey about pinning his ears back. Furthermore, Grimes chuckled merrily when Simmons missed a swing at a spitter late in the game. So in the ninth inning, when Cochrane walked, he giggled at Burleigh as he jogged down to first base. And when Foxx's drive landed in the bleachers, Mickey gave Burleigh the Bronx cheer. And it was the best Bronx cheer that has been turned loose in many years.

"We told Grimes we'd beat him again," said one of the other players, "and we did. He wasn't so cocky after Foxx hit that home run. They said we got all the breaks and we were lucky when we beat him in Philadelphia, but there was nothing lucky about that home run Jimmy hit. It was just a good big blow that made Burleigh throw up his hands."

Grove Praises Work Of Earnshaw.

Lefty Grove, the tall southpaw, dressed near Big George Earnshaw. "You pitched a great game George, and I am sorry you will not get credit for it," said the southpaw to his brother pitcher. "Too bad they couldn't give you the victory, for they wouldn't have scored on you in a week."

While the Athletics were celebrating, Connie was talking to a flock of baseball writers in the offices of the Browns. It was a strenuous game for old Connie and he was a bit weak when he sat down. They gave him a glass of water and he felt better.

While the Cardinals lost and are now again on the defensive, they did not act like a roomful of mourners after the game. True, they were a bit sore after losing such a hard battle, but they seemed to still believe they will win the next two games and bring the world's championship back to St. Louis.

Mexican Wrestler Held In Quiz of Fatal Brawl

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Pancho Vitela, known to San Antonio wrestling fans as the "champion of Mexico City," was held by police today after the body of an unidentified man who had been beaten to death was found on a sidewalk.

Vitela said that the man, a stranger, attacked him with a knife and they fought. Police found a knife on the man's body. The wrestler exhibited a gash on his arm.

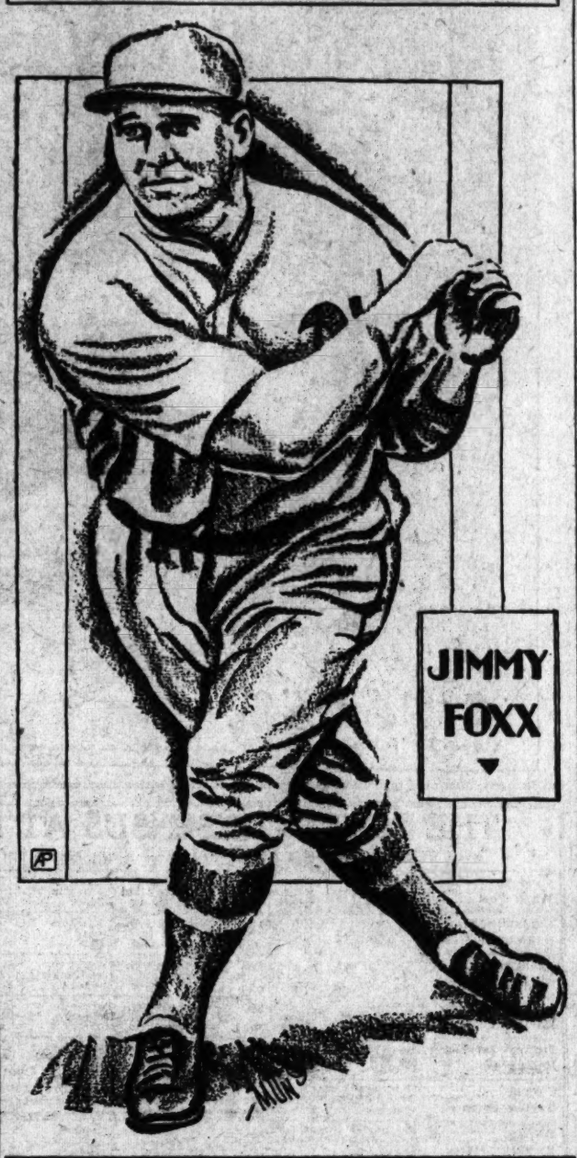
EUGENE C. GOTT—PRESIDENT

HIS HOMER GIVES MACKS GAME



Foxx Gleeful Over Homer; Grimes Calls Luck "Tough"

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"I'm the happiest kid in the world tonight," Jimmy Foxx shouted when seen in the dressing room after the game. "That drive I hit into the bleachers in the ninth inning was as welcome as a million dollars on a Chrastmas morning. It was a curve ball.

"When I saw it coming I decided to get a piece of it. Iswung just as hard as I could, and believe me, when I saw the ball sailing high in the air and among those bleacher fans, I was ready to do a dance or a high dive into the Mississippi River.

"I felt it in my bones I was going to break up the game with a home run. During the batting practice I hit three balls into the stand, and before the battle started I told Mickey Cochrane and several of the other players I would win the game with a big blow.

"As I walked up to the plate in the ninth, one of the other players yelled at me: 'Now's the time ot hit that home run.' And when I saw that curve whizzing at me, I swung. It was one of the greatest swings that ever left my shoulder."

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—"It was a tough game to lose," Burleigh Grimes remarked, shaking his head as he sat in front of his locker. "The toughest I ever lost in the big league. After I got out of that tight hole in the eight inning, I thought we were oing to win."

I pitched a curve ball to Foxx in the ninth. Maybe it didn't break just right, for he got a good hold on it and slammed the ball into the bleachers.

"When I saw the ball going in the air, I threw up my hands, for I knew I was going to lose another well-pitched world series game.

"But we're not beaten yet. Hallahan will beat them in Philadelphia on Wednesday and Haines will win the series on the following day. The defeat today will make us fight just that much harder in Philadelphia.

LEETOWN WINS SERIES.

Charles Town, W. Va., Oct. 6.—The Jefferson County series between Leetown and Rippon was played yesterday at Leestown and resulted in the latter winning the Jefferson County championship by a score of 14 to 3. Five games have been played, Leetown winning four out of five.

Frisch Says He Did Not Drop Ball

Street Plans to Use Hallahan in Game on Wednesday.

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—It was a snarling, defiant flock of Cardinals that hurriedly packed their luggage today after dropping a heart-breaking 2-to-0 game to the Athletics in the fifth battle of the world's series. They were one down to the White Elephants, but they were not down and out by a long ways in spirit.

They openly muttered defiance with Gabby Street, their manager, declaring they would certainly win two games in Philadelphia. There was no solemn, depressed air of a burial in the Cardinal dressing room. To hear them shout, the impression prevailed that they won instead of lost today.

"It was a well-pitched ball game that any one could have busted up," Street said, "and Grimes nor anybody else is excited about losing it. We're going to Philadelphia heads up and determined to win the next two games."

Street Will Use Hallahan.

The old Sarge said he would start "Wild Bill" Hallahan, the pug-nosed Irish kid who blanked the A's Saturday, and expected that Connie Mack would counter with Robert Moses Grove.

"He'll have to pitch Grove because we can beat any one else he's got. And we'll beat him, too.

"It was lucky that Foxx had to hit a high, fast curve ball. We had no idea of passing him. He was just lucky, that's all. The team that got the breaks got all the luck that went with it."

Frankie Frisch, captain of the Cards, said he did not drop the ball in the eighth inning after tagging Haas at second base.

"Umpire Geisel," Frisch bellowed, "must have been blind. I hung right on to the ball, but he made his ruling and couldn't change it despite the fact that he was wrong. We still feel that we should have won today's game and we're going to knock hell right out of 'em when we get back in Philadelphia."

Foxx Predicted Homer.

He stepped to the plate, caught one of Grimes' high ones and derricked it into left center field bleachers.

That amash gave Connie Mack the greatest thrill of the year. The 67-year-old leader of the Athletics, sitting on the bench, saw the ball sail into the bleachers and Foxx trot triumphantly home.

"My heart beat faster at that moment than it has all year," said Connie Mack. "I knew from the

FIRST BASEMAN POUNDS BALL INTO LEFTFIELD BLEACHERS TO BRING DEFEAT TO GRIMES

By DICK WILLIAMS.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 6 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A big apple-cheeked Maryland farm kid named Foxx, with fat legs and a pair of wrists as thick as wagon tongues, hit a baseball so hard here today that he jarred St. Louis' citizenry away back to the Laclede family, who owned the first two-story house ever built at the junction of the Missouri and Missalssippi Rivers here.

The ball was hit in the ninth inning of the fifth game of the world series. So far did it sail up into the air, it looked like a gray speck hanging against the mangy background of a dreary October day, and then it dropped into the left center field bleachers and became a home run so that Mr. Foxx trotted entirely around the bases and chased Catcher Mickey Cochrane around ahead of him.

It wasn't necessary for Mr. Cochrane to be out there ahead, since he merely made the score 2 to 0 and the Cardinals, in spite of a base on balls to Catcher Wilson in their half of the inning, were unable to score even once on Pitcher Grove, who had relieved Pitcher Earnshaw the previous inning when Earnshaw had been retired in favor of a pinch hitter.

Homerun Is Tragedy For Grimes.

That ball, with its tremendously high trajectory, and its freight of important money, was a most tragic thing for the home folk here in St. Louis. It had looked for several innings as though Burleigh Grimes, their hope and pillar, would win his first game of this series. He had pitched splendidly and no pitcher ever worked harded for a victory. But he made one slig when he drove his fast ball high over the plate and just off former boy Foxx's ear and that pitch locked the door to immortality to him for one year more, at least.

It had been only a minute before, probably less than that, that Grimes was riding Fielder Simmons, of the Athletics blandly. Simmons had almost tied himself into a slip knot swinging at one of the Grimes spit balls and Mr. Grimes waved his arms to and fro as if he might have been rocking an infant in his arms. He thrust out his heavy chin with its day's growth of beard and then blazed another pitch at Simmons and the Philadelphia slugger lifted it high to shortstop Gelbert for an easy out.

Foxx Hits First Pitch Of Burleigh.

Then came Farmer Boy Foxx with his immense depth of chest and his puffy pink cheeks and his thick, sturdy legs. He didn't wait for Grimes to get him in the hole, nor for Cochrane, who was waiting on first base, to try to go down to second. He picked the first ball pitched and slashed his bat around so fast that it looked as though he were opening one of those old fashioned collapsible fans that ladies carried when they wore so many clothes.

The bat cracked against the ball midway in its swing and away went that old onion, as the boys say, climbing into the full peak of its orbit and then sailing out through the hazy day toward left center. Far out across the green carpeted field Fielders Hafey and Douthit were racing toward the point where the ball might descend. Forty thousand fans were rising slowly to their feet with groans already fermenting in their throats.

It seemed to hang up there in the gray haze an interminable time so that each fan there must have gulped at least twice for a total of 80,000 gulps before it started down.

There wasn't much offensive baseball in the game aside from that, but there was some pite and there was a demonstration gaudy enthusiasm and 100 per cent rotarian home-town whoop-de-do among the forty-some thousand folks jammed

FIRST INNING.

ATHLETICS—Bishop struck out on called third strike. Dykes rolled to Gelbert and was thrown out to Bottomley. Cochrane singled to center. Simmons lifted a fly to Gelbert back of short.

CARDINALS—Douthit bunted to Foxx and was out, unassisted. Adams singled to center on the first pitched ball. Frisch lifted a fly to Boley in short left. Bottomley bounded to Foxx, who stepped on first for the putout.

SECOND INNING.

ATHLETICS—Foxx lifted a fly to Hafey in deep left on the first pitched ball. Miller filed to Douthit, who ran in a few steps to make the catch. Haas also filed to Douthit.

No runs; no hits; no errors; none left.

No runs; no hits; no errors; none left.

THIRD INNING.

ATHLETICS—Boley struck out, swinging at a fast ball. Earnshaw rolled to Frisch and was thrown out to Bottomley. Bishop struck out for the second time on a called third strike.

No runs; no hits; no errors; none left.

CARDINALS — Gelbert walked. Grimes bunted to Earnshaw and was thrown out to Foxx—a sacrifice. Douthit rolled to Dykes, who caught Gelbert in a chase between third and second; Gelbert, however, scrambled back to second. It was a fielder's choice for Douthit. Adams lifted a high fly to Boley. He was out anyway under the infield-fly rule. Frisch bounded to Foxx and was out, unassisted.

No runs; no hits; no errors; two left.

FOURTH INNING.

ATHLETICS—Dykes bounded to Gelbert and was thrown out to Bottomley. Cochrane struck out on a called third strike. Simmons bounded to Gelbert and was thrown out to Bottomley.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

FIFTH INNING.

ATHLETICS—Foxx singled to center. Miller bounced to Gelbert and Foxx was forced at second, Miller reaching first. Haas hit to Adams, who threw to second, forcing Miller and Frisch, completing a double play with a toss to Bottomley.

No runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

CARDINALS—Gelbert lifted a fly to Foxx. Grimes up. Grimes was given a big hand. Strike one; called, Strike two; swinging. Grimes bounded to Earnshaw and was thrown out to Foxx. Douthit bounded to Boley and was thrown out to Foxx.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SIXTH INNING.

ATHLETICS—Boley bounced to Gelbert and was thrown out to Bottomley. Earnshaw struck out, swinging hard at the third strike. Bishop bounded to Frisch and was thrown out at first.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

CARDINALS—Adams struck out, swinging so hard at the third strike his bat slipped out of his hand. Frisch bunted to Earnshaw and was thrown out at first, Earnshaw making a one-handed stop. Bottomley struck out, swinging at a curved ball.

No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

SEVENTH INNING.

ATHLETICS—Dykes walked. Cochrane lifted a fly which Wilson caught in front of the plate. Simmons filed to Watkins, who made a running catch in right. Foxx struck out, swinging lustily at a third strike.

CARDINALS—Hafey struck out on a called strike. Watkins filed to Simmons in short left. Wilson doubled to center. It was the second hit for the Cardinals. Gelbert purposely passed. Grimes filed to Haas in right center.

No runs, one hit, no errors, two left.

ATHLETICS—Miller rolled to Gelbert and was out at first. Haas bunted to Grimes and beat it out for a hit. Haas was called out stealing second and the umpire reversed his decision when Frisch dropped the ball, after tagging him. It was an error for Frisch. The St. Louis players gathered about Geisel to protest and the crowd booed. Boley hit to the box, Grimes deflected the ball,

COE ENTRY PICKED IN LAUREL OPENING FEATURE

Sagamore and Pierce Entry Made Up of 3 Good Ones.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct 6.—The Maryland State Fair, Inc., will begin its annual 23-day fall race meeting here tomorrow. As usual, the $5,000 added Capital Handicap, 6 furlongs dash for 3-year-olds and upward, will feature the initial day's program.

Twelve of the country's best sprinters have been named overnight as probable starters in the Capital. Black Majesty and Sweep Out will represent W. R. Coe in the race and it is very likely this entry will be slightly favored over the Sagamore Stable-C. Harvey Pierce entry of The Spare, Balko and The Heathen.

Black Majesty Beats the Heathen In Gallop.

Black Majesty only galloped to beat The Heathen in a 6-furlong dash opening day of the recent Havre de Grace session and, to prove that he has lost none of his speed, the son of Black Tony breezed three-quarters of a mile over a cut-up track at Havre de Grace last week in around 1:14.

Black Majesty's stablemate, Sweep Out, is a very fast trick and she has reached her very best form. On one occasion through the Havre de Grace meet, she licked Balko easily and came back a few days later and trimmed The Spare half a length after leaving the barrier in a tangle.

The Spare may be best of those Trainer Buddy Stotler will saddle. The Miss is nicely weighted under 108 pounds and she has had little racing this year. She is most certain to be with the leaders most of the way. Balko's two Havre de Grace races left the impression he isn't himself. At his best he could lick the kind that beat him, running backwards. The Heathen is always dangerous. When in a running mood he'll keep step with any man's horse. The fact he has won but two races this year makes us doubt his ability to whip the Capitol field.

Mr. Sponge Takes Kindly to Laurel Track.

Mr. Sponge was graduated from the maiden ranks at Laurel last fall. It is evident that he likes the track. He has quite a bit of class, but he's coming back to a sprint race after being trained to go a route. Others in the Capitol are Voltear, Flimsy, Bobashela, My Sis, Pegg's Pride and Sun Falcon.

FIRST RACE—The opening day program failed to fill, according to the book of the meeting, and as a result three races for cheap platers are carded. The day's opener is one of them. SEA RIP, dead short in his only start at Havre de Grace, may get down in front of this ordinary bunch he meets. He is most certain to improve over his last effort. THISTLE COOT ran a fine race last Thursday, considering he was away from the barrier very slowly. He came with a great burst of speed near the end and finished third. As a rule, this fellow breaks quickly. ELEUSAGON is far down among the also eligibles and isn't likely to start. She's fast and she'll be hard to keep out of the picture if she gets in. CYRANO figures best of the others.

SECOND RACE—We have with us several strangers in the second number, a dash for maiden 2-year-old fillies. Of those we have seen in action, we prefer the Middleburg Stable's PHANTASIME. This miss gave a good account of herself of two occasions at Havre de Grace. CENTER STONE is a doubtful starter. She had no excuse other than being a little short in her first out at the other track. However, there is the possibility she will improve over that last race. GRACE DARLING, a speedy daughter of Golden Broom, may upset the dope. She turned in two fair efforts in New York. Golden Broom's offsprings are noted for possessing high early speed and this race will be decided over the five-and-a-half furlong route. BANAL GIRL is worthy of some consideration.

THIRD RACE—BROWN MAID is a maiden, but she gave fair promise at Havre de Grace. Her races were good enough to have beaten bad ones like she meets in the third. She was second to Dunlin's Elk her last start, but prior to that effort she was close to Con Amore and beat Aziz. Con Amore trimmed a good field of platers since and Aziz placed to Her Grace and beat Dustemall. CHEROKEE MAID'S last effort can be thrown out. She broke very slowly and wasn't persevered with. Just before that race, she licked VOWED VENGEANCE. KEITH and other cheap ones like she meets in this contest. VOWED VENGEANCE should hold KEITH safe. WANDERING GOLD was out to the last ounce to whip Harvard. Can't give Jim Bean's runner much off that effort.

FOURTH RACE—H. P. Whitney's MAGNIFICO will be hard to beat in the Rock Creek Purse if he runs back to his Eastern Shore Handicap race. MAGNIFICO'S underpinning is none too good, but he's a handsome brute, nevertheless, and he can step. The distance of this race is but 5½ furlongs. The son of Bunting may never be headed. We rate him the most probable winner of the day. TARPAULIN had no chance to show his true form in the Eastern Shore. Just when he began making his run at the top of the stretch he fell. He escaped without injury and has been working well since. LADDER must break from the outside. This is no advantage in a 5½-furlong race. LADDER'S last effort at Havre de Grace was very good. GREAT GUN has been training well according to Trainer Willie Midgeley. This is said to be the speediest youngster in the Glen Riddle Stable.

SIXTH RACE—The bad - legged COIN COLLECTOR won his last race at Havre de Grace rather easily. Prior to that effort CON AMORE, which he will meet in this contest, beat him a head. The Sagamore Stable runner should reverse the decision on CON AMORE, provided he repeats his last effort.

SEVENTH RACE—B O U N D I N G DEEP is meeting rather cheap company, considering his last effort when he finished third to Blazing Cinch and Come On and beat, among others, Rejuvenation, Light View and Fair Man in the nightcap. The gelding likes the Laurel track. MAKE BELIEVE has been racing with slightly better company than he meets here, but he's been finishing far back. COGWHEEL is very good right now. The first two named hold him safe on class, however. FIRE OPAL dopes better than the others.

BLACK AND BLUE was kept well up from the start, closed with a rush in the final furlong and was going away at the end. REPROOF broke a bit slow, but rushed into a long lead, saved ground and held on gamely. TRANSFORMATION broke fast, but was crowded back in the first sixteenth. She closed with a rush when clear and might have won but for interference. MORHEART had plenty of speed, but quit to a walk at the end. MARDIE tired chasing the pace. WHIPPORCRACKER was knocked out of contention just after the start.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; conditions. For all ages. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:05. Off at 3:08½. Winner, Rudolph Spreckles' b. h. TUSKEGEE broke a bit slow, but rushed up on inside ,took lead, raced FLOSSINE into defeat and drew away at end. FLOSSINE, away fast, showed good speed and held on gamely. DON PEDRO was crowded back just after start, but closed with a rush on the inside. PROTRACTOR was taken very wide on stretch turn. He ran sood race under poor handling. BYRD tired badly. CHALICE was outrun.

THIRD RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200 added; claiming handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:25½. Off at 3:27½. Winner, G. A. ALDERSHOT, under light weight, was badly outpaced for the first six furlongs, moved up very fast on the extreme outside and rapidly wore down NAYLOR, coming in ahead by a nose. NAYLOR moved up very fast on inside at far turn, took a brief lead and held on gamely. LAHOR was taken wide around turn and closed gamely. SUN SHADOW had plenty of early speed, dropped back in run down back stretch, came again at end and finished fast. HOST had no mishaps. BLACK ABBOTT had speed for six furlongs, then quit to a walk.

GOOSE EGG	108	5	5	3¹	3¹½	4ʰ	5	Kurtsinger	5	8-5	1-2

FINITE is in good form. He was rated off the fast early pace, ran into the lead in stretch and won easily. PATRONESS trailed far back in early part, closed with a rush and finished fast. PETO was crowded back after start and closed very fast in the stretch. The BEASEL had plenty of early speed, but quit badly in stretch. GOOSE EGG was outrun.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,000; conditions. For maiden 2-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 4:17½. Off at 4:23½. Winner, Greentree Stable's b. c. (2), by St. Germans—Panache. Trained by T. W. Murphy. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24, 0:48 4-5, 1:07 3-5.

ST. BRIDEAUX broke very slow, but quickly gained a contending position, closed gamely under a hard drive and just got up. HALF DAY displayed plenty of early speed, saved ground and held on well. NULLO was hard ridden all the way and ran a good race. BLUE BANNER closed a big gap. FINALIST tired badly.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:45½. Off at 4:47½. Winner, Val Crane's ch. g. (a.), by Colonel Vennie—Little Bit. Trained by C. Irby. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:15, 1:42, 1:48 4-5.

MRS. HAYNES STROKE BEHIND GOLF MEDALISTS

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 6.—Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, reigning Maryland State golf champion and twice Middle Atlantic titleholder, won the medal today in the eighteen hole qualifying round of the Middle Atlantic Golf Association's championship tournament for women over the difficult Elkridge Hunt Club course.

Mrs. Morrow posted a score of 82, matching the women's par for the course, to lead a brilliant field of ninety-three contestants from Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Mrs. Haynes in Tie For Second.

There was a tie for the runner-up honors. Mrs. J. M. Haynes, of the Columbia Country Club, Washington, and Mrs. Walter D. Bahn, from the Baltimore Country Club, each turning in cards of 83. The former, who was steady throughout, was the only Capital player to get a place in the first flight.

Washington Clubs were represented by ten women, six of whom will tee off tomorrow in the second sixteen, two in the third flight and one in the fourth.

Mrs. Morrow, who plays from Elk Ridge, was out in 42, despite five three-putt greens. She required two strokes less for the final holes. She had two 6s on her card. These came at the second and tenth holes, where she had trouble with her irons.

Mrs. Haynes Scores Par 41 Coming In.

Also going out in 42, Mrs. Haynes came back in par 41. Of the first nine holes, she made six in par and another was a birdie. On the last nine her card contained three birdies and three pars. Mrs. Haynes has been District winner twice and champion of the Columbia and Congressional Clubs four times each.

Mrs. Haynes' card:

Out—
Par	5	6	3	5	3	5	3	4	5—41
Mrs. Haynes	5	6	3	5	5	4	4	4	5—42
In—
Par	5	5	4	4	3	5	3	5	5—41—83
Mrs. Haynes	4	4	5	5	3	5	5	5	5—41—83

Epinard Now in U. S. For Stud Service

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Epinard, the French race horse which took the dust of Harry Sinclair's Zev five years ago, was a "first cabin" passenger on the liner Minnetonka when she docked today. He traveled in a padded stall, with two ports for fresh air and a steamer rug about his throat to protect him from the autumn chill. Epinard will go into stud at Lexington, Ky.

Marquette Grid Field Well Lighted at Night

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6.—Marquette University this fall will have one of the best lighted playing fields in the country for night football. Power at the Hilltop stadium has been increased to 72,000 watts, focused down on the stadium gridiron from sixteen giant projectors. About 56,000 watts were in use at Marquette in 1929.

WHAD, the Marquette University radio station, is to broadcast all games of the Golden Avalanche football team this fall, according to announcement of the Rev. Albert H. Poetker, S. J., director of the station. Cyril C. Foster, WHAD sports announcer, will be at the microphone. Games away from home with Creighton and Boston College will be presented through telegraphic reports.

Michigan Is Priming For Purdue Saturday

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6.—Harry Kipke's Wolverine squad of 38 men started work Monday for the contest which may either make or break them for the 1930 season—the game with Purdue next Saturday. A year ago the Boilermakers broke Michigan, then rushed through for a Conference flag, and in their meeting here next Saturday, Coach Kipke's charges not only wish to make amends for the 1929 loss, but squelch any hopes that Purdue may have of taking another championship.

Coach Kipke has been priming his squad for the Saturday game since the practice season opened, but has had to take out much time to prepare for the early obstacles to Wolverine success, the games with Denison, Ypsilanti Normal and Michigan State. During the past week, however, he has combined, trained his men for the intra-State struggle with Michigan State and gone a long way toward getting them ready to properly entertain Purdue.

VA. COACHES WORKING ON FORWARDS

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Oct. 6.—Virginia's coaches are setting to work this week to reconstruct the Cavalier line in preparation for the game with Pennsylvania on Franklin Field next Saturday. Many kinks must be ironed out. Duke's forwards last week doubled the Virginia line over on itself and tucked in the ends. The Cavalier secondary defense made more than half the tackles, for time and again Blue Devil runners got through the front wall without being touched.

Earl Abell, head coach and his helpers knew that the Cavalier line was green and inexperienced, but they had no idea it would appear quite as weak as it did against Duke.

Plenty of Hard Work Ahead Of Gridmen.

Virginia still has seven games to play, all of them hard ones. This means just one thing, that there is plenty of work ahead for coaches and players alike. On the four afternoons of preparation for Pennsylvania this week, there'll be lots of overtime labor.

Though the prospect isn't any too bright for making a good showing on Franklin Field, no one has given up hope that the lessons learned last Saturday may be put into practice next week-end. Squad spirits have been slightly dampened, it is true, but because of their disastrous performance against Duke the Cavaliers are all the more anxious to distinguish themselves against Pennsylvania.

Virginia scored 85 points in the two opening games against teams though small were still rated as good early opposition. These twelve touchdowns came too easy. The Cavaliers had a slightly exaggerated notion of their ability. But they won't have ft any more. They've learned a bit.

They know, just the same, that they can play football. They have a fine set of backs, particularly on offense. The linemen are big and strong. And they are all setting themselves down to work with a will to do much better in the future.

The University of Virginia Golf Team will function again this year in an earnest effort to uphold the honors of that institution in the royal and ancient sport. Harry Kern, of Winchester, Va., and G. Brown Miller, of Washington, D. C., are the only letter men back in school this year, but there are a number of worthy golfers who may be counted on to give strong support to the veterans of the iron and wood.

It is probable that a match will be arranged with North Carolina sometime during the fall and possibly another opponent or two may be met, though nothing definite can be announced as yet.

Abramson Breaks Rib In Virginia Frosh Drill

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 6.—Old Man "Jinx" has paid his visit to the camp of the first-year football squad and has left his stamp on some of the season's most promising material. Abramson, a former star at Devitt Preparatory School, Washington, and perhaps the fastest back on the entire squad, is the victim of a broken rib which he suffered while participating in scrimmage. This stocky half back has been counted on to occupy a regular berth in the yearling back field and his injury is a serious blow in the hopes of Coach Joe McConnell.

Another outstanding loss is that of George Coles, of this city, who was being groomed for a tackle position. Coles, who weighs 192 pounds, hurt an ankle in scrimmage yesterday, and it is very probable that his ankle is broken. "Mike" Copps, another tackle, has been forced by heavy work in the engineering school to practically abandon practice. He has not reported for practice for three days and is very uncertain as to whether or not he can combine his classwork with football.

Capital City Grid Teams To Open Season Sunday

Schedules for All Divisions Announced; 150-Pounders Must Weigh in by Tomorrow Night; Unlimited Meet Tomorrow.

WITH the Takoma Tigers in full and undisputed possession of the Capital City League's 1930 baseball championship, football now occupies the league spotlight. Competition in both sections of the circuit this fall promises to be the best since the league was first organized several years ago by The Post.

Each division has drawn up rigid eligibility rules and has perfected a definite organization which augers well for a successful conduct of the 1930 league. Action will start next Sunday in both sections.

Weighing-in Limit Expires Tomorrow Night.

Managers of the nine clubs entered in the 150-pound class have until 8 o'clock tomorrow night to complete the weighing in of their players at French's Sport Store. Final eligibility lists for all 150-pound elevens also must be submitted by then to William Fiester, at French's, or to The Washington Post.

Seven teams are in the race this year for the unlimited section pennant. Representatives of these clubs must submit their eligibility lists by next Saturday. After October 18, no more additions or changes can be made to these lists. Unlimited club managers will meet at French's tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock to decide playing fields for next Sunday's inaugural clashes.

League rules set 25 men as the limit any club in either division can carry during the season on its eligible player squad. Franchise fees already have been posted by all entrants in both sections.

The complete schedule for each division follows:

October 12—St. Stephen's vs. Marions, Quentins vs. Brooklands, Alpha Delta Omegas (Alexandria) vs. Mecuries; 19—Brooklands vs. St. Stephen's, Mercuries vs. Quentins, Seat Pleasants vs. Alpha Delat Omegas; 26—St. Stephen's vs. Mercuries, Quentins vs. Seat Pleasant, Alpha Delta Omegas vs. Marions, Brooklands vs. ——; Nov. 2—Seat Pleasants vs. St. Stephen's, Marions vs. Quentins, Brooklands vs. Alpha Delta Omegas; 9—St. Stephen's vs. Alpha Delta Omegas, Marions vs. Brooklands, Mercuries vs. Seat Pleasants; 16—Quentins vs. St. Stephen's, Seat Pleasant vs. Marions, Mercuries vs. Brooklands; 23—Quentins vs. Alpha Delta Omegas vs. Quentins, Marions vs. Mecuries, Brooklands vs. Seat Pleasants.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Oct. 6.—Alexandria High School football warriors will take their first long trip of the season on Thursday when they leave for Hampton, Va., to oppose the Hampton High School in a football contest Friday afternoon.

Capt. Jimmy Luckett, who was hurt in last Friday's National Training School fray, is expected to be in shape for this contest. Lulkett injured his wrist.

Manager Pat Gorman, of the Virginia Athletic Club, has scheduled the Seaman Gunners for a football contest on the Shipyard Field next Sunday.

The Iroquois Athletic Club played its initial football game yesterday afternoon and was held to a scoreless tie by the G. P. O. Federals, of Washington. Hamilton and Powers starred for the local team.

On Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, the Northern Virginia Athletic Officials Association will hold an important meeting at the Gazette office, 317 King street. President Dreifus states several important business matters will be discused.

LAUREL NOTES

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 6.—Joseph E. Widener's Prowler, 4-year-old chestnut gelded son of Mont D'Or II—Clara Clarabelle, fell while working on the flat in front of the grand stand this morning and Steeplechase Jockey Harry Hunt, who was astride him, was badly shaken up. Hunt is the lad who was injured in a jumping race last summer at Arlington Park.

John Bosley, well-known Baltimore County sportsman, was an arrival from Canada with the numerous horses he is training for various owners. He was accompanied by Jockey Frankie Slate, who rode with much success the past summer over Canadian tracks.

Specs Crawford, formerly one of America's greatest steeplechase riders, now a full-fledged trainer, is here with a string of jumpers.

Race Secretary Jack Campbell states that all fields, with the exception of stakes, will be limited to twelve starters. This will tend to make for better racing.

Jockey Nick Huff, of Washington, was an arrival from Kentucky. He is under contract to the E. B. McLean Stable.

Horsemen, who took in the racing last week at Wellsville, N. Y., are complaining that they did not receive any pay for the races they won. Several riders who also performed there give out the same story.

Finite Wins Feature At Jamaica Opener

Jamaica Race Track, N. Y., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The fifteen-day meeting of the Metropolitan Club and the last racing on Long Island for the year began here today with a good crowd of fans in attendance.

The card was topped by the Interborough Handicap at 6 furlongs, which was won by George D. Widener's Finite, second choice in the wagering, with the Rancocas Stable's Patroness second and the Belair stud's Peto third. The race carried a net value of $3,400 and the 6 furlongs were traveled in 1:13 1-5.

The Beasel, with her early speed, took an immediate lead of a length and appeared to be going easily as the field turned into the stretch. However, she tired and Finite, who had been the runner-up, took command to win by a length. Patroness beat Peto three lengths for the place.

5 GOLF PAIRS TIED FOR HONORS

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE competition in the amateur-professional best-ball tournament staged by the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers' Association on the course of the Woodmont Club yesterday afternoon was so close that a quintuple tie resulted.

The best-ball score which tied in a field of over 40 players was 68, and many of the contestants were lamenting that they had missed one or two strokes, notably J. Monro Hunter, the Indian Spring professional, who took three putts on the fifteenth green from a distance of 8 feet, and thus failed to win, although he had no less than four birdies on the second nine.

Two Baltimore Pairs In Tie.

The quintet which tied for first place consisted of G. J. Campbell and Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club, 37—31—68; Daniel Miller and Carroll T. McMaster, Rolling Road, 33—35—68; J. Monro Hunter, jr., and J. Monro Hunter, sr., Indian Spring, 36—32—68; B. H. Burrows and William Carson, both unattached, 34—34—68, and George Elliott and A. L. Houghton, Kenwood, 35—33—68. There were two pairs with 69. T. Yancey Millburn and Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase, 34—35—69, and John Mitchell and Julius Platte, Forest Green, 35—34—69. Glenn Spencer, Maryland Country Club, scored a remarkable 31 for the incoming nine. The cards of the other players were:

A. F. Bergman, unattached, and Ralph Beach, Suburban, 35, 35—70; John C. Shorey, Bannockburn, and Mel Shorey, East Potomac Park, 37, 33—70; Morril Simon and A. B. Thorn, Woodmont, 33, 38—71; John W. Merritt and William Maloy, Columbia, 35, 36—71; Claude Orndorff and Lawrence Rabbitt, 36, 35—71; M. Fitzgerald and Alex Jamison, 37, 35—72; James W. Harvey, jr., and George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring, 38, 37—72; Frank Sweeny and Charles F. Betschler, Rodgers Forge, 36, 36—72; John Leidy and Warner Mather, Woodholme, 36, 36—72; Sam Rice, Indian Spring, and Lawrence Wisner, Rodgers Forge, 36, 36—72; Herman Berger, Hillesdale, and Cliff Spencer, Maryland Country Club, 33, 40—73; George F. Miller and Al Treder, Manor, 38, 35—73; L. V. Freudberg, Woodmont, and R. Cliff McKimmie, Army, Navy and Marine Corps, 37, 38—75; Frank P. Reside and Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, 38, 39—77; G. W. Taylor and Irving Schloss, Suburban, 41, 37—78.

Under the rules of the Maryland State Golf Association the final round in the intercity golf team match championship must be played on a neutral course, and, therefore, neither the Columbia nor the Indian Spring Club can stage the contest which is scheduled for next Monday. The question of the selection of a course has been left to the decision of M. B. Stevinson and James V. Brownell, captains of the Columbia and Indian Spring teams, respectively, and no final agreement has yet been reached.

The Congressional Club course, which was first suggested, will not be available next Sunday, owing to the fact that on that day the final rounds in the several flights of the club championship will be played, although Guy Mason, chairman of the Congressional Club golf committee, stated last night that if the team match could be played on any day next week the course would be gladly tendered.

Teams Oppose Play-Off in Baltimore.

The Washington players naturally do not want to journey to Baltimore to play the final battle and will arrange, if possible, to have the contest staged here.

In the semifinal round of the Beaver Dam Club championship to be played next Sunday, the contestants will be Volney Burnett against C. H. Phipps in the upper bracket, and R. M. Brown against the present club champion, W. Bion Moore. Brown reached the semifinal round by defeating Jesse F. Baggett, running down a long putt for a birdie on the twentieth hole. The second-round matches have resulted as follows:

CLASS A—Volney Burnett defeated C. R. Miller, 6 and 4; C. H. Phipps defeated Forrest Thompson, 3 and 2; R. M. Brown defeated J. F. Baggett, 1 up, 20 holes; W. Bion Moore defeated William H. White, 1 up.

CLASS B—H. C. Hodges defeated H. W. Dorsey, 4 and 3; H. L. Jones defeated M. M. Trezise, 3 up; E. Benson defeated A. Loeffler, jr., 3 and 2; W. O. Ashford defeated N. T. Patterson, 2 and 1.

CLASS C—C. O. Davis defeated J. O. Strong, 4 and 2; D. F. Swope defeated G. B. House, 3 and 2; A. Franed defeated D. G. George, 3 and 2; W. A. Powers defeated E. M. Townsend, 5 and 4.

CLASS A (nonqualifiers)—H. J. Doyle defeated P. Gerardi, 3 and 4; H. Bailey defeated Fred Stringer, 3 and 2; Earl Day defeated H. J. Baer, 3 and 2; G. Buckingham defeated Royce Houck, 2 and 1.

CLASS B (nonqualifiers)—N. H. Laden defeated G. F. Bevers by default; N. H. Herrell defeated A. Wilson, 4 and 2.

CLASS C (nonqualifiers)—H. T. Sullivan defeated L. T. Zeits, 1 up; J. H. Allen defeated F. Schlosser, 4 and 3; J. Rubinstein defeated default; J. H. Burdett defeated R. C. Mitchell, 1 up.

Ex-Marine Grid Star Named Trainer at C. U.

Louis W. Brunelle, former quarter back on the United States Marines Football Team, has been engaged as trainer for the Catholic University athletic department to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Teddy Mitchell.

Brunelle played with the Marines for four years, concluding a brilliant career in 1927. He performed on the teams that met Catholic and Georgetown with success.

Navy Starts Hard Work Today for Notre Dame

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Coming out of the opening game unscathed by the injuries feared, Coach Bill Ingram gave his Navy gridmen a light drill today before starting heavy work tomorrow in preparation for the clash with Notre Dame next Saturday, in which the Ramblers' new stadium is to be dedicated. Signal work to smooth out the ragged spots revealed in the opener was the only work assigned the middies.

Duke, Davidson Meet On Gridiron Saturday

Davidson, N. C., Oct. 6.—During the eight years in which the Duke University Blue Devils and the Davidson Wildcats have clashed on the gridiron, each institution has won four of the contests. The Blue Devils, however, have run up 136 points over Davidson, while the Wildcats have scored only 93.

The two squads meet next Saturday at Durham in the ninth game of the series which will determine, for the time being at least, which team shall have the upper hand in games won.

ST. STEPHEN'S PRACTICE.

St. Stephen's Unlimited Club will work out tonight at 7:30 o'clock on the Seventeenth and B streets gridiron in preparation for its opening Capital City League game next Sunday with Marion A. C. Manager Malarkey asks all players to report for the drill.

District High Elevens Find Out-of-Town Going Rough

Failur of Any to Turn in Victory Irks Coaches; Western, Eastern, Emerson and Devitt Listed This Week.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

IT begins to look as if local scholastic football teams will have to wait until they clash against each other before victories for District teams are assured. Last week-end's out-of-town expeditions on the part of local squads were as unfruitful as those of the week before. Tech, Central, Business, Emerson and St. John's elevens scored 25 points to 99 for the aliens. Tech came nearest to winning, by yielding to Episcopal at 26-13.

To these figures is added an out-of-town invasion on the part of Washington-Lee High, of Ballston, Va., which defeated Eastern, 12-0. While local teams are undoubtedly gaining experience at the hands of the foreign elevens, it is difficult to assume a completely philosophic attitude about the losses.

High Coaches Becoming Irked.

The coaches themselves seem to be becoming irked where once they passed off the probability of defeat by the out-of-towners as incidental. Are District high school elevens softening? Will out-of-town coaches drop us from the schedules? Why won't they?

This week is about the last chance to repulse alien aggregations. Western High commences 1930 operations against Washington-Lee Friday at Ballston. Only a miracle, and Buscher and Cochran, can save Ahern's boys from finishing on the short end of a big score. Eastern's bout Friday at Eastern against "Milly" Price's Langdon crew should help the local cause—or irretrievably squash it.

Saturday Devitt cruises to Newport News for what is deemed its big game. Saturday night at Griffith Stadium Emerson tackles the Gettysburg Academy.

The forlorn hope of reestablishing some of Washington's prestige so far as scholastic tilts against the provinces is concerned, depends, therefore, on the husky representatives of Western, Eastern, Emerson and Devitt.

Blocked Kicks Costly to Eastern.

The favorite nightmare of Coach Kelley, of Eastern High—if the gentleman is receptive to nightmares—must be the apparition of a blocked kick. Eastern's last fatal white line has been crossed five times in the two games played this season. Three of those tallies were the result of blocked kicks.

All three blocks occurred in early portions of the games against Episcopal and Washington-Lee, putting the Virginians in a comfortable position from which they coasted to victory.

Kelley's boys are learning quickly. They held Washington-Lee very well and should have lost 6-0 instead of 12-0. When one considers that all but a couple of the boys are sophomores Eastern's star takes on a potent brightness.

INJURY JINX AVOIDED BY OLD LINE

None Hurt Saturday; Byrdmen Prepare for Tarheels.

FORTUNATE to the extent of escaping injuries in the Yale game at New Haven, Maryland's gridmen yesterday began preparation for North Carolina's Tarheels, whom they oppose Saturday at Chapel Hill.

The practice was not one of those well known gloomy Monday affairs that are held following Saturday defeats. Coach Byrd gathered his squad for a quiet discussion of the Yale game and of plans to bring about an improvement in the Old Liners' play against North Carolina.

Byrd found several pleasing features about Maryland's performance in New Haven in spite of the 40-13 defeat. He saw flashes of power on offense that warmed his heart and gave him hopes of developing an attack that will prove potent against the most formidable rivals remaining on the schedule.

Maryland, in the opinion of its supporters, has an even chance of beating North Carolina, which generally is conceded to be the most powerful Southern Conference team. Maryland doubtless values a victory over North Carolina more than any other it could register this season.

Louisiana State Meets Game Cocks Saturday

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Rumbling steadily along with championship ballyhoo, Louisiana State has bowled over its first three gridiron opponents to take a commanding Southern lead in team scoring with 282 points.

Russ Cohen's Tiger backs have beaten a fast path across opposing goal lines to score more than 70 points in each of their contests. Just as these scores speak for the Louisiana offense, the fact that their goal line has been uncrossed speaks equally as much for its defense.

Starting with the South Dakota Wesleyan scuffle, in which the Tigers won 76 to 0 to give the South its intersection victory, Louisiana has downed Louisiana Tech by 71 points and trampled Southwestern Louisiana by 85 points. Louisiana gets its first test Saturday against South Carolina.

Tonto Rock, 9-1, Wins Hawthorne Feature

Chicago, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Under a good ride by Jockey W. Moran, F. Almy's Tonto Rock, paying $20.48 to $2 in the mutuels, came back today to register his second straight victory when he easily led his field to win the Woodlands Purse, the feature offering at Hawthorne Park. Mrs. J. A. Parson's Seth's Hope was second and H. Woolf's Fleche d' Argent third.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward over the mile and a sixteenth distance and was worth $1,100 to the winner. The time of 1:43 4-5 was very fast, being only one-fifth of a second slower than the track record.

Tonto Rock, racing under double wraps, was rated along, not far from the leaders to the stretch turn, where he was let down and closing very fast was up to win easily by two and a half lengths. Seth's Hope, after trailing the field for the first half mile, was taken into a lead and showed the way to the stretch, but was not good enough and finished second, four lengths ahead of Fleche d' Argent. Uncommon Geld, the heavily played favorite, after racing in close quarters and going wide at the stretch turn, pulled up slightly lame.

Justinian Wins Feature At Churchill Downs

Churchill Downs, Ky., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—The Greentree Stable's 4-year-old colt Justinian, in winning the Peewee Valley Purse, the featured number at this track, scored a double for the stable, Lightning Bolt having captured the previous number. Willa, from J. Spencer's Stable, was second in the Peewee and Hot Shot, from H. P. Headley's string was third. The winner was rode by Gordon Arnold, and incidentally it was his third win of the afternoon.

The race was an allowance affair for 3-year-olds and upward, over the 6 furlongs sprint distance and was worth $1,000 to the winner. The time was 1:12 flat.

Justinian, going in his best form and given a splendid ride, went into the lead after entering the stretch and won by a length and a half with something in reserve. Willa raced evenly throughout in second position to take the place money by five lengths from Hot Shot. The latter, after leading to the stretch, weakened, but lasted to take third money by a nose from the heavily played favorite Elice.

SHIFTS MARK COLONIALS' DRILL

Coach Disappointed at Work of Ends in Rutgers Game.

A WHOLESALE shake-up of his line predominated the actions of Coach Jimmy Pixlee at the Gerge Washington University football drill yesterday afternoon on the Tidal Basin, the G. W. athletic director being not at all pleased with the Colonials' performance against Rutgers last Saturday.

Of particular grievance to Pixlee was the work of his ends, only one man who got into the game carrying n as might be expected of a regular flankman. Pixlee realized that the inferior performance of Bob Galloway, starting his first game at an end post, was the result of no lack of willingness on the part of that player, but simply his inability to perform as an end.

Sturtevant's Showing Disappoints.

On the other hand, Pixlee was disappointed at the work of Lyle Sturtevant, who, according to him, should be the best lineman on the squad, but simply "loafed" on the job last week.

Pixlee is under the impression that his team would have scored four touchdowns Saturday had the ends properly fulfilled their duties. Galloway missed one ball and Sturtevant three, which would have left them with a free field for a touchdown.

As a result, Galloway has been transferred to a tackle position, where he played last year, and Sturtevant has been indefinitely relegated to the third team.

In their places were put Fred Muley, the aforementioned lone player who lived up to the jog of an end Saturday, and "Bugs" Bagranoff, who has been definitely brought back to the line after starting at full back. Bagranoff is too good a lineman, according to Pixlee, to be wasted in the back field, and the supply of average back has influenced the Colonial coach to return Bagranoff to his old post.

McGrew, Lannon Loom as Second-String Ends.

At present, Steele McGrew, varsity end last year, and John Lannon loom as the second string ends, should anything happen to this pair.

Zachary Demas, who gives promise of developing into a great lineman, has been transferred to guard from tackle in order to take advantage of his driving power and at the same time give the center of the line its needed speed. Lazio Sommer, reserve center, has also been tried at guard, Chambers' work last Saturday leaving him as the Colonials 'outstanding bet for center.

Postponement Reached In Mara-Tunney Suit

New York, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Gene Tunney need not go to court for eight months more in the suit of Timothy Mara, sports promoter, for a share of Tunney's earnings as heavyweight boxing champion, Mara's suit, set for trial today, was postponed with the consent of both sides until June 27, 1931. Neither Tunney nor Mara was in court.

Mara contends that he made a contract with Tunney in April, 1926, whereby he was to get a tenth of Tunney's purse in the first Dempsey bout and a quarter of all earnings of Tunney as champion. The retired champion says that Mara was to have arranged for the holding of the fight in New York and has no money coming because he didn't do so.

Bowling Game Booms From Coast to Coast

Bowling is the real game of participation, according to W. V. Thompson, Chicago bowling promoter, who has just returned from a tour of California and the Northwest. The enthusiasm and increase in the number of bowlers there, where outdoor recreation offers strong competition to this great indoor game, has now fully convinced Thompson that nothing will take the place of bowling as a permanent, healthful and fascinating exercise.

"We have now and always have had outdoor competition with bowling," said Thompson, "most of it being a fad or novelty form of recreation—here today and gone tomorrow. The present craze in this direction is no exception. Bowling has lived and grown until now there is no sport as well organized and with as many participants as that of bowling.

"These forms of novelty recreation are helpful, however, to bowling, on the theory that any game that creates the desire to play and secure exercise will add recruits to the ranks of bowling when the participants commence to study which of the games will be most beneficial to them in their quest for healthful pleasure.

HILLTOP GRID CHIEFS NOT CHEERED

GEORGETOWN'S decisive defeat of Loyola in Chicago last Friday night has not lifted the veil of gloom surrounding the Georgetown coaches. They believe that the Hilltop Eleven must improve greatly before it can bowl over the toughest of its remaining foes—Michigan State, Western Maryland, New York University, Boston College and Detroit.

In the opinion of Head Coach Tommy Mills, Georgetown met an overrated team in Loyola. He said yesterday as the Hilltoppers went through their practice attunis in Griffith Stadium: "There was some improvement shown over the week before, but we did not get the opposition I expected from Loyola. We stopped Malloy, their best back, and when we did that we stopped their whole team. They did not play very hard after we scored that first touchdown.

"I think that we can defeat West Virginia Wesleyan, but after that we will be lucky to win a game."

Assistant Coaches "Clipper" Smith and Johnny Colrick spoke in the same vein. "We didn't go so hot," both responded to the question of how Georgetown looked against the Chicago team.

Hilltoppers to Work Under Lights.

West Virginia Wesleyan comes here Friday night to help Georgetown in the introduction of night football in Griffith Stadium. The game will start at 8:15 o'clock.

Tomorrow and Thursday nights the Hilltoppers will practice under the lights. Persons not connected with the team or the stadium will be barred.

West Virginia Wesleyan should extend Georgetown much the same as it did a year ago, when the Hilltoppers were unable to score until the last ten minutes of a grueling struggle. The Bobcats were defeated last Saturday by New York University, 41 to 6, but they forced Chick Meehan to unloose his best talent before they were routed.

Six members of the 1929 Wesleyan Eleven will return Friday night. This means that the visitors will hold an advantage as far as experience is concerned. Georgetown has graduated seven of the regulars who battled the Bobcats last year.

Charley Brickman, who was showing up well at guard, will be missing from the Hoya line-up against Wesleyan. His broken arm may keep him out of action for the remainder of the season. Aurel Tremblay, a 190-pounder, will probably take his place.

Mills Selects His Linemen.

Mills has just about definitely selected six linemen for regular positions, but he still is perplexed in trying to pick a regular back field combination. Bob Brennan and Jim Leavey, ends; Bill Bleak and Gus Anderson, tackles; Maurice Dobofsky, guard, and Capt. Bill Morris, center, are the sextet virtually assured permanent assignments.

There is exceedingly little to choose between the numerous backs in their respective positions, says Mills. Johnny Scalzi and Dick King are waging an even fight for the quarter back berth and the competition between Mancell Gillis and Leroy Boudeau, for the full back job likewise is indecisive.

Johnny Bozek, Ed Leary and Bill Maczess are scrapping merrily for the left half back position, as are Emile Bozek, Russ Danieu, Joe Alenty, Tom Wallace and Phil Mooney for the right side nomination.

Scalzi, who usually finds the spotlight falling on him, yesterday corrected a report from Chicago that he scored Georgetown's first touchdown against Loyola. It was Bob Brennan who turned the trick, Scalzi said, in asking that the credit be given where it belonged.

Edgewood Netmen Best In Capital City League

The Edgewood Team of the Capital City Tennis League slipped into first berth early in the local tennis season and held on to the close of the season, figures released by K. W. Krause, official scorer of the league, point out.

With Pat Deck, Al Yeatman, Kip and Rip Callen, Robins, Gaines, Thore and Fix, the Edgewood racquetmen hung up a record of 69 matches won and 36 matches lost during the season. Burroughs, with Grant, Krause and G. Considine as kingpins, finished second.

of the annual reunion and the hitting and pitching are scarcely more enthrilling than the reading of the secretary's minutes at the annual convention of the National Association of Ink Salesmen.

When the Arteries Complain.

But when the arteries begin to complain and the dogs whine and the eyes begin to glaze and droop by 10 p. m., the social side of the reunion also suffers a loss. They were the spirit of the world series for more than twenty years and, though the new boys seem impervious for a few years to the new gins and brews, no upstarts can impart the same presence to the occasion. Perhaps the world series is losing its character and becoming, as Mr. Gabby Street insisted the other day, just a string of ball games, although it may be developing a new character for all I can tell.

The Philadelphia games seemed to draw little out-of-town trade, for the customers were all of a general sameness and apparently residents of the town or the general neighborhood. But in St. Louis the series has been a holiday show for a large number of customers from southern Illinois, the Ozark region, Oklahoma and Texas, and the spirit of the patrons has been much more festive. The stimulants have been potent and plentiful and there seems to have been liberal indulgence in the pleasures of the gambling houses and other hideaways abounding here under the most tolerant administration since the world's fair of 1904.

GRIMES' OVERCONFIDENCE FATAL IN FINAL FRAME

Disdains Use Of Spitter To Foxx

Hurls High Fast One and It Goes Into Bleachers.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Acting on the well-known theory that no strategy is more effective than a good old-fashioned wallop into the stands, burly Jimmy Foxx, the kid first baseman himself, drove out a home run in the ninth inning today to give the world's champion Athletics a sensational 2-0 victor, over the St. Louis Cardinals and the lead once more in the battle for baseball's biggest cash prize and honors.

Foxx's terrific drive, with one out and Mickey Cochrane on first, broke up a remarkable pitchers' duel between the veteran Burleigh Grimes, Cardinal spitball star, and the twin aces of the A's—George Earnshaw and Robert Moses Grove.

Earnshaw, after holding the Cardinals to two hits in seven innings, was relieved for a pinch hitter, and Lefty Grove, back in the box for the second straight day, received credit for the triumph, his second of the series, by checking the Red Birds in the last two innings.

Cardinals Make Only 3 Hits.

All told, the Cardinals made only three safe hits off the two fireball flingers, while the Athletics collected a mere handful of five off the moist offerings of Grimes, but the latter's crafty efforts for the second time were upset by a long range drive.

It was a triple by Foxx that started the heavy firing that beat Grimes in the opening game, and the big first sacker was again on the job to apply the well known knockout wallop today.

It was a dramatic finish to a thrilling game. Grimes had stopped the Athletics in the eighth after they filled the bases with only one out. Snarling, taunting, the old war horse was still yelling and pitching defiance as he forced Al Simmons to pop up after walking Cochrane at the start of the ninth. Big Burleigh took a few seconds to hitch his belt and uniform and address some derisive comment in the direction of the Athletics' bench and to the patriarchal Connie Mack in particular before turning to face Foxx. Big Jimmy was hit safely in a previous time at bat, getting one of the two safe hits off Grimes in the first seven innings, but the Cardinals pitcher seemed supremely confident he was past his worst trouble—Simmons.

Grimes Disdains Use Of Spitter.

Disdaining to use his spitter Grimes loosed a high, fast one. It was the first ball pitched and Foxx was ready for it. There was a sharp crack, as though a whip had been lashed out. High into the left field bleachers soared the ball, among the spectators. The silence of a funeral suddenly enveloped the stands, holding another tremendous crowd of 38,814 fans, a few hundred short of yesterday's record outpouring. The reactions, as though a sudden pall of gloom had drifted down from the leaded and slightly leaky skies, could be felt by every one as Cochrane and Foxx trotted around the bases after the stroke that administered the kiss of death to Grimes and dealt a smashing blow to the Cardinal hopes of triumph.

Having watched their favorites romp through two straight to square the series count, after they had lost the first two games in Philadelphia, Cardinal rooters were wildly confident of a continued rush towards the world's championship. They had hoped to see the home team turn the tables on big George Earnshaw just as had been done at the expense of Grove the day before. But the combination of the twin Mack aces, and the big bat of Jimmy Foxx was too much to offset.

Athletics Hold Edge, 3 to 2.

As a result the warring forces left tonight for Philadelphia with the Athletics holding a lead of three games to two and needing just one more victory to clinch their second successive world's championship. They have two chances now to do it, either in the sixth game, scheduled Wednesday at Shibe Park, or in a seventh, if necessary, on Thursday in the same place.

Up until the ninth, today's battle was easily the closest, hardest fought and most exciting of the series as the two well-matched teams fought desperately for any and every advantage, fully realizing that the winner figured to become the ultimate world's champions. Everyone in the big park, disregarding the occasional sprinkle of raindrops and the heavily overcast skies that forced a thick haze over the field, sat tensely through the first eight innings of scoreless fighting.

For seven innings, there was very little to choose between Earnshaw and Grimes. Each had great control, each bore down with all the speed and craft he could muster. The big star of the A's, making his second start, was even better than before. He had a baffling fast one to match the deception of Grimes' occasional spitters.

Two Hits Apiece Till 8th.

Through these first seven frames each allowed only two safe hits. Cochrane singling off Grimes in the first and Foxx in the fifth, while Frisch touched Earnshaw for a single in the first and Wilson for a double in the seventh.

Not a Mackman got so far as second in the first seven innings, so effective was Grimes in the pinches. Not a Cardinal got beyond the middle station and only two, Gelbert, in the third, and Wilson, in the seventh, advanced that far as the innings rolled by.

The Cardinals got a "break" in the third when Jimmy Dykes made a mistake trying to outrun Charley Gelbert to a chase back to second base. Gelbert had walked and been sacrificed by Grimes. Douthit bounded to Dykes and Gelbert was trapped off the base, but the Athletics' third sacker, instead of making a throw to the waiting Bishop, tried to run down his man. They slid into the bag together. Gelbert was safe and Dykes had his name linked with that of Heinie Zimmerman, the old Giant infielder, who made himself famous chasing Eddie Collins across the plate in the 1917 series.

There were then two Cardinals on the sacks and only one out, but Adams popped to Boley and Frisch grounded out to Foxx as Earnshaw escaped from a dangerous spot.

Cards Again Threaten In 7th.

They did not threaten again until the seventh when Jimmy Wilson doubled, with two out, and Gelbert was purposely passed. Grimes, after a taunting exchange with Connie Mack, who tapped his head in reply to the pitcher's comment, drove a long fly to Haas in right center to end the inning.

Grove yielded a single by Frisch in the eighth, but two were out and Bottomley, in the pinch, struck out for the third straight time in the game and the eighth time in five games. This equaled the performance of Rogers Hornsby in the 1929 series, but still short of the all-time record of ten strikeouts, by George Kelly, of the Giants, in eight games in 1921.

Bad Break Almost Fatal in 8th.

The A's heavy hitters were almost helpless against Grimes' assortment of stuff through the first seven innings. For the first time in the series Simmons went hitless, in four turns at bat, and Foxx's home run was the only full-fledged drive off the veteran spit-baller in the entire game.

A bad "break" for Grimes almost cost him the game in the eighth, when an error by Frisch helped the A's to fill the bases. With one out in the frame, Haas bunted down the third base line and easily beat Grimes' throw to first for a hit. He set sail for second and appeared out down on Wilson's fine throw, but Frisch dropped the ball and Umpire Geisel reversed his decision, calling the runner safe. Boley's bunt caromed off Grimes' glove and went for another hit. Jim Moore, the Texas recruit, batted for Earnshaw and walked, filling the bases. Grimes called on all his cunning as he forced Bishop to ground to Bottomley, who made the force play at the plate, and then retired the side on Dykes' roller to Gelbert, who threw to Frisch for the third out as the big crowd roared.

Grimes fanned seven Mackmen, as compared with five strike-outs for Earnshaw and two for Grove. He had fooled Foxx in the seventh with a third strike and perhaps was overconfident when he took on the big youngster again in the ninth. This was fatal, for his only real mistake of the afternoon cost him the ball game.

TEAM TO HOLD CARDINALS TO THREE HITS

Two singles and a double was the extent of the St. Louis offensive yesterday against the slants of George Earnshaw and Lefty Grove. The latter was credited with the victory after replacing Earnshaw, who was relieved for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Cubs Beat White Sox, 6-4, To Retain Chicago Title

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A bristling ninth-inning finish that capped a wild afternoon of baseball today gave the Cubs a 6-4 victory over the White Sox and left the Chicago City championship in possession of the National League.

What started out to be a pitching battle between Sheriff Fred Blake, of the Cubs, and Young Pat Caraway, of the Sox, became a cat and dog fight in the last six innings. The Cubs had a two-run lead in the fifth, only to have the Sox tie it up in their half of the same inning.

The Sox went in front in the sixth, but the Cubs jammed over a run in the eighth to knot it again. Donie Bush's men came right back for another in their half of the eighth and the American League again was in front.

In the ninth, however, the Cubs cut loose with a drive that could not be denied, scoring three times. Dan Taylor batted for Blair and singled. He was forced by English. Kiki Cuyler caught William Kamm flatfooted with a bunt down the third base line and both runners were safe. Hack Wilson, who already had driven a home run into the left field stands, cracked a single into left field, scoring English, and Cuyler counted on Hartnett's sacrifice fly. Clancy's error on Grimm's drive let Wilson in with the final run.

Blake sailed along in great shape until the eighth when three singles and English's second error let in a run. Petty went in and stopped the drive and managed to stave off another Sox bid in the ninth, which started when Lester Bell threw the ball over Grimm's head on Cissell's hit to third.

Caraway was wobbly at the start, but managed to keep out of serious trouble until the fourth, when two walks and two singles produced a Cub run.

Wilson's home run smash in the fifth started Caraway's downfall and a base on balls to Stephenson finished it. Braxton replaced Caraway and was the victim of the rest of the Cub assault. Tommy Thomas finally had to go out in the ninth and finish the job, but was too late to do anything about the three Cub runs.

then picked it up and threw to third, but too late to get Haas. It was a hit for Boley. Grove began to warm up. Moore batted for Earnshaw. Moore walked, filling the bases. Bishop forced Haas at the plate with a grounder to Bottomley. There was no play on Bishop at first and the bases were still full. Dykes forced Bishop at second; Gelbert to Frisch.

CARDINALS—Grove went in to pitch for the Athletics. Douthit popped to Bishop back of second. Adams rolled to Dykes and was thrown out to Foxx. Frisch singled to center. Bottomley struck out for the third time, swinging at a fast ball.

NINTH INNING.

ATHLETICS — Cochrane walked. Simmons lifted a high fly to Gelbert behind short. Foxx hit a home run into the left field stands, scoring behind Cochrane. Miller struck out on a called third strike. Haas rolled to Gelbert and was thrown out at first.

Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

CARDINALS—Hafey lifted a fly to Cochrane in front of plate. Blades batted for Watkins. Blades walked. Wilson grounded to Grove and was thrown out to Foxx. Gelbert struck out on a called third strike.

SERIES "BIG 4"

St. Louis, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—This is how the "Big Four" batsmen of the world series fared at bat in the fifth game today:

ALL SIMMONS, ATHLETICS:

Fourth inning—Grounded to Gelbert.

MICKEY COCHRANE, ATHLETICS:

Fourth inning—Called out on strikes.

Ninth inning—Walked.

FRANKIE FRISCH, CARDINALS:

First inning—Popped to Boley with man on first and one out.

Third inning—Grounded out to Foxx with two mates on base and two down.

JIM BOTTOMLEY, CARDINALS:

First inning—Grounded out to Foxx

Fourth inning—Struck out.

Sixth inning—Struck out.

Eighth inning—Struck out.

to the plate and pickled a baseball into the stands where it would never be recovered by any baseball player.

That ended a ball game at a time when it appeared it might have to be stopped by an appeal to the courts.

The Mackmen won, but they knew they had been in a battle. Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy ran a high fever all afternoon, and in the eighth, when he had the bases full with only one man out and failed to score, he stopped signaling for base hits and began signaling for ice water.

The game was won in the ninth but the most torrid inning of the world series was the eighth when there were so many Athletics on the bases that it looked like jubilee week on a Tom Thumb golf course.

Burleigh Grimes pitched himself out of a seemingly bottomless pit in that crisis and he was probably just about deciding no metal could touch him when Mr. Foxx kicked his goal from placement.

When Connie Mack took out Earnshaw, who was pitching a great game, and sent in a pinch hitter in that red hot eighth, he was taking a chance on going into history as a master mind or a dunce. The pinch hitter didn't strike out, which is the customary gesture in a world series, and got a base on balls. Otherwise Mr. Mack would have been in for a terrific razzing.

Fortunately Lefty Grove, who was called in to replace Earnshaw in the ninth, was hitting on all eight and held the Cards after they had made a few threatening gestures.

It was the most stirring ball game so far in this hectic series between the Athletics and Charlies Gelbert.

Mr. Gelbert was in there executing amazing plays again today and easily remains the star of the series.

There will be a recess today, while the ball players negotiate the distance between the Mississippi and the East and while the spectators of these St. Louis games lie in a cold dry place and let their heart action get back to normal.

sound of the crack that it was a homer. I tried my best to keep calm, but inside I was burning up.

"Outside of that one hit there was nothing except the pitching which was about as brilliant as I ever saw in the world's series. Earnshaw was even better than he was in the second game. He was faster and had better control. As for Grimes, he was every bit as good until Jimmy Foxx swung his big bat in the ninth.

"Grimes showed excellent head work in the eighth when he decided to let Jimmy Moore, our pinch hitter, either hit at a bad ball or walk. He evidently thought Moore was more likely to score the runner from third with a long sacrifice fly than either Bishop or Dykes, who followed.

"The series has demonstrated that two very evenly matched teams are the contenders. We've had a tough time winning three games and there is one and possibly two equally tough contests ahead of us."

SERIES NOTES

Sportsman's Park, St. Louis, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes, in his battle with the heavy hitters of the A's today, "dusted off" Al Simmons no less than three times in the fourth inning. Twice Al fell flat to avoid being hit and one of the pitches bounced foul off his bat for an accidental strike.

Throughout the game, Grimes engaged in a running exchange of taunts with the A's and became embroiled even with Connie Mack in one verbal tilt from the plate in the seventh inning.

The Cardinal pitcher's father came from his home in Clear Lake, Wis., in the hope of seeing big Burleigh turn the tables on the Athletics. For the second time Grimes yielded only five hits, but lost.

The pitching throughout the series has been so far the greatest in years. There have been no sustained batting rallies and in no inning of the five games has either team scored more than two runs.

The 2-0 shoutout today, second of the series, represented the lowest scoring contest since Art Nehf, of the Giants, beat Sam Jones, of the Yankees, 1-0 in the third game of the 1923 series, Casey Stengel's home run accounted for the only score.

Charley Gelbert, sensational young Cardinal shortstop, who has been an outstanding star of the series at bat as well as afield, was paid the compliment of twice being passed by Earnshaw, once in the third and intentionally in the seventh.

Every one on the A's bench except Connie Mack leaped up and did a war dance in the ninth when Foxx hit for the circuit. Caps, jackets and gloves were tossed in the air and Jimmy was mauled by his teammates when he came back to the bench behind Cochrane.

Foxx hit homers in each of the first two games of the 1929 series against the Cubs at Wrigley Field, Chicago, but today's was his first in five games this year. It was the fourth circuit clout of the series by the A's. Cochrane having collected two and Simmons one at Shibe Park. The only other extra base hit made off the brilliant Cardinal pitching in the three games here was a double by Simmons.

In the three St. Louis battles the Cardinals produced only 18 hits and the Athletics 16 as proof of the exceptional brand of pitching on both sides.

Foxx's Home Run Defeats St. Louis in Fifth Contest

Cochrane's red face was even redder, and gratifying it was to him when he slammed one of Grimes' pitches over the fence for a home run.

But that was the first game at Philadelphia. This afternoon in the ninth inning, with the score tied at 0-0, Cochrane faced Grimes again. And Grimes delayed his first pitch while he gazed in silent contempt and made out again as if to portray Cochrane's donkey ears. Cochrane waited as his neck blossomed into a strawberry bloom. But he was patient and the base on balls that he drew caused a hush throughout the stands with the big gun of the attack due next at bat.

Fans Happy Over Simmons' Out.

One huge tremor of temporary relief swept the park as Al Simmons went out on a pop fly to Gelbert, but danger still lurked near with Foxx at bat.

Now that it is all over, for today, at least, comes the realization that this afternoon's ball game was won in the Athletics' batting practice. Then it was that Foxx had trained his eye on those left-field bleachers. Then it was that he had entertained the pregame throng with two whistling wallops that found home-run territory. Once he slapped the ball to dead left on a line into the uncovered stands, but on his next turn at bat he had lifted a pitch clear out of the park, high over the bleachers, beyond the confines of the 6-foot fence that rims the stands and onto the sidewalks of Sullivan street. Thus he served notice of the dynamite that he was to explode when it meant the ball game.

With Cochrane camping on first base, Grimes faced Foxx without the comforting swing of a wind-up. He buried a face full of slippery elm into his slate-covered glove that contained the fateful ball that was never to cross a big league plate again. It was the first pitch, perhaps a spitter, perhaps not; only Grimes, Wilson and Fox know. But it never crossed the plate. Foxx swung from his toes and his big bat intercepted the ball full on its face and on the wings of the home run that resulted rode victory for the Athletics and defeat for the Cardinals.

Heartbreaks for Grimes To Lose.

That was a heart-breaker for Grimes, who now has lost his second game of the series, in each of which he allowed only five hits. Again, it was the long-distance clouting of the American Leaguers that beat him.

Lefty Grove will be given official credit for today's victory in the pitching records, but it is to long George Earnshaw that the palm belongs. Again Connie Mack's graduate of the Baltimore Orioles exercised complete mastery over the Cardinals for seven innings, and it was only the expedience of a pinch hitter that removed him from the ball game in the eighth and caused the appearance of Grove to finish the last two innings.

For seven innings Earnshaw had pitched an inspiring game. Two hits was his allotment to the vaunted sluggers of the Cardinals' line-up. Three was their total when Grove permitted one safety in the eighth. Earnshaw was in even better form than on the second day of the series, when he contributed a 6-to-1 victory. The suave rapidity of his fast ball was almost a complete mystery to the Cardinals. From the first inning when he allowed one hit, until the seventh, when he allowed another, only two Cardinals who reached base were given life on walks.

And Grove carried on in championship fashion, despite Frisch's single with two out in the eighth and the walk to Blades with one out in the ninth. In typical Grove fashion he slipped the third strike over on Gelbert, to end the game.

And for eight innings, too, the Athletics were helpless before the spitballs of Grimes with only singles in the first and fifth interrupting the orderly proceedings until the eighth, when they filled the bases with one out on two infield hits and a walk. They again capitulated, however, before the wizardry of the St. Louis veteran, whose curves took eccentric hops and dips for a toll of six strikes, each and every one representing a called third strike that he was able to put over. And with their cowbells and leather-lined lungs, that considerable portion of St. Louis that was in the park was grateful until the ninth.

The series moves to Philadelphia Wednesday after a day of traveling tomorrow. The Athletics are now pronounced favorites to win, needing only one of the two games scheduled in their home park. But the routine feeling of beating the Cardinals, which was the belief after the first two games, no more is extant. The Cardinals have proved they are a fighting ball club and if any team is to duplicate the feat of winning a series after losing the first two games, as has been done only twice in world series history, the Cardinals promise to be that club.

Hallahan vs. Grove Wednesday.

It will be Hallahan against Grove for the sixth game, according to every indication, with Mack unable to afford a gamble with any but his two pitching stars. Hallahan, hero of the third game shutout, appears the pitcher best calculated to stop the Macks. But with Grove in action and the right field fence at Shibe Park beckoning to Simmons, Cochrane and Foxx, this correspondent favors the Athletics.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" followed hard upon the strains of the "Stein Song" and Burleigh Grimes strode to the pitching mound. It was Grimes against Earnshaw in the fifth game of the world's series as Manager Connie Mack again vindicated the prediction of the experts.

St. Louis fans, who will cheer on the slightest provocation, were not long in emitting a great yell as Grimes slipped a third strike over on Bishop for the first out of the ball game. For a moment Jimmy Dykes appeared to have a hit, but Gelbert threw himself in front of his bursting grounder and tossed him out at first base. Mickey Cochrane responded with a bouncing single over Grimes' head and Simmons had his chance. It availed the Mackmen nothing for, with a 3 and 2 count, Simmons sent a high pop which Gelbert gathered in and the cow-bells rang out again.

There were visions, too, of a Cardinal rally in the first inning. Street injected the first strategy in the game when he ordered Douthit to bunt, but the attempt was not good and Foxx beat Douthit to the bag. Soarky Adams then drove the first pitch to dead center for a single amid an approving roar. Joe Boley mitigated the threat, however, when he went far into left field for Frisch's fly and Jim Bottomley, boasting one hit in sixteen times at bat in the series thus far, could only roll out to Foxx.

Grimes disposed of the lower end of the Philadelphia batting order in easy style in the second, with Foxx lofting to Hafey, and Miller and Haas hoisting to Douthit in center field. Earnshaw, too, was in complete command in the second, albeit two hard drives were converted into outs. Simmons rushed over near center for Hafey's liner and Watkins swung viciously to miss a third strike by half a foot. Simmons again delivered Earnshaw from danger by romping in for Wilson's hard-hit liner.

Long and loud did the cow bells ring for Grimes in the third inning as he disposed of the Macks in order, with Boley and Bishop complacently watching third strikes bend across the plate and Earnshaw in the meantime rolling out to Frisch on an easy chance.

Earnshaw laid a potential pitfall in the Cardinals' third and Jimmy Dykes all but caused the drop with a ludicrous chase that recalled Heinie Zimmerman's immortal and futile gallop after Eddie Collins in a previous world series. Earnshaw passed Gelbert on four straight balls and Grimes laid down the routine sacrifice bunt that advanced the young shortstop to second as visions of another Cardinal rally became distinct. Here Douthit sent an easy grounder to Dykes and the third baseman disdained a throw to first in an effort to trap Gelbert, now far off second. Gelbert darted back to the bag with Dykes in hot pursuit and Bishop on second waiting to take the throw which never came. Dykes elected to Chase Gelbert to the finish and the speedy Gelbert won, while Douthit made first safely and there were two on and one out instead of one on and two out, but Earnshaw pitched himself out of the hole, forcing Adams to pop to Boley, while Jimmy Foxx made a clever stop of Frisch's grounder behind first and won the race to the base.

Grimes Spikes Big Guns.

Grimes spiked the big guns of the Ahtletics in short order in the fourth. Gelbert tossed Dykes out and Grimes registered his fourth strike out of the game against Cochrane, the fourth time a Philadelphia batter stood by placidly while the decisive pitch whistled over the plate. Twice Simmons ducked out of the way of potential "bean balls" before he grounded to Gelbert and was thrown out by 20 feet.

The Cards went hitless for the third consecutive inning. Bottomley swung on a third strike that Cochrane dropped and Foxx got the put-out at first base. A Cardinal reached base, however, when Earnshaw walked Hafey, but Watkins was out on a fly to Haas.

Street resorted to the bunt again, but Wilson's effort was a soft liner to Earnshaw, who made the third put-out at first base.

The double-play machinery of the Cardinals, which was set in motion twice and clicked once, tided Grimes over the fifth inning which saw the Macks register their second hit of the game. Foxx led off with a clean single through shortstop and when Miller grounded to Gelbert, Foxx was forced at second, Frisch failing by a step to double Miller with a throw to Bottomley. But a moment later two Mackmen were erased when Adams gathered in Haas' bouncer and Frisch relayed a quick throw to Bottomley for the double play.

Earnshaw Disposes Of Cards.

Quickly did Earnshaw dispose of the regulation three Cardinals in the fifth as Gelbert popped to Foxx, Grimes was tossed out by Earnshaw himself and Boley went behind Dykes to make a classic catch and throw of Douthit's hopper.

The Athletics' inning marked the fourth consecutive frame in which only three hitters faced the spitters of Grimes. Boley sent an easy roller to Bishop and Grimes struck out Earnshaw with ease. Bishop fell a victim to the lightning arm of Frankie Frisch. And Earnshaw, too, continued to exercise his mastery over the Cards. Earnshaw dominated the inning completely.

He struck out Adams and when Frisch attempted to bunt a slow ball the tall pitcher raced over toward first to make a one-handed stop of the ball and flip it to Foxx for the put-out. Then he struck out Bottomley on a wide curve that dipped down to the outside

FORT EUSTIS MADE ARMY VEHICLE POST

TACTICS TO BE FORMED

Fort Eustis, Va., it was announced at the War Department yesterday, henceforth is to be an experimental laboratory in the process of mechanizing the Army, and is to be the headquarters of the largest mechanized force the Army has ever assembled.

A force of 600 officers and enlisted men, with 100 motor vehicles of all kinds, ranging from motorcycles to tanks, will be mobilized there. In command will be Col. Daniel Van Voorhis, a welf-known Cavalary officer, who will have as his executive officer Maj. Sereno E. Brett, an Infantry tank expert.

Force to Be Permanent.

The force, it was said at the War Department, will be permanent in character. It will test the present types of motor vehicles in use in the Army, report upon their advantages and disadvantages; test such new vehicles as may be developed in the future, and formulate the tactics and strategy necessary to the maneuvering, marching and fighting of such a unit.

The force at Fort Eustis, it was said, will consist of ten units, as follows:

Tank to Have Radio.

These units will be gathered from points in the First, Second, Third and Fourth Corps areas, all lying along the East Coast of the United States, within easy motor distance of Fort Eustis.

Company A, First Tank Regiment (light), which is now at Fort George G. Meade, Md., will be supplied with new material, especially designed to overcome some of the obstacles developed in the experiments conducted at Fort Meade two years ago. Nine of its ten tanks will be fighting units, and one will be equipped with radio. This will be the command tank.

Two Are Indicted On Fraud Charges

Charges of embezzlement are contained in four indictments returned by the District grand jury yesterday against Joseph T. Barry, a stock salesman. At the same time false pretenses were charged in an indictment returned against John R. Walsh, also said to be a stock salesman.

Barry is alleged to have told his victims that he was connected with the Merchants Bank & Trust Co. Each of the indictments names a woman as the alleged victim and asserts that the man converted to his own use money which they entrusted to him to be invested.

The alleged victims and the sums said to have been obtained are Hazel H. Feagans, $778.75; Margaret Creedon, $308; Miss I. I. McCandless, $890, and Sophie P. Given, stocks and checks totaling several thousands of dollars.

Walsh is alleged to have told Mrs. Sarah A. Guthrie that the Bankers Insured System, Inc., was backed by the Riggs National Bank and by Francis Biggs, of the Mount Vernon Savings Bank. Mrs. Guthrie, relying on these representations, is said to have turned over to the man more than $1,000.

Barking Dog Saves Several From Fire

The barking of a pet dog early yesterday probably saved the lives of Mrs. Emma Windon, her family and several guests, when her home near Wheaton, Md., was burned to the ground. The barking of the dog shortly after 1 o'clock aroused the occupants and enabled them to reach safety with nearby neighbors.

Silver Spring and Kensington Volunteer Fire Departments responded to an alarm but were unable to save the building, the old Clayton Windon residence, because of a shortage of water in the neighborhood. The loss is estimated at approximately $8,000.

The exact number of persons in the house at the time of the fire is not known, the occupants having scattered to nearby homes to escape the chilly weather. Several guests in addition to the family were in the house, however, the neighborg said. County Policemen Joseph Nolte and Charles Barnes are investigating the fire.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

RITCHIE TO WITNESS BATTALION'S REVIEW

GAMBLING QUIZ STARTED

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie will review the Third Battalion of the Twelfth Infantry today about 2 o'clock on the baseball grounds at Upper Marlboro. Gov. Ritchie will be in the Maryland town for a Democratic rally, while the troops were holding their fall maneuvers in the vicinity.

A parade through Marlboro was scheduled for 4 o'clock when Maj. A. M. Patch, commanding the battalion, learned of the projected visit of the governor. Maj. Patch offered to hold the review, and his offer was accepted.

The soldiers, who are regularly stationed at Fort Washington, Md., are encamped on the fair grounds in Upper Marlboro. There are more than 300 of them, and they have been in the field since early in the month, in Prince Georges County.

They plan to remain at the fair grounds until Thursday, and Hyattsville, College Park, Ritchie Station and Benning are all on the program. They expect to go to Hyattsville after leaving the Marlboro camp. The detachment includes an antiaircraft section, and daily assaults on the line of march are made by planes from Bolling Field, to give this outfit practice in handling their guns in the field.

After the review today, there will be several drills at the fair grounds. Other attractions will include a mule race and a silent drill. Though water from Washington has had to be brought to the other encampments, the soldiers found sufficient in the wells at the fair grounds for their use.

Charges that gambling in Prince Georges County flourishes unhampered by law enforcement officers will be thoroughly investigated by the grand jury which convened in the courthouse in Upper Marlboro yesterday. The body was instructed by Chief Judge W. Mitchell Digges to leave "nothing undone in your investigation."

Charles B. Calvert, an attorney of Mount Rainier, Md., who has made most of the charges, was present and expected to be called to testify before the jury. He declined to state the nature of the disclosures he will make.

Judge Digges specifically stated that all that was generally known of the gambling situation was "rumors and accusations." He made it plain, however, that the great increase in population of the county made it doubly easy for violators of the law to escape.

The first important case the jurors were called upon to hear after being charged was that of Tally Day and George Godfrey, who are charged with criminal assault on Mrs. Muriel Pyeatt, 26 years old, of K street near Fourteenth street northwest.

Mrs. Pyeatt, who appeared at the courthouse with her attorney, J. Robert Esher, of Washington, was closeted with the jurors for more than two hours. The alleged attack on the woman occurred at the Iron Lantern Inn, formerly Green Gables, near Suitland, early in August.

At the time, Mrs. Pyeatt said that the two took her to the club on pretence of getting her a job. She stated that her clothes were torn from her body and that she was pursued about the grounds in the nude. Later she took the clothing of one of the men, while he lay asleep, and escaped to Washington.

The men, when arrested, preferred a charge of larceny against her, based on the fact that a gold watch was in the garments she took from the man. All three of those involved were arrested and have been out on bail since.

The circuit court, under Judge Digges and Judge Joseph C. Mattingly, spent most of the day in arranging its schedule. It has several cases to consider before the grand jury returns its report and its indictments.

Members of the jury are L. L. Gray, foreman; Allan T. Perrie, Thomas Matthews, William B. Boswell, Thomas W. Corridon, Roland R. Ryon, Gus A. Smith, Herbert M. Hardy, Joseph Edelen, George M. Boteler, Oden Beall, John F. Tolson, John E. Brown, Walter S. Young, John A. Griffith, Francis R. Underwood, Ira Whitemeyer, Edward J. McLean, John B. Alsop, Benedict J. Gallant, J. D. Allen, W. W. Culbertson and William Smith.

Except in the event of a split ticket, which is not at all unlikely, Prince Georges County will have a police force separate from the sheriff's office after the next election. Both parties now have a plank declaring for the change, and the only rock on which the project may split is a mixed delegation to the House of Delegates, which might not be able to agree on details of the new plan.

Under the proposed arrangement the sheriff and his deputies will merely serve civil papers, leaving active police work to a force which will be under a county chief of police. This chief will be responsible only to the county commissioners.

The Republicans announced their adoption of the plan yesterday, saying that this would be a feature of their county platform, now being drafted. The Democrats had shown their intention of favoring such a split some time ago.

The new system will be similar to that now in force in Montgomery County, where it is exceedingly popular. One of the features that might break up agreement between a mixed delegation is the item of expense. It is thought that a force of salaried officers will cost more, per year, than a force paid by fees and a portion of fines. The suggestion has been made that any law establishing the new force stipulate that not more than one policeman shall be appointed in each district. This, however, would mean 21 officers, as well as the chief and his office staff.

Mary Barton has been appointed as new teacher of history in the high school at Upper Marlboro. Her room will be redecorated in the near future, according to Nicholas Orem, county superintendent of schools, who announced the appointment.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Upper Marlboro will hold a card party in the Episcopal church parish hall at Marlboro on October 18.

The Town of Mount Rainier will order about 800 shade trees, which will be planted along about twenty streets, it was decided at a meeting of the town council last night. This number of saplings will complete the planting in the town. All paved streets will then be shaded.

An application to open a poolroom in the old First National Bank Building in the 3800 block of Thirty-fourth street was approved. A communication from the principal of the Mount Rainier High School asking that the janitor of the school be appointed a special policeman was read. The suggestion was returned, however, with the recommendation that it be sent to the county superintendent of schools. The town council felt that this appointment had better be made by the county authorities.

H. L. Leonard, of the Washington Gas Light Co., consulted with the council, and a plan covering future excavations of the company was worked out. Under the new agreement, the ditches will be dug only by authority of the town, or the council will have the right to change them and charge the cost to the gas company.

An extra assessment of $2.68 has been placed against the property owners of lang along Jefferson avenue, it was announced last night by the town council of Riverdale, Md. This sum pays for the cost of an added 10 feet of roadbed. By the original scheme, the county was to pay the entire cost f the rad, but the town decided to have it wider than the county specified, and assess the landholders the extra cost.

Some sidewalks have been laid along the newly paved street, and there will be another extra assessment against owners whose property faces these walkways.

The council also ordered small repairs on the Lafayette Avenue Bridge and the heating plant in the firehouse. The Jefferson avenue assessment was placed after the report of the completion of the work was adopted. Another report received was to the effect that the repaving of Madison and Cecile avenues wuld be completed within three weeks. The work of laying a macadam roadway on these streets is nearly finished, the report said.

MARYLAND INFANTRYMEN AT RIFLE INSPECTION

Lieut. Guy S. Meloy, jr., inspecting rifles of his company at retreat last night on the Marlboro Fair Grounds, where members of the Third Battalion, Twelfth Infantry, were encampel as an incident in their annual maneuvers from Fort Washington. The troops will be reviewed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, today at Upper Marlboro.

BETHESDA CHAMBER ELECTION DELAYED

SIGNS ARE ATTACKED

Election of a president to succeed J. J. Miller was postponed last night by the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce in order that the executive committee might have an opportunity to discuss the matter. The resignation of Mr. Miller, who has accepted a post in Berlin, Germany, was accepted.

George P. Sacks, B. W. Parker and Col. Thomas Hampton were elected delegates to the Montgomery County Civic Federation with Edward H. Jones, John Imirie and T. Earl Hampton as alternates. John Imirie, second vice president, presided.

Col. Hampton was directed to present a resolution to the civic federation deploring the presence of signboards in the county and asking the federation to adopt a resolution requesting the State Legislature to bring about a law against signboards. Wade Imirie reported that the trolley poles at the intersection of the Eastwest highway with Georgetown pike, Rockville pike and Wisconsin avenue will be removed within a week.

A resolution urging more complete schedules by the Montgomery Bus Lines and the continuance of the Silver Spring to Bethesda bus of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. to Cabin John was adopted.

Slayer of Boy, 12, Sought by Police

Description Hunted Man Given by Playmate of Strangled Lad.

Dubuque, Ill., Oct. 6 (A.P.).—A 14-year-old boy's description of a man known only as "Bill," and a piece of wire that was used to strangle Earl Fuller, 12, to death, were the only clews police had tonight as they sought the slayer.

The boy's body, a strand of wire drawn tightly about the neck, was found in the "flats" along the Mississippi River three blocks from the Fuller hotme yesterday. Earl was last seen alive about 9 o'clock Saturday night when he left a group of boys with whom he had played football in a park.

Alfred Haigh, 14, the only one of his eleven playmates who could offer any definite aid, said he left the park with a man who was called "Bill." Sixty suspects were rounded up by police, including many transients, in an endeavor to have the boy identify the hunted man.

Tippler Liberates Pet Black Snake

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 6.—Whisky and snakes often cause trouble, but usually to individuals. An entire neighborhood, however, has its worries today just because Charles Cridler drank some liquor and then liberated his pet black snake, about 5 feet in length.

Cridler was before Magistrate Richard Duffey today, but didn't recall what happened yesterday, but neighbors did, and they told the megistrate that Cridler had freed the snake and that several score of neighbors and half the police force were scouring the neighborhood, where Cridler lives, for the reptile. Cridler at his hearing offered to lead the hunt if the magistrate would free him, but he didn't have the price of his fine, $5, so the judge sent him to jail.

Charles claims he can charm his own snake, but the judge doubted him and the search was still in progress tonight without Charles being the leader.

Argentine Holds 18 Labor Leaders

Man Seized in Buenos Aire Said to Have Ordered Strike Today.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Eighteen local labor leaders were arrested by police today in a raid. Two others, suspected of carrying on anarchistic activities, also were taken.

The arrested labor leaders, members of the "Fora" (Federacion Obrera Regional Argentina), were said to have ordered a 48-hour general strike in Buenos Aires beginning at 6 a. m. tomorrow.

The police tonight took precautions to maintain public order. They said that if the strike materialized it would probably be only partly effective. Port workers nad taxi drivers were expected to go out.

DEMOCRATS DEFEND ABSENTEE VOTE LIST

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 6.—Legal steps taken by Republican leaders of Anne Arundel County, with representatives of State headquarters of the party cooperating, in which question is raised as to the legality of the registration of a large number of voters in the Seventh and Eighth Districts, assumed a more interesting angle today when Democratic leaders stepped in to defend the registration officials of those districts as to their action in the primaries. The right of franchise of a large number of Washingtonians is involved in the proceedings.

Following the announcement made by E. Brooke Lee, of Montgomery County, chairman of Gov. Ritchie's gubernatoiral campaign, that the Democratic State organization would that a hand in the local situation, Former Attorney General Isaac Lobe Strause came to Annapolis today. After holding a conference with City Attorney George B. Woelfel and Charles W. Mulliken, attorney for the board of supervisors of elections, a demurrer to the mandamus action obtained by Republicans last Saturday as aresult of which Democratic registration officials of the districts above mentioned, were called upon to take cognizance of the "suspect" lists presented by the Republican complainants. Mayor Walter E. Quenstedt, of Annapolis, and Ernest F. Fadum, of the legal department of State G. O. P. headquarters.

These lists contain approximately 400 names and the Republicans claim that about 90 per cent were registered as Democrats, and a large majority are Washingtonians, who own summer homes on Chesapeake Bay or its river estuaries and spend only a small part of the year in this district.

The principal claim in the demurrer filed today is that all of those enrolled, and now held under suspicion, properly answered questions put to them as prescribed by law, and that the registration officials acted properly in placing their names on the books.

Judge Moss did not take immediate action on the demurrer. He has five days in which to dispose of it.

Meanwhile interest centers in what the registrars will do tomorrow which has been set apart as revision day. It was reported tonight that in spite of the service of mandamus the registration officials with one exception, a Republican, refused to notify the "suspects" to appear tomorrow, the others resting on their oars and awaiting the court action on the demurrer.

The issue is becoming more and more complicated, and it is not unlikely that Judge Moss will be called upon to dispose of it by way of appeals from registration.

Youth Badly Hurt By Hit-Run Auto

Struck on Brookeville Pike As He Stops Own Car to Repair Tire.

James Byram, 19 years old, of 718 Varnum street northwest, was seriously injured early yesterday when he was struck by a hit-and-run auto on the Brookeville pike near Glenmont, Md. Montgomery County and Washington police are searching for the driver of the car which struck him, which is said to have borne District tags.

Mr. Byram had stopped his car at the side of the road to repair a tire. The other car, in passing, sideswiped his car and struck him and then failed to halt. He was taken to Walter Reed Hospital and later removed to Emergency Hospital, where he was treated for a broken leg and cuts and bruises on the body.

County Policeman George Windham is conducting an investigation into the accident and hopes to make an arrest within a short time.

Miss Phipps to Be Married.

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 6 (Special).—Mr. and Mrs. James A. Phipps, of Gala, have announced the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Pauline Phipps, to Dr. Henry Clark Shotwell, of this city, which is to be celebrated there October 15.

PRIZES ANNOUNCED AT LA PLATA FAIR

LONG LIST OF AWARDS

Special to The Washington Post.

La Plata, Md., Oct. 6.—The attendance at closing day of the Charles County Fair was estimated at 3,500 persons. This is said to surpass any other day in the seven years the fair has existed. It was known as "Children's Day." All southern Maryland children were admitted free. Special events were arranged for the children. A baby health contest, husband calling contest and rolling-pin throwing contest were other special events.

Forty-five babies were entered in the baby contest. There were two classes—one for children under 18 months of age and the other for children from 18 months to 3 years. Eatin Whitney Hungerford, aged 4 months, was judged the most perfect in the younger class. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Hungerford, of Bryams Road. Doris Mae Long, aged 20 months, won first honor in the older group. She is a daughter of Stanley Long, of Washington, and a grandchild of Mr. and Mrs John Sollars, of White Plains, this county, with whom she lives.

DEMOCRAT SPEAKING CAMPAIGN MAPPED

House-to-House Canvass Is on Program in Montgomery.

FEW DATES TENTATIVE

Speaking programs for the Democratic campaign in Montgomery County were arranged at a meeting of the Democratic State central committee for the county, the campaign committee and the candidates themselves yesterday at the Rockville courthouse, Berry E. Clark, chairman of the State central committee, presided at the meeting.

The meeting decided upon a fairly complete speaking program, with a few of the dates and speakers remaining tentative for the present. Confidence in a successful outcome of the election was expressed, but it was decided that an intensive campaign, which includes a house-to-house canvass by candidates and workers to augment the work of the meetings, will be carried on.

In the First or Laytonsville District, a meeting will be held October 10 at Mount Carmel Church, Unity, at which Stedman Prescott, candidate for State's attorney; Marvin Farrington, candidate for the House of Delegates, and Capt. Joseph C. Cissel will speak. A meeting will be held October 23 in the Modern Woodmen Hall at Laytonsville, at which Police Judge Charles W. Woodward, William J. Prettyman and Stedman Prescott will speak.

In the Second, or Clarksburg, District three meetings are scheduled, at Hyattstown, Germantown, and Clarksburg, but dates and speakers have not been selected.

Judge Woodward, Preston B. Ray, candidate for relection as clerk of the circuit court; Andrew J. ("Cy") Cummings, and Stedman Prescott will speak at a meeting in Waverly Hall, Poolesville, Third District, October 18.

The county-wide meeting at which Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and other Statewide candidates will speak will be held at Rockville Fair Grounds on a date to be selected by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, chairman of the State campaign committee, which probably will be October 16. The State candidates also will speak at either Chevy Chase or Bethesda and at Silver Spring the same evening. The Rockville meeting will be in the afternoon. This is the only meeting scheduled for the Fourth (Rockville) District.

No meetings are scheduled for the Colesville (Fifth) District, where house-to-house canvasses are being made. Two meetings are scheduled in the Sixth (Darnestown) District. The first will be held October 22, with Stedman Prescott, W. F. Prettyman, James W. White and Miss Lavinia Engle, candidate for the House of Delegates, as speakers. The second meeting will be October 28 at Travilah, with Preston B. Ray, "Cy" Cummings, County Commissioner Lacy Shaw, candidate for reelection, and Robert B. Peter, jr., as speakers.

Meetings for the Seventh District probably will be held October 24 at Chevy Chase and Glen Echo with speakers not as yet selected. Two meetings are planned for the Eighth, Olney District. The first probably will be at Brookeville, October 31, with the complete list of speakers not yet selected, and the second at Sandy Spring October 24, with Stedman Prescott and Miss Engle as two of the speakers.

Three meetings are planned for the Ninth or Gaithersburg District. The first of these will be at Washington Grove, October 16, when Robert B. Peter, jr., Capt. Cissel and others will speak. The second will be at Germantown, October 23, when Miss Engle Judge Woodward, Preston B. Ray and Bowe F. Waters will speak, and the third at Gaithersburg, October 29, when George M. Hunter, Judge Woodward, W. F. Prettyman and Preston B. Ray will speak.

Meetings for the Tenth or Potomac District are tentatively selected at the Junior Order Hall, at Cabin John, October 15, and the Anglers Club, October 22, Great Falls.

The meeting for the Eleventh, Barnesville, District, will be held in Barnesville Hall, October 21, with addresses by Robert G. Hilton, candidate for State senator; Stedman Prescott and Judge Woodward, with another meeting October 14 at Boyds, with Robert B. Peter, jr., Preston B. Ray and others as speakers.

Two meetings are scheduled for the Twelfth or Damascus District, the first at Browningsville, October 20, with Miss Engle, Stedman Prescott and Capt. Cissel as the principal speakers, and the second at Browningsville, October 27, when Judge Woodward, Robert G. Hilton, Robert B. Peter, jr., and others will speak.

No meetings have been arranged for the Thirteenth or Wheaton District, except the State-wide meeting to be held at Silver Spring.

Approximately 2,400 Montgomery County registered voters have been summoned to appear before election officials for the county today to defend their right to maintain their names on the county's voting lists.

About 1,600 Democrats and 800 Republicans have been challenged by the workers of the two parties who ask that they be stricken from the registration books as improperly registered. Should the cited voter appear before the board of registry, both of the registrars must agree before his or her name can be stricken from the book, but only one has to agree if the person cited does not appear. Appeals to the circuit court may be taken from the decision of the board of registration.

The registrars will be in session today from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., but will not accept the names of new voters for registration today. Another registration day for new voters will be held October 14, when the party workers are expected to bring forth many electors who have not been discovered in time for registration. Workers of both parties are putting the best foot forward in the search for new registrants.

The Montgomery County Commissioners today will open bids on the construction of concrete paving and curb on Wisconsin avenue along the car tracks.
